Governor Might Not Run Again

Milliken Burdened By PBB Problem

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken admits he has some serious doubts about seeking re-election to a job which has meant little privacy and handed him a chemical catastrophe that won't go away.

But Milliken said his decision — still months away — depends on what he accomplishes before 1978 and what is left undone. And he expressed confidence in his chance of re-election if he runs.

In an interview with The Associated Press Milliken also indicated he is likely to veto the Navy's Project Seafarer in the Upper Peninsula, but not until all the facts are known.

The Republican has held the job for nearly a decade, but the last four years have been among the most grueling because of the contamination of Michigan's food chain.

Polybrominated biphenyl (PBB), a fire retardant chemical, was accidentally mixed with cattle feed in 1973. Thousands of tainted animals were killed, hundreds of people complained of physical ailments and PBB became both a household word and a political problem for Milliken.

Milliken said he regrets not having done a better job of telling the public what his administration was doing to deal with the PBB crisis. He expects PBB to be an issue if he should run in 1978, but defended his handling of what was an unprecedented problem.

The governor was asked what he could say now to assure his constituents that PBB doesn't endanger their lives.

"I think in all candor, none of us can assure anyone — and the scientists have been saying this — what the future holds," he said. "This ought not to be interpreted as an alarmist statement. I think it's a statement of scientific fact, at least as they have described it."

But he said the public misunderstands the extent of the problem.

"Since the introduction into the food chain some 3½ years ago, by far the greatest part of that contaminant has worked its way out of the food chain," Milliken said. "So to compare what it was when it began ... a very small fraction of what went in to begin with is still in that chain."

Scientists still haven't determined whether higher levels of PBB cause a greater impact on human health, he said. But, "The presumption has to be there, and I think every action we take has to be based upon that presumption. It is important for our people to know that it is almost eliminated from the food chain."

Milliken also said he would not fire state Agricultre Department Director B. Dale Ball even if he had the authority.

Ball's resignation has been called for by some state legislators, a congressman, a top labor leader and others. But he can be fired only by the Agriculture Commission, whose members

Bardot Seal Saga Breaks For Lunch

ST. ANTHONY, Canada (AP) — Canadian and Norwegian hunters killed 12,414 more seal pups Wednesday despite more efforts by anti-sealing forces and a threatened visit by Brigitte Bardot that didn't take place because she lingered too long over lunch.

Wednesday's take raised the number of pups killed to 24,344, by Canadian government count. The government has set a quota of 170,000 seals this year.

The French film-world's former sex queen flew to Canada by chartered jet to get some publicity for the opposition to the annual sealing. The International Fund for Animal Welfare brought her to St. Anthony, in Newfoundland 58 miles southwest of the Arctic ice pack where the seals are being killed.

A helicopter was to have taken her to the ice pack, but she had a leisurely lunch at a motel and missed the flight by five minutes. So she flew to Lourdes du Blanc Sablon, 67 miles away, and said she would return to France. But rain and fog made flights from the area today unlikely.

One of her hosts said Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau turned down a request by Miss Bardot for an interview "because he has no time." But Trudeau's office said it received no request for a meeting.

While Miss Bardot lunched, the president of the pro-hunt St. Anthony Citizens Committee gave her a badge reading SOS, or Save Our Swilers, a Newfoundland term meaning seal hunters. She put the badge on, apparently believing it referred to the seals.

Another protest group, the Greenpeace Foundation, said it sent a group onto the ice pack, and one of the sealing ships tried to run down the protesters.

Police in the area have been reinforced in an effort to keep peace between the sealers and the protesters.

The seal hunters had to walk through deep snow on the ice floes to reach the seal pups, which they bludgeon to death with clubs. They maintain it is a more humane method than those used in slaughterhouses.

The anti-force hunts charge that the seal herds are being wiped out and the killing of the pups is cruel. The Canadian government says the herds now total between one million and 1.5 million seals and will increase in number under the quota system.

The government maintains that without the annual hunt, the herds would grow out of control and would deplete East Coast fish stocks.

The government says the hunt is also vital to the economy of Newfoundland, where unemployment often exceeds 20 per cent, and the $2,300 a sealer can make in a month is a major part of his annual income.

Oldsters Would Get Tax Break

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to exempt certain senior citizens from paying school taxes has been introduced in the state Senate.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. David Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, would grant the exemption to citizens 65 years of age or older with annual incomes of $10,000 or less.

Plawecki said school taxes make up about 65 per cent of a property tax bill. For older residents with no children in school, he said, "the increasing amount of school taxes they are being assessed is an unfair burden."

Plawecki said his bill would require the state to reimburse any school districts for lost tax revenue resulting from the exemption.

Carter Civil Rights Lawyer Tells Views

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The black activist who is the Carter administration's chief civil rights lawyer says courts should not order citywide school desegregation to remedy limited instances of illegal racial segregation.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Drew S. Days, the first black to head the Justice Department's civil rights division, indicated he will not press for extensive busing and other wide-ranging desegregation measures unless there is proof of intentional segregation throughout a school system.

His views, as he described them in an interview Wednesday, suggest the department may become somewhat more aggressive on desegregation cases than it was during the Ford administration but probably not as forceful as some civil rights groups would like.

Organizations such as the NAACP are watching Days' actions with particular interest because he spent seven years on their side. He was a chief attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and handled many of its school integration cases.

Now he is responsible for enforcing laws against race and sex discrimination in schools, employment, voting and public facilities.

He said he subscribes to the general view that school desegregation plans should correct discrimination that existed in the past.

"It's absurd to say a formula can be devised that says if segregation was directed toward two schools, then only two schools have to be involved in the remedy," he remarked.

On the other hand, he continued, "I would hope the courts would not overreach. If there are limited violations shown, I would hope the courts will not necessarily conclude that a system-wide desegregation plan is necessary.

"That's an abstraction, and one has to look at the specific case and the facts as they develop. It might be that 10 schools have to be involved, and not 40. Or 30 as opposed to 50."

In some cities, Days said, "the violation might be very widespread and that would justify a broad remedy. In other situations, the violations may be very minor and perhaps the remedy would be somewhat restricted."

A recent U.S. Civil Rights Commission report said schools in many cities will remain virtually all black unless predominantly white suburbs are drawn into metropolitan desegregation plans.

Days agreed with the commission that metropolitan desegregation might, in some cities, require less busing than a plan confined to the central city. But he noted a Supreme Court decision in Detroit's school case requires proof of suburban involvement in segregation before the suburbs can be ordered into metropoli-

Beer-Can Billy Can 'Draw Line'

CHICAGO (AP) — The tourists are changing Plains, Ga., says Billy Carter, and he figured it was time to get away.

So he came north Wednesday night to be honored at a banquet as the nation's No. 1 auto racing fan by the Mechanics' Hall of Fame. Carter is a car buff who tinkers with them at his Plains service station.

"I don't like big cities, too many people," said President Carter's younger brother. "I don't even like Albany (Ga.) and that just has a population of 40,000."

Carter said the last time he was in Chicago was in 1956 while he was a Marine stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

He also said his home town of Plains has taken a turn for the worse since his brother made it famous.

"You don't see any townspeople anymore. There are junk shops and ripoff places now, and I hate to see it," Carter said.

When a reporter got around to asking him about his beer drinking, Carter said he drinks between four and 40 cans a day, but "I know where to draw the line."

He said he usually starts drinking at 5 a.m., but held off for an hour Wednesday because "I didn't have to work today."

The President's 39-year-old brother stayed in the Drake Hotel. General Manager W. B. Schuler said the hotel wanted to treat Carter in the style to which he's become accustomed. There were to be six-packs of beer waiting for him in his room.

Tax Penalty Is Asked For Private Schooling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit Public School Superintendent Arthur Jefferson wants a federal income tax penalty for parents who send their children to private schools. Jefferson told a conference on metropolitan school integration Wednesday that such a tax penalty could help pave the way for cross-district busing. He said parents who send their children to private schools often vote against tax increases that would help public schools. Those families, Jefferson argued, should be penalized by the income tax system and the additional money raised should be used to support public school systems.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. – Thomas Jefferson.

It Most Surely Is A Legendary Day, Begorra!

Legend has it that St. Patrick died On March 17, 493 A.D., at the age of 106. Inasmuch as there is not even a legendary day for his birth, March 17 has been observed as St. Patrick's Day for centuries.

On March 1, 1737, some Irish Protestants met in Boston to do honor to St. Patrick and they founded the Charitable Irish Society. On March 17, 17i0, the significance of the day was recognized by General Washington at Valley Forge.

The data on St. Patrick is largely legendary. No written mention of him occurs until the seventh century. Two writings exist which generally are attributed to him — a Confession largely autobiographical, and a letter to the Christian subjects of Coroticus, a chieftain in Britain. Each is signed by Patricius, Bishop of Ireland.

It is believed by some that Patrick was born in Roman Britain. One early account says that his name before entering the priesthood was Sucat. The Confession says that his father was a landed proprietor and a Christian. At the age of 15 Patrick was captured by a band of Irish marauders and taken to Ireland as a slave. He tended sheep for his master for six years, then escaped — either to Britain or to Gaul. He entered a monastery and was ordained a priest.

In or about 433 he was commissioned by the church to convert Ireland from Druidism to Christianity. At the time a few scattered Christians probably existed in Ireland, but without organization or union. St. Patrick was highly successful and at his death a large part of Ireland had been converted to Christianity.

It is that legendary accomplishment which has led to the spirited celebration of this day even by the non-Irish.

It's Hard To Forget The Cruelest Winter

The coming of spring tends to erase memories of the winter that preceded it, but this year is different. Millions of Americans will long remember one winter day in particular — Jan. 17, 1977, when a numbing cold wave struck the Middle West and the East. More than 50 cities from Iowa to Florida posted record low temperatures that day. Thermometers plunged to 24 degrees below zero in Cincinnati, breaking the old record low of minus 8 degrees. Peoria, Ill., had a record low of 25 below zero on Jan. 17, while Springfield, Ill., had 21 below and Indianapolis had 20 below. Frozen water pipes, loss of heat or electricity, and cars that wouldn't start compounded the misery.

Buffalo also recorded an all-time low temperature on Jan. 17 — a comparatively mild 4 degrees below zero. But less than two weeks later the city experienced what some residents called the "holocaust" — the worst winter storm in local history. The blizzard of Jan. 28-30 was so fierce that the National Guard was called in to remove snow and keep order. Wind gusts of up to 45 mph piled snow drifts over the roofs of some houses. Seven deaths were attributed to the storm, and wage and business losses in the Buffalo area ran into the millions of dollars.

One thought may have helped to ease the suffering of those who shivered through the late January cold wave: Spring was just seven weeks away. Winter will end this year at 12:43 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on Sunday, March 20. At that moment the vernal equinox — sometimes known as "the first point of Aries" — occurs. The sun moves across the equator from south to north, marking the beginning of spring in the Northern Hemisphere. On that day, as on the day of the autumnal equinox in September, day and night are of equal length at comparable latitudes in both hemispheres.

Some people believe that violent storms, called "equinoctial gales," occur during the vernal and autumnal equinoxes. Buffalo residents could argue that their area's gales arrived seven weeks early this year.

General Keegan Has A Sound Proposal

So many conflicting statements have been coming from both active and retired members of the defense and intelligence communities on the state of preparedness of the United States versus that of the Soviet Union, the public can be excused for being confused over the issue and wondering if its leaders are as well.

Controversies over what is an adequate level of defense, particularly in view of the constant evolution of the weapons of war, are not new. Parochial and selfish interests come into play on the question.

But some of the people who have been claiming the U.S. is not as strong as it thinks it is, relative to the Soviet Union, have been in positions of authority. Either they know what they are talking about, or should be demonstrated by convincing proof to be overstating their positions.

One of the most recent examples is Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan, who retired in January as head of Air Force intelligence. At a meeting of the American Security Council, Gen. Keegan strongly expressed the view that American intelligence has "consistently underestimated" the Soviet Union's military threat over the last quarter century.

Citing extensive underground weapon and command centers constructed in the Soviet Union in recent years and hinting that Soviet weapon technology is more advanced than generally believed, Keegan warned against what he called "the monumentally incompetent judgmental process in this government regarding the nature, character and growth of the Soviet threat as it has evolved from year to year."

Strong language, yet Gen. Keegan is willing to put his thesis to the test. He suggested a thorough review by an independent body of past and current intelligence estimates to see who is right.

It may not be possible to resolve an issue so vital as this without just such a review. One immediate problem presents itself: Who will constitute the reviewing body?

Freed Youth's Father Thanks Sheriff, Judge

Editor,

I hope you will publish this letter because I would like the world to know what two great and good men did for me and mine.

My boy was serving a 90-day jail sentence, which I never thought was anything but just, and had almost three weeks more to serve.

The night my wife died I called on Sheriff Stump (Van Buren County Sheriff Richard Stump), hoping to get him released the day of the funeral. He asked if I would like to tell the news to my boy myself. Of course I accepted. Sheriff Stump told me he would make some calls while I was upstairs. When I came down, he told me that Judge Buhl had ordered my boy brought to his court the next morning, for recommitment papers. The next morning our boy had, through the very considerate gesture of the two men, his freedom.

Let me repeat, I would like the world to hear of that very considerate gesture, and of my eternal gratitude.

SAY WARDEN SHOT THEIR DOG

Editor,

Beware, People of the New Buffalo area!

Our local dog catcher has declared open war on all dogs. Our dog, a very affectionate black cocker spaniel, was shot and killed last Thursday by our dogcatcher.

Eyewitness says he made no attempt to pick the dog up; just got out of his truck, took out his shotgun and shot him. Then he picked the evidence up in a bag and disposed of it. This same witness saw him kill another dog the previous day in the same fashion.

There happens to be a woods near where these dogs were killed. These woods also happen to be a favorite spot for children to play in this area. Our dog catcher could have easily hit a child in the process of shooting these dogs. Do we also have to keep our children "penned" up?

How many people in our area are missing dogs? They may not have run very far. You'll never know. Yet, after checking with local law enforcement official, there is no legal way to stop this man. Of course, eventually he will run out of dogs and we can consider ourselves lucky if he hasn't hurt somebody in the process.

Fire ripped through the roof of the Second Baptist church on Eighth street in Benton Harbor Saturday afternoon and caused almost $8,000 in damage, according to trustee Cornelius Bass. A report from the Rev. W.G. Wilson, pastor of the church, said that two-thirds of the combination asbestos and wood shingle roof was damaged beyond repair. About 100 youngsters from Sunday school classes and their teachers were in the basement practicing for an Easter play. They were quickly escorted to safety without any difficulty, Rev. Wilson said. Sunday services were held yesterday afternoon at the Church of God and Christ on Washington street.

— 50 Years Ago —

The city of Benton Harbor paid out nearly $1,375 last year replacing and repairing street lights broken by careless auto drivers, according to information given out by City Manager Guy Tyler. In addition, approximately $800 was paid out for broken fire hydrants. Less than half, $604.49 to be exact, was collected for broken lights from the drivers. From its own pocket the city paid out $769.01. Eight fire hydrants, which cost $100 each, were broken by being struck by automobiles last year.

An appropriation of $69,000 for improvements to the twin city harbor was approved by Secretary of War Davis late Wednesday. The appropriation was included in the budget for river and harbor maintenance. The local funds will be used to dredge the channel and ship canal, and to make necessary repairs to the breakwaters.

GOP Seeking Black Leaders

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The Republican Party, which has indulged in a great deal of talk lately about the importance of luring black voters back to the party of Lincoln has finally started putting its money where its mouth is.

In a move not yet publicly announced, GOP National Chairman Bill Brock has set aside $225,000 this year to launch a massive long-term effort to recruit black candidates at the local and state level and to provide them with the kind of political training and financial support they will need to get elected.

That may not sound like a very big slice of the Republican National Committee's total budget of $6.7 million, but it is almost 10 times more than the party has ever devoted to black political programs in the past.

And it marks the first time the GOP has put money into the recruitment of black candidates rather than simplistic and singularly unsuccessful public relations efforts aimed at black voters.

Brock, a Southern conservative who was defeated last fall in his bid for a second Senate term from Tennessee, harbors no illusions about the difficulty the Republicans face in breaking the near-solid black allegiance to the Democratic Party.

"We're not going to get the black vote until we have some black Republicans in office," he said bluntly in a recent interview.

The place to begin building a pool of elected black officeholders, he said, is at the local and state level — where candidates can run on issues of concern to their home communities.

Without exactly saying so, Brock all but conceded that the Republican Party's national image is a liability, not an asset, in black communities. Few blacks with standing and credibility in their own neighborhoods would have much chance today of winning election to Congress as Republicans; the GOP label carries too much negative emotional freight

Why, then, should blacks who are successful community leaders succumb to entreaties from the GOP to run for local office as Republicans? Simple enough, Brock replied. "We're the party of opportunity for blacks. We don't have any. The first ones in are really going to have a say. They acquire a voice with us, and we acquire ears with which to hear the concerns of those they represent."

Such pragmatism may indeed have its appeal. In an appearance last month on "America's Black Forum," the first nationally syndicated black news television interview program, a former director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), said it was time blacks started seeking leverage in both political parties.

James Farmer, who served briefly in the Nixon administration although he is not a registered Republican, said blacks "ought to try to be in both parties," adding that Republicans "haven't helped us in this" in the past.

It remains to be seen how much help the GOP can and will extend to blacks in the future, notwithstanding Brock's avowed concern and financial commitment.

The new GOP chairman admitted not everyone in the party, or even on the Republican National Committee, shares his convictions about the value of drawing in more blacks.

"There are still those who want to write off the black vote," he conceded "But I don't really think we'll get much flak initially."

He's probably right. Until and unless more blacks are elected on the Republican line, they will have little influence in the continuing rancorous debate about the direction the party ought to take in the future. And even with a $225,000 commitment, the GOP is not going to lose its lily-white cast overnight.

"We don't have any illusions about a quick fix," Brock said. "This program is the largest single initiative we are going to undertake this year, but it's no more than the beginning of a longterm commitment to give the black community representation and a voice within the Republican Party."

Carter Kissing Castro's Foot

Well, all the gears are now beginning to mesh, and it looks as if the Carter Administration — no doubt in pursuit of its campaign for human rights — is about to embrace the regime of Fidel Castro.

Washington Post editor Ben Bradlee has talked for 74 hours with Castro on what amounts to a quasi-official visit to Cuba.

A delegation from the National Council of Churches is off for a ten-day swing through Cuba, presumably to experience the richness of religious life there.

In a recent TV interview, Castro suggested that the New York Yankees baseball team visit Cuba for a three-day tour beginning AprilDl.

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la. It is tiresome to observe that the Castro regime holds more political prisoners than all the other nations of Latin America combined? Or that the only crime of most of these political prisoners is desiring the sort of freedom for which America is supposed to stand?

It is tiresome to ask just what is in all this for the United States? Just what benefits we will derive if we make life easier for this Caribbean despot? Castro himself is nothing if not frank on this point.

BRADLEE: What single thing could President Carter do to assure the beginning of a new era in Cuban-American relations?

CASTRO: Life the embargo.

BRADLEE: What would (you) do in return?

BRADLEE: What's in it, then, for the United States to lift the embargo?

CASTRO: A tremendous outpouring of good will toward the United States in Europe, in the Third World, and in Cuba.

Okay, there we have it: Lift the embargo. In return we will get the approval of some Swedish politicians and a favorable editorial in People's World.

Of course Castro wants the embargo lifted. What the embargo means is that the Cuban police state represents a large financial burden to Moscow, which spends more than $2 million per day to prop up Castro's dictatorship.

There's nothing surprising, either, in the fact that he is not willing to make any concessions at all, such as on Cuban military operations in Africa. Communist leaders normally regard themselves as the wave of the future and therefore expect the concessions to come from the losing side.

So there is nothing surprising in Castro's position. The surprising thing is the evident eagerness of the Carter Administration, amid all its talk about human rights, to embrace this particular Caribbean despot, who has stolen billions in U.S. property without compensation, who has turned his country into a Soviet outpost and naval base, who has flung his troops into central Africa in order to impose alien regimes there, who has tried to spread anti-Americanism and Communist revolution throughout Latin America, and who would dearly like to sponsor Communist dictatorships throughout the Third World.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

It Most Surely Is A Legendary Day, Begorra!

Legend has it that St. Patrick died On March 17, 493 A.D., at the age of 106. Inasmuch as there is not even a legendary day for his birth, March 17 has been observed as St. Patrick's Day for centuries.

On March 1, 1737, some Irish Protestants met in Boston to do honor to St. Patrick and they founded the Charitable Irish Society. On March 17, 1710, the significance of the day was recognized by General Washington at Valley Forge.

The data on St. Patrick is largely legendary. No written mention of him occurs until the seventh century. Two writings exist which generally are attributed to him — a Confession largely autobiographical, and a letter to the Christian subjects of Coroticus, a chieftain in Britain. Each is signed by Patricius, Bishop of Ireland.

It is believed by some that Patrick was born in Roman Britain. One early account says that his name before entering the priesthood was Sucat. The Confession says that his father was a landed proprietor and a Christian. At the age of 15 Patrick was captured by a band of Irish marauders and taken to Ireland as a slave. He tended sheep for his master for six years, then escaped — either to Britain or to Gaul. He entered a monastery and was ordained a priest.

In or about 433 he was commissioned by the church to convert Ireland from Druidism to Christianity. At the time a few scattered Christians probably existed in Ireland, but without organization or union. St. Patrick was highly successful and at his death a large part of Ireland had been converted to Christianity.

It is that legendary accomplishment which has led to the spirited celebration of this day even by the non-Irish.

It's Hard To Forget The Cruelest Winter

The coming of spring tends to erase memories of the winter that preceded it, but this year is different. Millions of Americans will long remember one winter day in particular — Jan. 17, 1977, when a numbing cold wave struck the Middle West and the East. More than 50 cities from Iowa to Florida posted record low temperatures that day. Thermometers plunged to 24 degrees below zero in Cincinnati, breaking the old record low of minus 8 degrees. Peoria, Ill., had a record low of 25 below zero on Jan. 17, while Springfield, Ill., had 21 below and Indianapolis had 20 below. Frozen water pipes, loss of heat or electricity, and cars that wouldn't start compounded the misery.

Buffalo also recorded an all-time low temperature on Jan. 17 — a comparatively mild 4 degrees below zero. But less than two weeks later the city experienced what some residents called the "holocaust" — the worst winter storm in local history. The blizzard of Jan. 28-30 was so fierce that the National Guard was called in to remove snow and keep order. Wind gusts of up to 45 mph piled snow drifts over the roofs of some houses. Seven deaths were attributed to the storm, and wage and business losses in the Buffalo area ran into the millions of dollars.

One thought may have helped to ease the suffering of those who shivered through the late January cold wave: Spring was just seven weeks away. Winter will end this year at 12:43 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on Sunday, March 20. At that moment the vernal equinox — sometimes known as "the first point of Aries" — occurs. The sun moves across the equator from south to north, marking the beginning of spring in the Northern Hemisphere. On that day, as on the day of the autumnal equinox in September, day and night are of equal length at comparable latitudes in both hemispheres.

Some people believe that violent storms, called "equinoctial gales," occur during the vernal and autumnal equinoxes. Buffalo residents could argue that their area's gales arrived seven weeks early this year.

General Keegan Has A Sound Proposal

So many conflicting statements have been coming from both active and retired members of the defense and intelligence communities on the state of preparedness of the United States versus that of the Soviet Union, the public can be excused for being confused over the issue and wondering if its leaders are as well.

Controversies over what is an adequate level of defense, particularly in view of the constant evolution of the weapons of war, are not new. Parochial and selfish interests come into play on the question.

But some of the people who have been claiming the U.S. is not as strong as it thinks it is, relative to the Soviet Union, have been in positions of authority. Either they know what they are talking about, or should be demonstrated by convincing proof to be overstating their positions.

One of the most recent examples is Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan, who retired in January as head of Air Force intelligence. At a meeting of the American Security Council, Gen. Keegan strongly expressed the view that American intelligence has "consistently underestimated" the Soviet Union's military threat over the last quarter century.

Citing extensive underground weapon and command centers constructed in the Soviet Union in recent years and hinting that Soviet weapon technology is more advanced than generally believed, Keegan warned against what he called "the monumentally incompetent judgmental process in this government regarding the nature, character and growth of the Soviet threat as it has evolved from year to year."

Strong language, yet Gen. Keegan is willing to put his thesis to the test. He suggested a thorough review by an independent body of past and current intelligence estimates to see who is right.

It may not be possible to resolve an issue so vital as this without just such a review. One immediate problem presents itself: Who will constitute the reviewing body?

Freed Youth's Father Thanks Sheriff, Judge

Editor,

I hope you will publish this letter because I would like the world to know what two great and good men did for me and mine.

My boy was serving a 90-day jail sentence, which I never thought was anything but just, and had almost three weeks more to serve.

The night my wife died I called on Sheriff Stump (Van Buren County Sheriff Richard Stump), hoping to get him released the day of the funeral. He asked if I would like to tell the news to my boy myself. Of course I accepted. Sheriff Stump told me he would make some calls while I was upstairs. When I came down, he told me that Judge Buhl had ordered my boy brought to his court the next morning, for recommitment papers. The next morning our boy had, through the very considerate gesture of the two men, his freedom.

Let me repeat, I would like the world to hear of that very considerate gesture, and of my eternal gratitude.

SAY WARDEN SHOT THEIR DOG

Editor,

Beware, People of the New Buffalo area!

Our local dog catcher has declared open war on all dogs. Our dog, a very affectionate black cocker spaniel, was shot and killed last Thursday by our dogcatcher.

Eyewitness says he made no attempt to pick the dog up; just got out of his truck, took out his shotgun and shot him. Then he picked the evidence up in a bag and disposed of it. This same witness saw him kill another dog the previous day in the same fashion.

There happens to be a woods near where these dogs were killed. These woods also happen to be a favorite spot for children to play in this area. Our dog catcher could have easily hit a child in the process of shooting these dogs. Do we also have to keep our children "penned" up?

How many people in our area are missing dogs? They may not have run very far. You'll never know. Yet, after checking with local law enforcement official, there is no legal way to stop this man. Of course, eventually he will run out of dogs and we can consider ourselves lucky if he hasn't hurt somebody in the process.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Chief Dog Warden Albert Kuiper confirmed the incident, saying this dog was seen running loose on several earlier occasions, and that his department has been getting complaints about dogs running loose. His officers resort to shooting only when dogs running loose cannot be picked up, he said. State law permits officers to shoot dogs running without collars or license. Kuiper said owner of dog was not known at time of shooting but Schulz family will now be cited into court for allowing a dog to run loose.

Police Seek Vehicle At Fire Scene

COLOMA — Police here this morning asked for public assistance in trying to identify a vehicle seen at the rear of the Mr. Pancake House restaurant about 20 to 30 minutes before a fire broke out and destroyed the building early Wednesday morning.

Officer Edward Dill said at least three people reported they saw headlights of a vehicle behind the three-story building about 12:35 to 12:45 a.m. The fire was reported at about 1:05 a.m.

He said police are trying to determine if there is a connection between the vehicle and the fire which caused an estimated $100,000 to $150,000 in damage in leveling the restaurant at 251 Paw Paw street in the city's main business district.

A spokesman from the state fire marshal's office in Paw Paw said that while the "speed" in which the building was consumed by fire is "suspicious," investigators have not found evidence of arson.

Det. Sgt. Philip Nielsen said investigators have not determined the fire's cause, but added that it is "unusual for a three-story building to be engulfed that quickly."

Firemen reported, Nielsen said, that "...within 15 minutes, the building was down on the ground."

He said investigators yesterday afternoon took some charred samples for analysis to determine if there is any residue of flammable materials.

Those samples will be taken to the state police laboratory at Holland, he said.

Nielsen said he was told the owner and his brother were in the process of remodeling the 75-year-old building that formerly was a lumber company and an opera house.

Winter decorations on graves in Riverview and City cemeteries, St. Joseph, should be removed by April 1, according to Supt. Robert Ketelhut.

Decorations such as wreaths, crosses, glass blocks used as flower holders and other similar items should be removed. Sextons will remove and discard all such decorations left in the cemetery after April 1, Ketelhut said.

Downtown To Get Floral Baskets

The St. Joseph downtown development authority yesterday voted to spend up to $1,000 this year to heng flowers from light poles in the downtown area.

The program calls for 48 flower pots to be hung from brackets attached to the poles 10 feet above the street. The pots and brackets used in a similar program two years ago will be used again, according to Steven Reed, executive program director of the authority.

Bids will be taken from area florists on purchasing and potting the flowers. City workers will install the brackets on the light poles, according to City Manager G.W. Heppler.

The cost of watering and maintaining the flowers throughout the summer will be paid by the authority. But service clubs in St. Joseph also will be asked to donate money toward the project.

In other areas yesterday, the board tabled indefinitely a proposal to purchase insurance that would protect the authority against judgments if any lawsuits arise from alleged discrimination or errors of judgment or omission on the part of the board.

The action came after Patrick Phelan, city clerk-treasurer, told the board such insurance was estimated to cost $1,000 to $1,500 annually.

Atty. George Keller, chairman of the authority, said he had doubts whether the authority could afford the insurance with its limited budget this year.

The authority's 1977 income is estimated at about $10,400 from a two-mill tax levy on property within the downtown district. It may also receive an additional $10,000 this summer in federal community development funds if the city's grant application is approved.

The board voted to seek an interim line of credit up to $10,000 from the Peoples State Bank, St. Joseph, to pay bills until other revenues are received.

It was announced that the next meeting is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 20, at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

FLOODING IN CITY EYED

BH Asks Mall Drainage Study

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

The City of Benton Harbor has asked the Berrien county drain commissioner to determine if drainage from the proposed Pipestone shopping mall in Benton township could cause flooding problems for Benton Harbor.

City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. wrote Carl Gnodtke, county drain commissioner, asking him to study the possibilities that extra drainage from the mall into Ox creek could cause flooding and other problems downstream in Benton Harbor.

Gnodtke said yesterday he will ask the engineers for the mall development to submit a report on what effect water runoff from the mall will have on Ox creek.

The county drain commissioner can require the mall developers to make drainage improvements if the proposed system is found inadequate, according to Gnodtke.

The latest announced plans for the mall development call for construction to begin in the fall of 1977 with stores opening in August, 1979.

Although city officials have made no secret of the fact that they oppose construction of the mall because they fear it will take business away from the city, Farmer emphasized yesterday that the city's request is not a maneuver to stop or delay the mall's construction.

"We have no control of development of the mall," Farmer said. "Our main concern is that if the mall is built, we don't want to end up with problems originating outside of the city that we can't control. All we want to do is make sure that the drainage is proper."

The mall is planned for a tract between Pipestone road, Napier avenue and I-94. Water runoff from the mall would flow into the county's Yore and Stoeffer drain which runs through the mall site and goes east across Pipestone road into Ox creek.

Farmer wrote Gnodtke: "The city's main concern is that the proposed Pipestone mall complex excess runoff will adversely affect the flow, level and general floodplain conditions of Ox creek and thereby, adversely affect the health and flooding situation in the city."

The shopping mall would be located on 72 acres of land in the northern portion of the 350-acre tract acquired in 1974 by the Meyer C. Weiner Co. of Oak Brook, Ill. The 72 acres were then bought by Westcor, Inc., a Phoenix, Ariz., shopping center development company, and Dayton-Hudson Properties, a Minneapolis-based development firm.

Farmer said his concerns over the flooding threat grew out of a Feb. 23 public meeting in which officials from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) explained what areas of Benton Harbor are flood prone. Farmer said a HUD official told him that new construction in areas where rain normally would soak into the ground would cause further flooding problems downstream from the site.

The HUD flood insurance program identified land directly bordering Ox creek as flood prone and also a large area at the confluence of Ox creek and the Paw Paw river on the north side of Benton Harbor. Farmer said the increased runoff from the mall could cause an increase in the size of the area designated as flood prone.

Major flooding of Ox creek occurred on Memorial day in 1943 when 7.88 inches of rain fell in the area in a six-hour period. According to accounts in The Herald-Palladium, Ox creek surged out of its banks and destroyed a section of Napier avenue in Benton township and covered Territorial and East Main streets in Benton Harbor with more than four feet of water.

There also was flooding in the 1950s and bigger culverts were installed. Farmer also questioned whether the increased water runoff into Ox creek would aggravate health problems in Benton Harbor. Farmer wrote in his letter to Gnodtke that Ox creek was found to be the source of health problems in Benton Harbor during the past two years, particularly shigellosis, a dysentery-type disease.

Police Seek Vehicle At Fire Scene

COLOMA — Police here this morning asked for public assistance in trying to identify a vehicle seen at the rear of the Mr. Pancake House restaurant about 20 to 30 minutes before a fire broke out and destroyed the building early Wednesday morning.

Officer Edward Dill said at least three people reported they saw headlights of a vehicle behind the three-story building about 12:35 to 12:45 a.m. The fire was reported at about 1:05 a.m.

He said police are trying to determine if there is a connection between the vehicle and the fire which caused an estimated $100,000 to $150,000 in damage in leveling the restaurant at 251 Paw Paw street in the city's main business district.

A spokesman from the state fire marshal's office in Paw Paw said that while the "speed" in which the building was consumed by fire is "suspicious," investigators have not found evidence of arson.

Det. Sgt. Philip Nielsen said investigators have not determined the fire's cause, but added that it is "unusual for a three-story building to be engulfed that quickly."

Firemen reported, Nielsen said, that "...within 15 minutes, the building was down on the ground."

He said investigators yesterday afternoon took some charred samples for analysis to determine if there is any residue of flammable materials.

Those samples will be taken to the state police laboratory at Holland, he said.

Nielsen said he was told the owner and his brother were in the process of remodeling the 75-year-old building that formerly was a lumber company and an opera house.

Downtown To Get Floral Baskets

The St. Joseph downtown development authority yesterday voted to spend up to $1,000 this year to hang flowers from light poles in the downtown area.

The program calls for 48 flower pots to be hung from brackets attached to the poles 10 feet above the street. The pots and brackets used in a similar program two years ago will be used again, according to Steven Reed, executive program director of the authority.

Bids will be taken from area florists on purchasing and potting the flowers. City workers will install the brackets on the light poles, according to City Manager G.W. Heppler.

The cost of watering and maintaining the flowers throughout the summer will be paid by the authority. But service clubs in St. Joseph also will be asked to donate money toward the project.

In other areas yesterday, the board tabled indefinitely a proposal to purchase insurance that would protect the authority against judgments if any lawsuits arise from alleged discrimination or errors of judgment or omission on the part of the board.

The action came after Patrick Phelan, city clerk-treasurer, told the board such insurance was estimated to cost $1,000 to $1,500 annually.

Atty. George Keller, chairman of the authority, said he had doubts whether the authority could afford the insurance with its limited budget this year.

The authority's 1977 income is estimated at about $10,400 from a two-mill tax levy on property within the downtown district. It may also receive an additional $10,000 this summer in federal community development funds if the city's grant application is approved.

The board voted to seek an interim line of credit up to $10,000 from the Peoples State Bank, St. Joseph, to pay bills until other revenues are received.

It was announced that the next meeting is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 20, at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

FLOODING IN CITY EYED

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

The City of Benton Harbor has asked the Berrien county drain commissioner to determine if drainage from the proposed Pipestone shopping mall in Benton township could cause flooding problems for Benton Harbor.

City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. wrote Carl Gnodtke, county drain commissioner, asking him to study the possibilities that extra drainage from the mall into Ox creek could cause flooding and other problems downstream in Benton Harbor.

Gnodtke said yesterday, he will ask the engineers for the mall development to submit a report on what effect water runoff from the mall will have on Ox creek.

The county drain commissioner can require the mall developers to make drainage improvements if the proposed system is found inadequate, according to Gnodtke.

The latest announced plans for the mall development call for construction to begin in the fall of 1977 with stores opening in August, 1979.

Although city officials have made no secret of the fact that they oppose construction of the mall because they fear it will take business away from the city, Farmer emphasized yesterday that the city's request is not a maneuver to stop or delay the mall's construction.

"We have no control of development of the mall," Farmer said. "Our main concern is that if the mall is built, we don't want to end up with problems originating outside of the city that we can't control. All we want to do is make sure that the drainage is proper."

The mall is planned for a tract between Pipestone road, Napier avenue and I-94. Water runoff from the mall would flow into the county's Yore and Stoelfer drain which runs through the mall site and goes east across Pipestone road into Ox creek.

Farmer wrote Gnodtke: "The city's main concern is that the proposed Pipestone mall complex excess runoff will adversely affect the flow, level and general floodplain conditions of Ox creek and thereby, adversely affect the health and flooding situation in the city."

The shopping mall would be located on 72 acres of land in the northern portion of the 350-acre tract acquired in 1974 by the Meyer C. Weiner Co. of Oak Brook, Ill. The 72 acres were then bought by Westcor, Inc., a Phoenix, Ariz., shopping center development company, and Dayton-Hudson Properties, a Minneapolis-based development firm.

Farmer said his concerns over the flooding threat grew out of a Feb. 23 public meeting in which officials from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) explained what areas of Benton Harbor are flood prone. Farmer said a HUD official told him that new construction in areas where rain normally would soak into the ground would cause further flooding problems downstream from the site.

The HUD flood insurance program identified land directly bordering Ox creek as flood prone and also a large area at the confluence of Ox creek and the Paw Paw river on the north side of Benton Harbor. There also was flooding in the 1950s and bigger culverts were installed. Farmer also questioned whether the increased water runoff into Ox creek would aggravate health problems in Benton Harbor. Farmer wrote in his letter to Gnodtke that Ox creek was found to be the source of health problems in Benton Harbor during the past two years, particularly shigellosis, a dysentery-type disease.

Humor Is Serious

EAST LANSING — Being funny is a serious business, not only for those who make a living from it, but also for other people, according to a Michigan State university instructor.

Humor is a device for social controls, in both positive and negative ways, according to Karen O'Quin, who will teach a two-credit MSU course on the psychology of humor, this spring.

"Individuals may use humor to impress others, to ingratiate themselves, to dispose of feelings of aggression, to ridicule, to put-down, to comment, to break the tensions around them," O'Quin says.

Their methods have the validity of the social commentaries presented by columnists, cartoonists, night club actors, and such, she says.

Humor as entertainment is immensely popular and helps people forget their troubles, she says. There's plenty of evidence of this in Broadway shows and situation comedies on television, all of which are popular.

"Society has dictated the kinds of permissible humor and permissible settings for it, and the sex of the joker has been part of the rules. But times are changing," O'Quin says.

"Before the 1970s, women were not supposed to be biting or sarcastic, not if they were ladies. They were supposed to laugh at men's jokes, but keep quiet themselves. But women have always been capable of all kinds of humor, and now they're freer with it."

The MSU instructor pointed out that Sigmund Freud, the founder of psychoanalysis, made a serious investigation of humor before he became so absorbed in other aspects of his work. His treatise on the subject was first published as "Wit and Its Relation to the Unconscious."

Humor comes in different styles, she says, including the intellectual style of puns, and the often ribald limericks.

As to why people laugh at the mishaps of others, O'Quin says she isn't sure. But she offers some possible explanations.

"They may be glad that they're superior, in that they haven't fallen into the same mess," she says. "They may wish to divorce themselves from the problem. They may laugh with relief that so far it hasn't happened to them. They may laugh with nervousness."

Gallows humor, she added, such as invaded nations may use against oppressors, is a means of laughing at misfortune, to try to salvage morale and make things seem less desperate.

Office jokes, she says, usually originate with somebody nearer the bottom of the job ladder than the person being joked about.

O'Quinn acknowledged her interest in humor came early in her life, when she used it in an attempt to avoid parental scoldings and punishment.

Nonwhite Death Rates Improve At Middle Age

EAST LANSING — If nonwhites make it past middle age, the chances are much better that they'll live longer than their white counterparts, according to a Michigan State university researcher.

Dr. Patricia Barnes-McConnell, associate professor in urban and metropolitan studies, studied 1970 census data mortality statistics and found that the death rates for nonwhites are much greater than their white counterparts from birth to the onset of old age.

For example, from 20-49 years, the death rate for nonwhites is more than double of whites. However, from age 50 the differences in death rates for whites and nonwhites continues to decline. By the age of 75 the death rates for elderly whites and nonwhites is almost the same, and from age 80 the death rates for whites is about 1.5 times as great.

This turnaround in death rates at later ages has been consistent for a number of years, Barnes-McConnell notes in "The Strength of the Aged — A Resource in the Black Community." (To be published in 1978 by University Press of America, Cincinnati).

Nonwhites (89 per cent of whom were black in the 1970 census data) who survive to old age, she says, are not necessarily stronger genetically, but they have been able to withstand the negative forces in their environment.

For example, according to the 1970 data, tuberculosis killed more than six times as many nonwhites as whites from ages 25-54. The disease is less of a problem for whites, Barnes-McConnell explains, because adequate health care is more available to whites and their living and work environments are healthier.

Another leading cause of nonwhite deaths is hypertension. There is a "popular notion among white medical scientists that the well known high incidence of hypertension among nonwhites, specifically blacks, is genetic," Barnes-McConnell points out.

She maintains, however, that this interpretation is "a cop-out and diverts attention from environmental factors such as stress and poor nutrition which contribute significantly to hypertension, especially among the poor."

Barnes-McConnell points out that the leading causes of death for both whites and nonwhites are in some way environmentally or stress related, and cites heart disease, cancer, homocide and emphysema as examples.

The higher rates of death for nonwhites, however, can be explained because nonwhites are unable to escape from their more severe environment, Banres-McConnell says.

"It's amazing to me that there are any (nonwhite) old folks left at all," she says.

She believes that those who have survived are a potential source of strength for the black community.

"These old folks know how to adjust and adapt to stressful situations created by discrimination and poverty," Barnes-McConnell says, "and they can pass along what they've learned if they are active participants in day-to-day family life.

"By continually helping in the socialization of children, by telling stories, passing along old sayings and putting today's stresses in a broader historical context, the older generation can do a lot to help the younger ones learn to survive."

Shopping For A New Dishwasher? Here's Some Advice From Whirlpool

Grandmother and mother probably considered the automatic dishwasher to be a luxury appliance — nice, but hardly essential.

Today, many busy American homemakers, working women and their husbands, too, view the dishwasher as an essentail kitchen appliance that saves time and trouble.

Manufacturers have made many improvements in the design and operation of their products to offer consumers quiet, trouble-free and efficient cleaning abilities as well as time-saving convenience.

Whirlpool Corporation offers these suggesttions to remember when shopping for a new dishwasher:

Washability — Dishwashers should have at least two full-size spray arms, one under each rack, to provide the best water distribution for thorough washing action, plus a powerful central water column which directs water into the upper spray arm and then to the items in the upper rack.

Filtering System — A poor filtering system can result in the redeposition of food particles on glasses and dishes. So look for a filtering system that will continuously remove food particles from the water and then direct the water to flush the filter screen during the drain portion of a cycle.

Some units have a pump guard that traps large items that could not pass through the drain system. Be sure that the guard is easy to remove for emptying or cleaning at the sink.

Tub and Door Materials — Because of its non-porous nature, porcelain enameled tubs resist absorbing stains or odors and can more easily keep their "like-new" appearance for the life of the product. Some dishwasher tubs are made of a specially formulated polypropylene which, while strong and resistant to stains, can be cut. If this occurs, it can be repaired fairly easily.

The porcelain material that is so desirable for the tub portion in some ways is not as good for the door liner. Because of the door's position when open, it may be subject to damage if something is dropped on it during the loading or unloading operation. The porcelain may chip if such an accident happens, which can lead to rusting and is difficult to repair.

Look for door liners made of sturdy polypropylene which can resist cracking, chipping, peeling, staining, and can withstand hot water and strong detergent. Most polypropylene door liners are molded in one piece with molded-in dual detergent dispensers and rinse conditioner dispenser.

Insulation — Most eishwashers have sound insulation, but some are quieter than others. Look for a unit that has a thick blanket of sound-absorbing material covering the top and sides, as well as insulation on the door and access panel. Check to see if the pump and motor are mounted on rubber. This, too, will absorb more sound and helps provide for quiet dishwasher operation.

Cutlery and Silverware Basket — Some units have cutlery and silverware baskets that fit in the lower dish rack, reducing the space for dishes and utensils in the bottom rack. Look for door-mounted cutlery and silverware baskets that free rack space for dishes and help eliminate hazards from sharp knife points when loading and unloading.

Racks — An adjustable upper rack is important. One that can be lowered, raised and tilted offers the most flexibility in a variety of loading arrangements and helps eliminate the need for handwashing odd size items.

When examining the racks, look for high sides. This feature provides greater stability and protection for dishes and gives greater loading flexibility. Also check to be sure the rack adjustment is easy to do when the rack is full.

Cycles — A variety of cycles is available on most dishwashers to let the consumer choose the washing action for every dishwashing job. Of great help to the homemaker is a special cycle designed to give extra washing action for heavy, cooked-on soils. It is an extended cycle with a thermostatic-hold in the first wash and final rinse.

Another important cycle is designed for mixed loads of dishes, glasses, and lightly-soiled cookware. A short cycle is available on almost all units and does a good job on light to normally soiled dishes and silverware.

Many manufacturers offer the homemaker the ability to select the use of normal heat-induced drying, or switching the heater off and letting the dishes air dry. Whirlpool, for example, also offers options where the user can add water heating during the wash cycle, or add additional heat during the drying cycle. If the user wants no extra heat added in the wash or dry cycle, she can simply push the "add no heat" button.

Also check to find out how much hot water is used in the longest cycle. Usage varies in different brands from a low of about 13.9 gallons to about 20 gallons. Those accustomed to washing and rinsing dishes under a constantly flowing stream of water may be surprised to find that more hot water, and therefore more energy, may be used when handwashing than by operating many dishwasher models on the market.

OFFERS FLEXIBILITY: An adjustable upper rack is featured on Whirlpool dishwashers. Because it can be lowered, raised, and tilted, it offers flexibility in a variety of loading arrangements and helps eliminate the need for handwashing odd size items.

Shop Around — Visit several dealers and compare brands, models, features, and prices. Keep the warranty and serviceability in mind also, and ask about installation and delivery because you may save on the price of the unit only to find that these charges were not included. Weigh all facts carefully before buying a particular model.

The extra time spent in understanding and choosing a new dishwasher that's right will pay off in years of good, reliable performance.

Humor Is Serious

EAST LANSING — Being funny is a serious business, not only for those who make a living from it, but also for other people, according to a Michigan State university instructor.

Humor is a device for social controls, in both positive and negative ways, according to Karen O'Quin, who will teach a two-credit MSU course on the psychology of humor, this spring.

"Individuals may use humor to impress others, to ingratiate themselves, to dispose of feelings of aggression, to ridicule, to put-down, to comment, to break the tensions around them," O'Quin says.

Their methods have the validity of the social commentaries presented by columnists, cartoonists, night club actors, and such, she says.

Humor as entertainment is immensely popular and helps people forget their troubles, she says. There's plenty of evidence of this in Broadway shows and situation comedies on television, all of which are popular.

"Society has dictated the kinds of permissible humor and permissible settings for it, and the sex of the joker has been part of the rules. But times are changing," O'Quin says.

"Before the 1970s, women were not supposed to be biting or sarcastic, not if they were ladies. They were supposed to laugh at men's jokes, but keep quiet themselves. But women have always been capable of all kinds of humor, and now they're freer with it."

The MSU instructor pointed out that Sigmund Freud, the founder of psychoanalysis, made a serious investigation of humor before he became so absorbed in other aspects of his work. His treatise on the subject was first published as "Wit and Its Relation to the Unconscious."

Humor comes in different styles, she says, including the intellectual style of puns, and the often ribald limericks.

As to why people laugh at the mishaps of others, O'Quin says she isn't sure. But she offers some possible explanations.

"They may be glad that they're superior, in that they haven't fallen into the same mess," she says. "They may wish to divorce themselves from the problem. They may laugh with relief that so far it hasn't happened to them. They may laugh with nervousness."

Gallows humor, she added, such as invaded nations may use against oppressors, is a means of laughing at misfortune, to try to salvage morale and make things seem less desperate.

Office jokes, she says, usually originate with somebody nearer the bottom of the job ladder than the person being joked about.

O'Quinn acknowledged her interest in humor came early in her life, when she used it in an attempt to avoid parental scoldings and punishment.

Nonwhite Death Rates Improve At Middle Age

EAST LANSING — If nonwhites make it past middle age, the chances are much better that they'll live longer than their white counterparts, according to a Michigan State university researcher.

Dr. Patricia Barnes-McConnell, associate professor in urban and metropolitan studies, studied 1970 census data mortality statistics and found that the death rates for nonwhites are much greater than their white counterparts from birth to the onset of old age.

For example, from 20-49 years, the death rate for nonwhites is more than double and diverts attention from environmental factors such as stress and poor nutrition which contribute significantly to hypertension, especially among the poor."

Barnes-McConnell points out that the leading causes of death for both whites and nonwhites are in some way environmentally or stress related, and cites heart disease, cancer, homocide and emphysema as examples.

The higher rates of death for nonwhites, however, can be explained because nonwhites are unable to escape from their more severe environment.

The extra time spent in understanding and choosing a new dishwasher that's right will pay off in years of good, reliable performance.

For example, according to the 1970 data, tuberculosis killed more than six times as many nonwhites as whites from ages 25-54. The disease is less of a problem for whites, Barnes-McConnell explains, because adequate health care is more available to whites and their living and work environments are healthier.

Another leading cause of nonwhite deaths is hypertension. There is a "popular notion among white medical scientists that the well known high incidence of hypertension among nonwhites, specifically blacks, is genetic," Barnes-McConnell points out.

She maintains, however, that this interpretation is "a cop-out of whites. However, from age 50 the differences in death rates for whites and nonwhites continues to decline. By the age of 75 the death rates for elderly whites and nonwhites is almost the same, and from age 80 the death rates for whites is about 1.5 times as great.

This turnaround in death rates at later ages has been consistent for a number of years, Barnes-McConnell notes in "The Strength of the Aged — A Resource in the Black Community." (To be published in 1978 by University Press of America, Cincinnati).

Nonwhites (89 per cent of whom were black in the 1970 census data) who survive to old age, she says, are not necessarily stronger genetically, but they have been able to withstand the negative forces in their environment.

"It's amazing to me that there are any (nonwhite) old folks left at all," she says.

She believes that those who have survived are a potential source of strength for the black community.

"These old folks know how to adjust and adapt to stressful situations created by discrimination and poverty," Barnes-McConnell says, "and they can pass along what they've learned if they are active participants in day-to-day family life.

"By continually helping in the socialization of children, by telling stories, passing along old sayings and putting today's stresses in a broader historical context, the older generation can do a lot to help the younger ones learn to survive."

Shopping For A New Dishwasher?
Here's Some Advice From Whirlpool

Grandmother and mother probably considered the automatic dishwasher to be a luxury appliance — nice, but hardly essential.

Today, many busy American homemakers, working women and their husbands, too, view the dishwasher as an essential kitchen appliance that saves time and trouble.

Manufacturers have made many improvements in the design and operation of their products to offer consumers quiet, trouble-free and efficient cleaning abilities as well as time-saving convenience.

Whirlpool Corporation offers these suggestions to remember when shopping for a new dishwasher:

Washability — Dishwashers should have at least two full-size spray arms, one under each rack, to provide the best water distribution for thorough washing action, plus a powerful central water column which directs water into the upper spray arm and then to the items in the upper rack.

Filtering System — A poor filtering system can result in the redeposition of food particles on glasses and dishes. So look for a filtering system that will continuously remove food particles from the water and then direct the water to flush the filter screen during the drain portion of a cycle.

Some units have a pump guard that traps large items that could not pass through the drain system. Be sure that the guard is easy to remove for emptying or cleaning at the sink.

Tub and Door Materials — Because of its non-porous nature, porcelain enameled tubs resist absorbing stains or odors and can more easily keep their "like-new" appearance for the life of the product. Some dishwasher tubs are made of a specially formulated polypropylene which, while strong and resistant to stains, can be cut. If this occurs, it can be repaired fairly easily.

The porcelain material that is so desirable for the tub portion in some ways is not as good for the door liner. Because of the door's position when open, it may be subject to damage if something is dropped on it during the loading or unloading operation. The porcelain may chip if such an accident happens, which can lead to rusting and is difficult to repair.

Look for door liners made of sturdy polypropylene which can resist cracking, chipping, peeling, staining, and can withstand hot water and strong detergent. Most polypropylene door liners are molded in one piece with molded-in dual detergent dispensers and rinse conditioner dispenser.

Insulation — Most dishwashers have sound insulation, but some are quieter than others. Look for a unit that has a thick blanket of sound-absorbing material covering the top and sides, as well as insulation on the door and access panel. Check to see if the pump and motor are mounted on rubber. This, too, will absorb more sound and helps provide for quiet dishwasher operation.

Cutlery and Silverware Basket — Some units have cutlery and silverware baskets that fit in the lower dish rack, reducing the space for dishes and utensils in the bottom rack. Look for door-mounted cutlery and silverware baskets that free rack space for dishes and help eliminate hazards from sharp knife points when loading and unloading.

Racks — An adjustable upper rack is important. One that can be lowered, raised and tilted offers the most flexibility in a variety of loading arrangements and helps eliminate the need for handwashing odd size items.

When examining the racks, look for high sides. This feature provides greater stability and protection for dishes and gives greater loading flexibility. Also check to be sure the rack adjustment is easy to do when the rack is full.

Cycles — A variety of cycles is available on most dishwashers to let the consumer choose the washing action for every dishwashing job. Of great help to the homemaker is a special cycle designed to give extra washing action for heavy, cooked-on soils. It is an extended cycle with a thermostatic-hold in the first wash and final rinse.

Another important cycle is designed for mixed loads of dishes, glasses, and lightly-soiled cookware. A short cycle is available on almost all units and does a good job on light to normally soiled dishes and silverware.

Many manufacturers offer the homemaker the ability to select the use of normal heat-induced drying, or switching the heater off and letting the dishes air dry. Whirlpool, for example, also offers options where the user can add water heating during the wash cycle, or add additional heat during the drying cycle. If the user wants no extra heat added in the wash or dry cycle, she can simply push the "add no heat" button.

Also check to find out how much hot water is used in the longest cycle. Usage varies in different brands from a low of about 13.9 gallons to about 20 gallons. Those accustomed to washing and rinsing dishes under a constantly flowing stream of water may be surprised to find that more hot water, and therefore more energy, may be used when handwashing than by operating many dishwasher models on the market.

OFFERS FLEXIBILITY: An adjustable upper rack is featured on Whirlpool dishwashers. Because it can be lowered, raised, and tilted, it offers flexibility in a variety of loading arrangements and helps eliminate the need for handwashing odd size items.

Shop Around — Visit several dealers and compare brands, models, features, and prices. Keep the warranty and serviceability in mind also, and ask about installation and delivery because you may save on the price of the unit only to find that these charges were not included. Weigh all facts carefully before buying a particular model.

Sewing Hints

By DOROTHY KING

You have at last selected your fashion pattern. Study the entire package carefully before you do anything else. It's your blue print to easy and successful sewing.

You will find that your pattern has three main elements, the envelope, the cutting and sewing direction sheet and the tissue pattern pieces. All three contain vital information and have been coordinated to make your sewing easy and accurate.

The envelope front shows pictures of your completed garment; the envelope back gives you information about buying fabric and notions. Pay very close attention to this section because carelessness can cost you money as well as time wasted in unnecessary trips back to the fabric shop.

If you have any questions, ask the sales clerk at the counter.

The next section is the cutting and sewing direction sheet. It shows you how to lay your pattern pieces on your fabric and has step-by-step instructions and illustrations for putting your garment together. Each pattern piece has special construction markings.

Two Berrien Women 'WIN'

ADC Was 'Degrading'

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

For Elizabeth Hooks and Sally Castelluccio, receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) was "degrading" and made them feel "trapped with no way out."

"It gives you the feeling that people are looking down on you," said Mrs. Hooks of Benton Harbor, separated and the mother of four children. "I'd apply for jobs and get turned down, and then I'd feel even more defeated."

"It does make you feel like less of a person, it was a degrading type of atmosphere," Mrs. Castelluccio of Harbert, a divorced mother of two children, said. "I think a lot of women are faced with that."

That was before the two women enrolled in the Michigan Employment Securities commission's Work Incentive (WIN) program, a program that helps people receiving welfare to develop attitudes and skills that enable them to find jobs that suit their interests and abilities.

They were enrolled in the Berrien county WIN program and were recently placed in jobs as counselors with the Link Crisis Intervention center in St. Joseph.

Mrs. Hooks, who has been working for Link for over a year, said she is no longer receivin welfare and is earning $7,600 annually.

Mrs. Castelluccio, who joined Link in December, receives reduced ADC payments while she is going through the 13-week on-the-job training program at Link. She currently earns $3 an hour at Link and her monthly ADC payments have been reduced from $376 to $194 a month. The welfare payments will end when the training period is over.

The WIN program, which began nationally in 1969, prtvides counseling and on-the-tob training to clients who are referred to the program by the Department of Social Services. It also offers basic educational skills and high school equivalency training leading to the General Education Development (GED) test (equal to a high school diploma).

"We try to provide encouragement and help the clients work up to their potential," said Lee Long, employment service executive with the WIN program. "When people come into the program, they think they are unique with their problems, but they soon find out they're not by themselves and only the names, places and dates are different."

"It's basically an ego building program," Mrs. Hooks said. "It makes you feel good about yourself and gives you some self-respect."

"I guess WIN proved to me that if you acknowledge your potential and don't give up, that you can get out of that self-defeating, vicious circle, and your opportunities are unlimited," Mrs. Castelluccio said.

After the two women went through WIN training, the WIN staff found Mrs. Hooks and Mrs. Castelluccio had interests and skills in counseling and working with youth. Mrs. Hooks said children in her neighborhood often came to her with their problems and Mrs. Castelluccio had been a teacher's aide for seven years.

Mrs. Hooks was hired as house supervisor for the center in April, 1975, and was promoted to house manager this month.

As house manager, Mrs. Hooks is responsible for planning budgets, buying food and supplies and conducting counseling sessions with parents and youngsters. Mrs. Castelluccio, as house supervisor, works the night shift taking in youngsters referred to the center and providing counseling.

The WIN program in Berrien county has been in operation since 1969 and has offices behind the social services building at 1134 South Crystal avenue, Benton township.

During last year, 1,300 people were referred to the WIN program in Berrien county and 300 were placed in jobs after completing training, according to Eugene Gruse, supervisor for the county WIN program.

Through the federal government, the program also provides incentives to public and private businesses to encourage them to put welfare recipipients in jobs through the WIN program.

Under federal guidelines, employers are reimbursed 50 per cent of the wages they pay a WIN participant when they are going through the on-the-job training program. Employers can also claim a 20 per cent tax credit on their federal income taxes for employing workers registered in the WIN program.

Both Mrs. Hooks and Mrs. Castelluccio said they plan to continue working and training to become licensed social workers.

"I'm looking forward to furthering my education and buying my own home," Mrs. Hooks said. "I don't think I've reached my potential yet."

Easter Deadline

News of special worship services for Palm Sunday, Holy Week and Easter will be published at appropriate times prior to and during Holy Week.

The deadline for all such news to be submitted is Wednesday, March 23, at noon.

Damp Cloth Can Damage

Whether it's damp with water or furniture polish, the moisture will be trapped under the cloth. Since it can't evaporate upward, it may harm the finish beneath it, especially if left for a long period of time.

Wedding Flowers Should Match Attire

Flowers are the final touch for the perfect wedding, no matter what month of the year or whether it's a formal church affair or a small family ceremony in the clergyman's study or a judge's chamber.

A lovelier effect can be achieved by skillfully coordinating the flowers with the bride's outfit, as professional floral consultants do.

Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD) has placed weddings into three style categories: old-fashioned, up-dated and traditional. If the bridal outfit is from a romantic era of the past, like a gown with a high Victorian neckline, billowy skirts and large hat, the flowers should carry out that mood. Think of basket designs and colonial nosegays. A basket of daisies, carnations, mid-century lilies and echeveria has a summery look. A nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, daisies and baby's breath looks 19th century.

If the bride plans to wear a flowing hooded gown or sleek jersey style, for the modern look, FTD recommends a bouquet accented by airy clusters of yellow roses and stephanotis, with their stems exposed and baby's breath. The bouquet can be hand-held or cradled in the arm. A soft-looking bouquet of pink roses and carnations, framed by ferns, should be presented on the arm.

Flowers should have an elegant look to complement a traditional bridal outfit of lace, veiling and decorative beads and appliques. There are many choices: a cascade of cattleya orchids, white roses, stephanotis and ivy; or satiny-looking phalaenopsis orchids, pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis, or a sophisticated cascade of echeveria and foliage.

In addition to flowers for attendants, if any, a very gratifying touch is to provide corsages and boutonnieres for persons not in the bridal party.

Mrs. Hooks was hired as house supervisor for the center in April, 1975, and was promoted to house manager this month.

As house manager, Mrs. Hooks is responsible for planning budgets, buying food and supplies and conducting counseling sessions with parents and youngsters. Mrs. Castelluccio, as house supervisor, works the night shift taking in youngsters referred to the center and providing counseling.

The WIN program in Berrien county has been in operation since 1969 and has offices behind the social services building at 1134 South Crystal avenue, Benton township.

During last year, 1,300 people were referred to the WIN program in Berrien county and 300 were placed in jobs after completing training, according to Eugene Gruse, supervisor for the county WIN program.

Through the federal government, the program also provides incentives to public and private businesses to encourage them to put welfare recipiients in jobs through the WIN program.

Under federal guidelines, employers are reimbursed 50 per cent of the wages they pay a WIN participant when they are going through the on-the-job training program. Employers can also claim a 20 per cent tax credit on their federal income taxes for employing workers registered in the WIN program.

Both Mrs. Hooks and Mrs. Castelluccio said they plan to continue working and training to become licensed social workers.

"I'm looking forward to furthering my education and buying my own home," Mrs. Hooks said. "I don't think I've reached my potential yet."

Easter Deadline

News of special worship services for Palm Sunday, Holy Week and Easter will be published at appropriate times prior to and during Holy Week.

The deadline for all such news to be submitted is Wednesday, March 23, at noon.

Damp Cloth Can Damage

Whether it's damp with water or furniture polish, the moisture will be trapped under the cloth. Since it can't evaporate upward, it may harm the finish beneath it, especially if left for a long period of time.

Wedding Flowers Should Match Attire

Flowers are the final touch for the perfect wedding, no matter what month of the year or whether it's a formal church affair or a small family ceremony in the clergyman's study or a judge's chamber.

A lovelier effect can be achieved by skillfully coordinating the flowers with the bride's outfit, as professional floral consultants do.

Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD) has placed weddings into three style categories: old-fashioned, up-dated and traditional. If the bridal outfit is from a romantic era of the past, like a gown with a high Victorian neckline, billowy skirts and large hat, the flowers should carry out that mood. Think of basket designs and colonial nosegays. A basket of daisies, carnations, mid-century lilies and echeveria has a summery look. A nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, daisies and baby's breath looks 19th century.

If the bride plans to wear a flowing hooded gown or sleek jersey style, for the modern look, FTD recommends a bouquet accented by airy clusters of yellow roses and stephanotis, with their stems exposed and baby's breath. The bouquet can be hand-held or cradled in the arm. A soft-looking bouquet of pink roses and carnations, framed by ferns, should be presented on the arm.

Flowers should have an elegant look to complement a traditional bridal outfit of lace, veiling and decorative beads and appliques. There are many choices: a cascade of cattleya orchids, white roses, stephanotis and ivy; or satiny-looking phalaenopsis orchids, pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis, or a sophisticated cascade of echeveria and foliage.

In addition to flowers for attendants, if any, a very gratifying touch is to provide corsages and boutonnieres for persons not in the bridal party.

Sewing Hints

By DOROTHY KING

You have at last selected your fashion pattern. Study the entire package carefully before you do anything else. It's your blue print to easy and successful sewing.

You will find that your pattern has three main elements, the envelope, the cutting and sewing direction sheet and the tissue pattern pieces. All three contain vital information and have been coordinated to make your sewing easy and accurate.

The envelope front shows pictures of your completed garment; the envelope back gives you information about buying fabric and notions. Pay very close attention to this section because carelessness can cost you money as well as time wasted in unnecessary trips back to the fabric shop.

If you have any questions, ask the sales clerk at the counter.

The next section is the cutting and sewing direction sheet. It shows you how to lay your pattern pieces on your fabric and has step-by-step instructions and illustrations for putting your garment together. Each pattern piece has special construction markings.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Grimy Hands Or Honest Ones?

Dear Ann Landers: May I say a word to that woman who is ashamed of her mechanic husband's hands because they never look quite clean?

Bite your tongue, dear. I was married for 29 years to an attorney whose income in 1973 was $240,000. He defended corporate crooks, got them off, owned pieces of border-line businesses in exchange for his "services," and arranged for bribes and payoffs. "Mr. Fixer" dressed like a million dollars and his hands were immaculate.

Without meeting your husband I know his hands were a lot cleaner than my former husband's. He did an honest day's work with those hands. You should adore them! — No Name, City, State or Country

Dear Anonymous: Thanks for a lesson in ethics, morality, philosophy and sociology. For more on the same subject, read on.

Dear Ann: May I comment on the letter from the woman who is embarrassed by her garage-mechanic husband's grime-stained hands?

There were times when I was ashamed of my husband's hands, too, but as I grew older I developed a different outlook. Now I realize the cars we drive, our lovely home and nice clothes were made possible by those wonderful hands.

I never have to call a plumber, electrician or carpenter because my husband's hands can do almost anything. I consider myself — Lucky In Minnesota

Dear Lucky: What an uplifting letter! I should tell you that dozens of women wrote to suggest at least 10 different products guaranteed to remove all grime and grease. Anyone who is interested can check with his druggist.

Try Al-Anon

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 60 and has been a beer drunk for years. I stayed with him, using the excuse, "It would be better for the children." Well, the children are grown now and they are being treated for spastic colon, colitis and migraine.

My husband's regular routine is four cans before dinner and eight cans after dinner, before the 11 o'clock news. If he stays up later he drinks more.

He has damaged his liver, bladder and kidneys, has high blood pressure and is 50 pounds overweight. I've been humiliated dozens of times because of his drunken behavior. He refuses to go to AA and counseling is out. He won't listen to his doctor — claims beer is not hard liquor and nobody is going to deprive him of his pleasure.

ANN LANDERS

I am 50 years old and still attractive. Now that our children are grown should I stay with this man and watch him kill himself, or escape and try to make a new life? — Soft In The Head In Ohio

Dear Ohio: Have you tried Al-Anon? This is a splendid organization for people who live with alcoholics. If not, you should. Look in the phone book and find out when and where the next meeting will take place. You'll get your answer there. Sometimes the only solution to a problem like yours is to walk out.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I take oral contraceptives. My husband says that he read somewhere that women who take the pill should not smoke. Is there any truth to this? - Mrs. E.L.L., Tex.

Dear Mrs. L.:

Since there is a slight risk of complication to women who take the oral contraceptive, doctors carefully evaluate the patient for whom they prescribe them, and actively follow their patients for possible side effects.

It is well-established that the increased smoking habits of women have generally made them more susceptible to heart attacks. Women are slowly, but definitely, catching up to the frequency of heart attacks suffered by men.

A long detailed study has recently been completed by Dr. A.K. Jain, of the Population Council of New York City, on the relationship between tobacco and oral contraceptives. His work confirms the original studies done in England by Dr. J.I. Mann on this important problem. Dr. Jain,s conclusion states that there is strong evidence to suggest that the combined effects of smoking and oral contraceptives increase the risk of heart attacks.

His results indicate that women who take "the pill" should be encouraged to give up smoking. Specifically, Dr. Jain says, "Smoking should be considered another contraindication for the prescription of oral contraceptives. This may apply especially to women over 40. However, it is quite likely that the relationship may hold even for women 30 to 39 years of age."

Your husband has given you good advice. You should follow it.

My doctor suggested a course of gold treatments for my arthritis I thought that this was long since discontinued. - Mr. T.W., Wash.

Dear Mr. W.:

Gold salts are still used to alleviate the symptoms in some cases of rheumatoid arthritis. For many years, this form of treatment had been enthusiastically given, then, for a while, discarded.

At a meeting of the American Rheumatism Association, the value of gold salts was accepted for carefully chosen cases. You can be certain that if your doctor chose this form of therapy, it was done with prudence.

By Oswald & James Jaacoby

South's three-spade diamond opening showed a seven-card suit and denied possession of an ace or king anywhere with two or more cards in his partner's suit.

North was able to count 11 sure winners at notrump or spades. At notrump the 12th winner would only come from a successful heart finesse. At spades it could also come as North's fifth diamond could be set up. This made the spade slam a very good one and North bid it.

This hand helped decide the national knockout team championship of 1933 because it was bid at one table while the other table stopped at a mere game contract.

The slam failed to make. The late Louis Watson, whose death at the age of 29 just two years later deprived bridge of one of its very best and very nicest players, happened to sit West.

Louis was noted as a sound steady player. He could have made the normal lead of the queen of diamonds. If he had done this South would have found out about the 5-1 diamond break before having to do anything about hearts and taken the heart finesse. But Louis knew it was time for something brilliant. He opened the deuce of hearts. Poor South thought a while, called for dummy's ace of hearts and had to go one down.

Mental Health Affects Work

NEW YORK (AP) — About one-third of a person's life is spent working, so it pays to maintain on-the-job mental health, says Dorothy M. Saller, executive director of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses.

The group's 9,000 members, all registered nurses, daily counsel employes and see first-hand the effect of personal probelms on job performance. Self-examination on the following points might be the key to increasing happiness at work, Miss Saller says.

— If something at the office or factory bothers you, do you ever express your feelings — in a nice way, of course — to your boss? It might be a good idea to do so.

— Have you had a physical checkup during the past year, especially on your blood pressure? It could be the root of what's bothering you.

— Do your on-the-job work habits create stress for you and your coworkers? Every company has behavior and procedural norms that require a certain amount of conformity.

— Do you have the right qualifications and skills for your job? You may be in the wrong field — or "over your head" in your present job.

— What about your personal habits? Are you smoking or drinking too much? Are you overeating?

— Are you a workaholic, with no time to relax? Is your job your only interest in life?

— Are your family, social and sexual relationships in good balance? If not, they can hamper work performance as much as heart or any other disease.

— Are you getting the proper amount of sleep? It's still true: you can't burn the candle at both ends.

— Are you letting personal financial problems nag you without doing anything about them?

— Have you ever discussed your business or personal problems with an expert such as your company doctor or occupational health nurse?

Opening lead — 2 ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's three-spade diamond opening showed a seven-card suit and denied possession of an ace or king anywhere with two or more cards in his partner's suit.

North was able to count 11 sure winners at notrump or spades. At notrump the 12th winner would only come from a successful heart finesse. At spades it could also come as North's fifth diamond could be set up. This made the spade slam a very good one and North bid it.

This hand helped decide the national knockout team championship of 1933 because it was bid at one table while the other table stopped at a mere game contract.

The slam failed to make. The late Louis Watson, whose death at the age of 29 just two years later deprived bridge of one of its very best and very nicest players, happened to sit West.

Louis was noted as a sound steady player. He could have made the normal lead of the queen of diamonds. If he had done this South would have found out about the 5-1 diamond break before having to do anything about hearts and taken the heart finesse. But Louis knew it was time for something brilliant. He opened the deuce of hearts. Poor South thought a white, called for dummy's ace of hearts and had to go one down.

Ask the Jacobys

We keep getting questions about the new revoke penalty. The confusion is due to the fact that the new laws for duplicate make the penalty for an established revoke just one trick, while in rubber bridge where there are no new laws as yet. The penalty is still two tricks.

Mental Health Affects Work

NEW YORK (AP) — About one-third of a person's life is spent working, so it pays to maintain on-the-job mental health, says Dorothy M. Saller, executive director of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses.

The group's 9,000 members, all registered nurses, daily counsel employes and see first-hand the effect of personal problems on job performance. Self-examination on the following points might be the key to increasing happiness at work, Miss Saller says.

— If something at the office or factory bothers you, do you ever express your feelings — in a nice way, of course — to your boss? It might be a good idea to do so.

— Have you had a physical checkup during the past year, especially on your blood pressure? It could be the root of what's bothering you.

— Do your on-the-job work habits create stress for you and your coworkers? Every company has behavior and procedural norms that require a certain amount of conformity.

— Do you have the right qualifications and skills for your job? You may be in the wrong field — or "over your head" in your present job.

— What about your personal habits? Are you smoking or drinking too much? Are you overeating?

— Are you a workaholic, with no time to relax? Is your job your only interest in life?

— Are your family, social and sexual relationships in good balance? If not, they can hamper work performance as much as heart or any other disease.

— Are you getting the proper amount of sleep? It's still true: you can't burn the candle at both ends.

— Are you letting personal financial problems nag you without doing anything about them?

— Have you ever discussed your business or personal problems with an expert such as your company doctor or occupational health nurse?

Exercise Can Keep Your Heart From 'Rusting Out'

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking at the indolent, power-assisted American way of life, a physician who plays vigorous tennis at age 73 says: "Most of us don't wear out. We rust out."

Most heart specialists might well agree with that statement of Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of New York, medical consultant to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Exercise, they say, is a heart tonic. It helps to prevent heart attacks. It probably makes attacks less severe if they do occur. And carefully prescribed, graduated exercises are one of their antidotes against another attack.

The American Heart Association says regular exercise "is at least prudent" as a hope of avoiding heart attacks and making heart transplants or artificial hearts unnecessary for potentially millions of men and women.

No one can actually prove that exercise is protective.

Some doctors, including those who don't exercise, say exercise is not necessary, or that it might even be harmful.

True enough. Joggers sometimes fall dead. So do some tennis players. But so also do some golfers, whose exercise may be no more than a leisurely walk, if they don't hop aboard golf carts.

About half of all heart attacks occur during sleep.

"Hard work never hurt a healthy heart," said the late Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent heart specialist who championed bicycling and hiking and life-long exercise. He died at age 87 from a stroke.

At age 88, Eula Weaver of Santa Monica, Calif., keeps winning gold medals for running mile and half-mile races in Senior Olympics events. She has six medals so far.

Seven years ago she was crippled with congestive heart failure, anginal pains, had galloping high blood pressure and severe arthritis.

She followed an ultrastrict, almost fatless diet designed by Nathan Pritikin, a nutritionist, to correct her artery-clogging disease of atherosclerosis. Intially, she could walk only 100 feet before heart pains hit. Gradually increasing walking exercise was prescribed, then later she turned to jogging and running.

Pritikin says he thinks the vigorous exercise can be credited with 10 to 20 per cent of her remarkable transformation. The major benefit, he says, came from the diet of 10 per cent protein, 10 per cent fat, and the rest carbohydrates, with salt restricted, and no cholesterol.

Director of the Longevity Research Institute founded a year ago in Santa Barbara, Calif., he tells of other men and women who he reports have returned to health, some having avoided anticipated coronary bypass surgery.

Pritikin has some medical supporters as well as critics who he says will be answered soon when he publishes research results.

Cardiologists blame the soft, inactive way of life for sabotaging Americans' hearts. We ride rather than walk a few blocks. We have power steering and power lawn mowers and electric can openers. Machines perform our labors at work or at home. We watch rather than participate in sports.

Less physical activity means spending fewer calories, so too many Americans "bank" more calories as savings than they spend, with resulting bulges or outright obesity. Being overweight is not considered healthy for the heart or body in general.

"Physical inactivity should be fought as much as crime in the streets, and as a disease as serious as cancer and tuberculosis," says Dr. Zenonas Danielevicius in a recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Exercise burns calories. A really brisk walk can withdraw five to six calories per minute from the "bank." One pound of fat represents 3,500 stored calories, usually banked by the habit of consuming somewhat more calories per day than are spent.

Stockman Sponsors Welfare Reform

Congressman Dave Stockman (R-St. Joseph) has sponsored legislation which he says would "get the Congress moving on major welfare reform." Stockman's bill would consolidate jurisdiction for all welfare programs under one Congressional Select Committee on Welfare Reorganization, rather than spending that responsibility over numerous committees as is now done.

"I campaigned on the promise that I would work to overhaul and streamline the welfare mess that we have on our hands," Stockman said.

"In studyng the problem I found that one of the reasons the welfare programs are so confusing and duplicative is that they are born of similar disorganized, uncoordinated policy formulation by the Congress. This in turn is reflected in diffused and inefficient committee oversight."

According to Stockman, present welfare programs are shaped by 21 committees in Congress, 50 state legislatures, six cabinet departments and 1,500 county welfare departments.

Stockman said comprehensive welfare reform will be forthcoming only if Congress pulls together jurisdiction over all aspects of welfare reform into one committee. "Then, that committee must be given a mandate to report legislation that would do what 90 per cent of the American people are demanding: a cleanup and overhaul of the welfare system and a reduction of its cost."

The Select committee proposed by Stockman would draw its members from committees currently having jurisdiction over various aspects of welfare reform: Agriculture, Education and Labor, Banking, Finance, Urban Affairs, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Veterans' Affairs and Ways and Means. "It is my hope that each member would bring his own expertise to the Select committee and thereby ensure a more integrated, efficient welfare policy," Stockman said.

"Welfare reform is not a maybe, it's a must," he concluded. "And this reorganization bill will get to the bottom of the welfare mess by starting at the top."

LMC Offering 21 Scholarships

Twenty-one Lake Michigan college division scholarships are now available for graduating high school seniors in the region who have been accomplishing superior work in specific areas of their high school curriculum, according to LMC officials.

Worth $300 a year and renewable a second year if the recipient maintains at least a B average in his special field, the scholarships are designed to reward and encourage high school students who have shown some considerable aptitude in their special interest areas.

"This is a unique scholarship plan," said Dr. James Bekkering, LMC dean of Arts and Sciences, "in that it is not restricted to residents of the college district nor does it apply only to those with high overall high school academic averages. LMC's divisional scholarships are distributed to those who have demonstrated excellence of achievement in their special interest fields, such as science, journalism, mathematics, English, social studies, music, art, securetarial work, all areas of industrial arts and vocational education, and other special interest fields."

Furthermore, the dean indicated, divisional scholarships are awarded by members of the LMC teaching faculty in the college's various special areas rather than by some central scholarship committee or group.

Ben Standen, dean of LMC's Occupational Studies Division, also pointed out that the Divisional Scholarships are not awarded on the basis of financial need but on achievement in the high school student's special area of interest.

"Furthermore, the college wants to reward and encourage such young persons even though they may live well out of the college district of Berrien County and Covert Township in Van Buren County," Dean Standen said.

The scholarship requirements are few in number, according to Dr. Bekkering. They are: superior work in a specific high school area, a letter of recommendation from the high school teacher in that area, prompt filing of scholarship application, and an agreement that the recipients will continue their college studies in a field the same or similar to the high school field for which the schlarship was granted.

Three scholarships will be awarded by each of LMC's four major arts and sciences academic areas. They include Communications and Fine Arts (journalism, radio, advertising, speech, music, arts, drama), English, Social Sciences, and Science and Mathematics. High school seniors interested in scholarships in these areas should contact Dr. Bekkering.

Three additional scholarships will be awarded by each of LMC's three major occupational studies areas. These areas are: Health Sciences, Business and Secretarial Science, and Vocational-Technical. High school seniors desiring more information about scholarships in these areas should contact Dean Standen.

Both deans can be reached by telephoning 927-3571 or by letters addressed to them at Lake Michigan College, 2755 East Napier Avenue, Benton Harbor, 49022.

The scholarship winners will be selected by May 13. Letters of inquiry should be sent to the appropriate dean, who will transmit the names of interested high school seniors to the LMC scholarship office and to the college academic or occupational studies area concerned.

Bill Would Change Dr. King Holiday

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan would observe the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King on the Monday closest to Jan. 15 under a bill approved easily by this week by the state House.

Currently, the slain civil rights leader is honored on the second Sunday in January. King's birthday is Jan. 15.

Sponsored by Rep. Jackie Vaughn, D-Detroit, the bill sent to the Senate on an 85-15 vote would make that Monday a legal, financial and court holiday. Proponents said the current arrangement makes King's birthday a "second class holiday" because it doesn't give people a day off from work.

'Mint' Caddie Gathers Dust

DETROIT (AP) — A mint condition 1973-model Cadillac Coupe de Ville has been gathering dust for nearly three years in a parking lot near Detroit Metropolitan Airport in a dispute over a $300 parking tab.

During the three years, the car has lost about $3,000 in value.

The auto carries expired 1973 Michigan license plates which have been traced to Lease Car of America. The firm reported the car stolen in February 1973. The Detroit Automobile Inter-Insurance Exchange paid the claim, a spokesman for the insurance firm says.

In May 1974, the car showed up in the parking lot at Airlines Parking Inc., north of Metro Airport.

The parking company wants $300 for storing the vehicle, but the insurance company is balking because it says its client did not park the car there.

The parking firm wants to take title to the car as an abandoned vehicle. "We leaned over backwards to do the right thing," an Airlines Parking spokesman said this week.

The matter is now pending in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Meanwhile, state police have listed the car — loaded with options like power seats and locks, cruise control and air conditioning — as worth less than $100.

Seafarer End Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Rep. Bob Carr predicted Wednesday that Project Seafarer will be dead within a week for lack of federal funds.

Carr, an East Lansing Democrat, said sentiment among his fellow Congressmen is that Seafarer should be replaced by a system capable of doing more than sending simple coded messages to submrged submarines.

Meantime, Rep. Philip Ruppe told a House armed services subcommittee that since the people of Michigan's Upper Peninsula don't want the Navy project in their midst, it shouldn't be built there.

Amtrak Service Starting In Dowagiac Next Month

DOWAGIAC — City officials here have announced that beginning next month two Amtrak passenger trains will make stops at the city train depot, the first passenger train service here in more than a decade.

Dowagiac City Manager Henry E. Graper Jr. said the move was a result of a meeting here earlier this week with officials of the rail line. The service will go into effect Sunday, April 24 with westbound trains arriving at noon and an eastbound train making stops at 7:30 p.m.

Graper said the city has been asked to consider closing three city street crossings over the Amtrak railroad tracks. Graper said the crossings include Telegraph, Beesin and High street crossings. A public hearing will be held May 4 to consider those closings.

Graper also said the rail company has asked that the city permit an increase in the speed of trains through the city from the present 45 mile an hour limit to 79 miles an hour. Graper said he did not feel the increase would present a problem because most city crossings are equipped with gates.

Initially, waiting room and restroom facilities at the station will be open one hour prior to and after each arrival and departure. More services are expected after the city receives a state grant for rennovation of the station.

The city purchased the station in 1975 from the then Penn Central railroad for $17,500 and a grant of $48,000 has been approved by the state department of transportation pending the sale of state transportation bonds, Graper said.

Graper said it is believed that the service will be the first for passengers in Dowagiac since about 1963. Amtrak presently makes scheduled stops in Niles on its run between Detroit and Chicago.

Milliken's Tour Campaign Start?

By DONALD WOUTAT
Associated Press Writer

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken arrived in Sault Ste. Marie today to begin a 2½-day, 10-city tour designed to keep in touch with residents of the economically-depressed Upper Peninsula.

The trip has been called the start of a 1978 re-election campaign, but aides call it a resumption of Milliken's annual U.P. tours after he didn't make one last year.

Michigan politicians traditionally have tried to pay special attention to the northernmost part of the state. U.P. residents complain they and their problems are ignored. There has been half-serious talk of seceding from the state or even the United States.

Despite the area's sparse population, the U.P. has king-sized problems ranging from the threatened closing of a military base to the Navy's bitterly opposed Seafarer Project.

Accompanied by top aides, Milliken will tour several industrial plants, a state police post and an Indian reservation, visit a mental hospital and join six of his department heads in a conference Saturday on U.P. problems.

This morning he was to tour the Soo Industrial Park in Sault Ste. Marie, then meet with the Kincheloe Area Economic Commission on the Defense Department's threatened closing of Kincheloe Air Force Base.

No special meetings are planned on the Seafarer issue but "everybody figures that's going to come up," said an aide.

Milliken said Tuesday he might take the occasion to disclose the date he'll decide whether to veto Seafarer, the Navy's plan to bury a massive submarine communications grid in the U.P.

Milliken's trip comes a week after a one-day jaunt to the U.P. by House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, a possible gubernatorial opponent if Milliken decides to run again.

Milliken's schedule today also called for tours of Newberry State Hospital in Newberry, a manufacturing plant and a paper company in Menominee, and a televised question-and-answer session with local reporters in Marquette, where he'll spend both nights.

On Friday the governor will fly to Escanaba to meet with a citizens forum, then to the Hancock-Dollar Bay area to tour a dairy and the nearby Keweenaw Bay Indian Reservation.

After afternoon visits to Baraga, L'Anse and Ishpeming, Milliken will return to Marquette for Saturday's U.P. State Affairs Conference. He will be joined there by his directors of natural resources, highways and transportation, budget, labor, commerce and social services.

Governor May Not Run Again

Firing Ball is seen by some as "a simple and easy solution to a very complex problem ... and I don't see that as the solution," Milliken added.

"I hate to evaluate the thing or think about the PBB thing in political terms. And I can honestly say ... that I tried never to make my actions on PBB conditioned on the political impact of what I'd do ... I resent people who try to politicize it."

The 54-year-old millionaire department store owner, former lieutenant governor and state senator emphasized he hasn't decided whether to seek re-election.

"The questions I'm asking are, if I should seek another term, what would I seek to accomplish in those four years that I have not accomplished or have not attempted to deal with.

"What about the personal side of it? I've been in government for a long time — it seems like a long time — and it's a hard, grueling job. You never get away from it. You're never free of some of the pressure that comes from it, no matter where you are.

"I go up north to my home in Traverse City to spend a day or a night or a weekend, but I'm never away from it. My briefcases are with me, and my telephone's always there, and I never can really go away and get out of touch."

Milliken added that he wasn't complaining. "But you ask yourself 'Do you want that to go on for four more years?'".

On the other hand, Milliken is the strongest asset the GOP has in Michigan and the best chance Republicans have of keeping the chief executive's job. "I'm not insensitive to keeping the party strong and successful." But, he demurred, "I'm not naive enough to think the party's future hangs on me."

On other topics, Milliken said:

—Project Seafarer. Although Upper Peninsula residents strongly oppose the Navy's project, a decision should not be made until all the facts are known — which should be "only a matter of weeks."

Milliken is awaiting a delayed report on Seafarer by the National Academy of Science. "When the people express themselves and make it clear, then I will on their behalf exercise their will. It's as simple as that," Milliken said. A date for the decision might be announced during his tour of the U.P. this week.

"If I were a betting man, I would assume the sentiment would remain where it is. The purpose, of course, of information is to give people the chance to evaluate. The only thing I ask is that the people have it before them ... and the people's will will prevail," he added.

—Single Business Tax. Businesses did not do all they could to recommend revisions in the tax. "I think they could have been much more involved in the final decision ... I think now they will."

—Auto emissions standards. He supports delaying standards, saying the industry "is trying to meet its responsibilities in this area."

—Red Squad. On a proposal to give subpoena power for a renewed legislative probe of the state police "red squad" and other political intelligence gathering, he said: "I'm very wary of that in the interests of the right of personal privacy. I think the greatest service we can perform now is the destruction of those (red squad) files." But he said individuals should be allowed to see the files.

Tells Busing Views

tan desegregation.

"To the extent that we found an interdistrict violation, we would recommend an interdistrict remedy," he said.

On another subject, Days said he personally disapproves of social clubs that refuse to admit blacks, women and Jews as members. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's membership in such clubs while he was a federal judge and his reluctant resignation from them prompted strong criticism from the NAACP and other civil rights groups.

"I don't think there should be any clubs, public or private, that use race or religion or sex as a determinant of whether one should be allowed to join," Days said. "However, I do know about the First Amendment" with its guarantee of freedom of association.

"I really think it's a question of the attorney general's conscience and his view of what standard he should set as a judge, as an individual, as an attorney general," he observed. "I'm pleased that he decided to resign from those clubs. It's an important symbol of his determination to take the high road."

Days did not rule out the possibility of conflicts with Bell on civil rights cases. "But he's a good enough lawyer, and I hope I am, to know that when we have battles, if we have battles, they're going to be over specific cases and not generalizations.

"He's 58. I'm 35. He's white, I'm black. Our experiences are so different that I'm sure we have a lot of philosophical differences. But there has to be a common denominator, and the common denominator is that he and I both understand the law. We're both concerned about taking principled positions."

MEA Faces Threat Of Strike

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Education Association, the bargaining agent for thousands of school teachers, again faces the threat of a strike by its own professional staff members.

The 92,000-member organization, which represents teachers in negotiations with local boards of education across the state, has been unable to reach agreement with its 88 employes.

"We find it incredible that this organization wants to deprive its own staff of the very things we're asked to gain in teacher contracts," Charles Agerstrand, president of the MEA's Professional Staff Association, said Thursday.

Agerstrand said contract negotiations broke down earlier this month and efforts by a mediator to break the deadlock have failed. No new bargaining sessions are scheduled. The current contract expires March 31.

Both sides are far apart on the issues, which include seniority rights, transfer rights, due process when administering discipline or firing employes, paid leaves, salary and fringe benefits.

The professional employes struck the MEA for one week in 1972 and four weeks in 1974.

Ex-Bank President Indicted

DETROIT (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a former Newport, Mich., bank president for embezzling approximately $750,000 over a three year period ending in 1975.

U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam said the six-count indictment was handed down Wednesday against Russell Charles Yoas, 50.

Van Dam said Yoas, while president of the Newport State Bank, used the embezzled money initially for his personal use and later to cover up missing funds.

He embezzled the money by creating loans for dead men and diverting funds held in trust, Van Dam said.

The fictious loans were paid subsequently by additional fraudulent loans in a snowballing effect, said Van Dam.

He said none of the money has been recovered.

If convicted, Yoas faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $5,000 fine on each count.

WOULD LIMIT EXPENSES

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lame duck senators could not travel out of the state at taxpayer expense and pre-election mailings would be restricted under rules adopted by a special Senate committee this week.

It's NEWS TODAY In MICHIGAN

Tenants Ordered Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A mobile home park in Bay County was ordered Wednesday to evacuate its tenants immediately because the sewage system broke down and started pumping the waste onto the ground. The state health department declared a health emergency because children were playing in the sewage, which had formed ponds under and around the mobile homes. Health director Maurice Reizen took the action against Hartz Mobile Home Park in Bangor Township, owned by Richard J. Avery. State officials said there are about 25 mobile homes in the park. Avery was ordered to vacate the tenants at once, arrange for hauling the sewage from the park and disinfect the area.

PBB By The Ton

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Most of the 269,000 pounds of chemical waste illegally dumped in a Gratiot County landfill is PBB, state officials said Wednesday. An estimated 60-70 per cent of the wastes dumped by the Michigan Chemical Co. in 1971-73 were hexabromobiphenyls, the major component of PBB, the company told the Department of Natural Resources in a letter this week. The company also admitted in the letter that it dumped the wastes without permission. Rich Powers of the DNR's office of toxic materials control said the DNR and the attorney general are discussing whether to sue the company over the illegal dumping.

Survivor Benefits Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dependents of deceased workers whose employers go broke would be assured of worker compensation benefits under a bill passed by the state House. Current law makes no provision for survivors to get payments from the Self-Insurers' Security Fund, a state fund created to pay out worker compensation benefits when self-insured employers go bankrupt. Sponsored by Rep. Daisy Elliott, D-Detroit, the bill would extend that protection to surviving dependents of such workers. The bill, approved 102-1, now goes to the Senate.

He'd Lower Rates

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to lower electric rates for low and moderate users of electricity while raising rates for larger users has been introduced in the state Senate. Sen. John Otterbacher, D-Grand Rapids, said his bill to restructure utility rate systems also would provide reduced rates for commercial and industrial use outside "peak load" hours. Otterbacher said the current pricing policy "penalizes low and moderate electricity customers by passing on the increased production costs made necessary by the excesses of high-use customers."

Jobless Face Cash Cutoff

DETROIT (AP) — Some 59,425 jobless workers in Michigan who have exhausted their state unemployment benefits and are getting an average of $83 a week from the federal government may find that source cut off April 1. The $83 average payments were granted under the Federal Supplemental Benefits (FSB) program to workers between the 40th and 65th week of unemployment. The FSB program expires March 31 with both the House and Senate working on replacement bills.

'Pot' Suspect Bonds Set

LAPEER, Mich. (AP) — Four rural Lapeer people face marijuana possession charges following a raid that netted 2.7 tons of Mexican marijuana — the biggest pot bust in Michigan history, according to police. Authorities estimated the value of the marijuana at more than $2 million. Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson said an informant indicated the marijuana was meant to be sold to retailers in automotive plants in the Pontiac area, particularly the General Motors Coach and Truck plant. James Norris, 34, and his wife, Andra, 33, both of Lapeer, were charged with possession of marijuana and with possession with intent to deliver. Norris was held under $75,000 bond in Lapeer's 81st district court for a hearing at an unspecified date. His wife was held under $50,000 bond. Also arrested were Ray Durfee, 37, of Lapeer and Scott Stout, 32, of Oxford, each of whom was arraigned in the same court on one count of possession of marijuana. They were held under $5,000 bond with no examination date set.

Campground Told To Close

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Swiss Alpine Campground in Osceola County has been ordered closed, the state Department of Public Health said Wednesday. The health department said Osceola County Circuit Court Judge Lawrence Root issued a permanent injunction against the campground in response to a complaint from the department. The department said the campground had several deficiencies under its state license.

New Warden Named

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Charles Anderson has been named warden at Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, state Department of Corrections officials said Wednesday. Anderson, 45, has been superintendent of the reception and guidance center at Jackson. Anderson replaces former warden Charles Egeler, who died last week. State corrections officials said Anderson has been with the department since 1956 when he became a counselor at Cassidy Lake Technical School. He became an assistant superintendent at Jackson in 1962. Two years later, Anderson was named supervisor at Camp Waterloo, but returned to Jackson in 1966.

Wetlands Bills In Hopper

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State legislators are taking another stab at passing laws to protect Michigan's wetlands, with bills introduced in the Senate and House. Rep. Thomas Anderson, D-Southgate, co-sponsor of the House bill, said his Committee on Conservation, Environment and Recreation will begin action on the measure first. A similar bill passed the House last year, but died in the Senate Conservation Committee. Anderson's bill is co-sponsored by Rep. Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, while Sen. Kerry Kammer, D-Pontiac, is sponsoring it in the Senate. The wetlands bill would require the Department of Natural Resources to conduct a statewide inventory of critical marshes and designate them for protection. Restrictions would be imposed on many new or expanded developments of wetlands in an effort to prevent dredging, filling or draining of such areas.

Coffee Prices Up Again

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wholesale coffee prices have shot over the $4 barrier, but consumers will have to wait several weeks to find out how much more per pound they'll have to pay in the supermarkets. General Foods Corp., the nation's largest coffee roaster, increased the wholesale price of ground coffee by 50 cents to $4.21 a pound Wednesday. The action followed Monday's 50-cent increase to $4.18 a pound by second-largest Folger Coffee Co. General Foods also raised its prices for Sanka and Brim ground decaffeinated coffee by 40 cents a pound. It left instant prices at $5.45 for a 10-ounce jar, the same price charged by Folger for instant. General Foods and Folger sell more than half the coffee consumed in the United States, and their actions strongly influence the prices of other brands. How these increases will affect the supermarket price isn't yet known, since it takes several weeks for them to reach the retail level.

Saccharin Ban Protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protests by Americans on sugarfree diets are spurring a drive to alter or bypass a law requiring a ban of the artificial sweetener saccharin, found to cause cancer in some laboratory animals. The protests have prompted a flurry of resolutions and bills and raised fears by some that Congress could damage the nation's only early warning system on chemically-caused cancer if it reacts too quickly to the angry dieters. Senators and House members report receiving thousands of letters and phone calls after a decision last week by the Food and Drug Administration to ban saccharin, the only government-approved artificial sweetener left on the market. The FDA invoked a 19-year-old law, the Delaney Clause, to order the ban after studying the results of a Canadian government test finding that a significant number of rats fed large amounts of saccharin developed malignant bladder tumors. The clause states that "no additive shall be deemed safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal."

Women Still In Minority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Carter's promise to appoint more women to high government jobs, fewer than 17 per cent of the administration's top level posts are going to women, White House figures show. The figures also indicate that minority group members, including blacks, Hispanics and Asians, hold about 13 per cent of the jobs. Figures compiled by King's office indicate that women hold 26 of 154 jobs just below the Cabinet level, generally undersecretary, deputy and assistant secretary positions. About 14 of the 154 jobs are being filled by blacks, including three black women; an Asian woman is taking one of the jobs, and five are going to Hispanics, including one Spanish-speaking woman. Information on six of the top 154 jobs was not available.

Fuel Bills Up? You Bet!

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you thought your fuel bills were higher this winter, you were right. The government said Wednesday consumers paid an extra $1.5 billion in higher natural gas prices and shelled out an additional $1 billion for extra gas required to heat their homes against the coldest winter on record. A report by the Federal Power Commission's Office of Policy Analysis estimated the cost for additional gas to all homeowners was $31 monthly, but the bill was an extra $60 a month in New York, Ohio and Illinois, "the hardest-hit states." Residential heating nationwide burned an estimated 191 billion cubic feet of gas, about 5 per cent above what would have been needed in normal temperatures.

Court Scraps Obscenity Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has no authority to ban indecent language on radio and television, even if wants to do so to protect children, the U.S. Court of Appeals says. In a 2-1 ruling Wednesday, the court overturned an 1975 FCC decision against New York radio station WBAI.

The FCC's original ruling came on a complaint filed against the station by a motorist driving in New York City. The unidentified man complained that while he was driving with his young son, the radio station broadcast a record by comedian George Carlin that contained obscene language. In its decision against the station, owned by Pacifica Foundation, the FCC said it was influenced by the hour of the broadcast. It said it might have ruled differently if the record had been aired at night, instead of during the day, when children were more likely to be listening.

But in an opinion by Judge Edward Tamm, the court said, "To whatever extent we err, or the commission errs in balancing its duties, it must be in favor of preserving the values of free expression and freedom from government interference in the matters of taste." Judge David Bazelon concurred in the opinion.

In a dissent filed in the case, Judge Harold Levanthal said, "The probable presence of children in the radio audience is relevant to a determination of obscenity." The FCC is considering an appeal in the case, a spokesman said.

Parakeet Squawks On Two Intruders

NEW YORK (AP) — Before a pet parakeet was killed by teenagers ransacking a Bronx apartment, its dying screeches alerted its owner to danger, police say. A 40-year-old woman, was returning from a shopping trip Wednesday when she heard the bird shriek. Afraid to enter her apartment, she called police, who surprised two 15-year-old boys. The green and blue parakeet was found dead in a heap of feathers on the kitchen floor. "They figured it was a big joke," Detective Joseph Gonzalez said of the two youths. "When we asked them whether they strangled the bird, or what, they just laughed," Gonzalez said.

Matthews, 26, who demanded examination in Berrien Fifth District court Tuesday on a charge of breaking and entering, does not live at 537 Columbus avenue, Benton Harbor, according to Verna Ison who said she lives at that address. The Columbus address is listed for Matthews on court records. Verna Ison said Matthews was arrested at 537 Columbus but lives on Clay street.

Milliken's Tour Campaign Start?

Milliken appoints.

Firing Ball is seen by some as "a simple and easy solution to a very complex problem ... and I don't see that as the solution," Milliken added.

"I hate to evaluate the thing or think about the PBB thing in political terms. And I can honestly say ... that I tried never to make my actions on PBB conditioned on the political impact of what I'd do ... I resent people who try to politicize it."

The 54-year-old millionaire department store owner, former lieutenant governor and state senator emphasized he hasn't decided whether to seek re-election.

"The questions I'm asking are, if I should seek another term, what would I seek to accomplish in those four years that I have not accomplished or have not attempted to deal with.

"What about the personal side of it? I've been in government for a long time — it seems like a long time — and it's a hard, grueling job. You never get away from it. You're never free of some of the pressure that comes from it, no matter where you are.

"I go up north to my home in Traverse City to spend a day or a night or a weekend, but I'm never away from it. My briefcases are with me, and my telephone's always there, and I never can really go away and get out of touch."

Milliken added that he wasn't complaining. "But you ask yourself 'Do you want that to go on for four more years?'".

On the other hand, Milliken is the strongest asset the GOP has in Michigan and the best chance Republicans have of keeping the chief executive's job. "I'm not insensitive to keeping the party strong and successful." But, he demurred, "I'm not naive enough to think the party's future hangs on me."

On other topics, Milliken said:

—Project Seafarer. Although Upper Peninsula residents strongly oppose the Navy's project, a decision should not be made until all the facts are known — which should be "only a matter of weeks."

Milliken is awaiting a delayed report on Seafarer by the National Academy of Science. "When the people express themselves and make it clear, then I will on their behalf exercise their will. It's as simple as that," Milliken said. A date for the decision might be announced during his tour of the U.P. this week.

"If I were a betting man, I would assume the sentiment would remain where it is. The purpose, of course, of information is to give people the chance to evaluate. The only thing I ask is that the people have it before them ... and the people's will will prevail," he added.

—Single Business Tax. Businesses did not do all they could to recommend revisions in the tax. "I think they could have been much more involved in the final decision ... I think now they will."

—Auto emissions standards. He supports delaying standards, saying the industry "is trying to meet its responsibilities in this area."

—Red Squad. On a proposal to give subpoena power for a renewed legislative probe of the state police "red squad" and other political intelligence gathering, he said: "I'm very wary of that in the interests of the right of personal privacy. I think the greatest service we can perform now is the destruction of those (red squad) files." But he said individuals should be allowed to see the files.

"To the extent that we found an interdistrict violation, we would recommend an interdistrict remedy," he said.

On another subject, Days said he personally disapproves of social clubs that refuse to admit blacks, women and Jews as members. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's membership in such clubs while he was a federal judge and his reluctant resignation from them prompted strong criticism from the NAACP and other civil rights groups.

"I don't think there should be any clubs, public or private, that use race or religion or sex as a determinant of whether one should be allowed to join," Days said. "However, I do know about the First Amendment" with its guarantee of freedom of association.

"I really think it's a question of the attorney general's conscience and his view of what standard he should set as a judge, as an individual, as an attorney general," he observed. "I'm pleased that he decided to resign from those clubs. It's an important symbol of his determination to take the high road."

Days did not rule out the possibility of conflicts with Bell on civil rights cases. "But he's a good enough lawyer, and I hope I am, to know that when we have battles, if we have battles, they're going to be over specific cases and not generalizations.

"He's 58. I'm 35. He's white, I'm black. Our experiences are so different that I'm sure we have a lot of philosophical differences. But there has to be a common denominator, and the common denominator is that he and I both understand the law. We're both concerned about taking principled positions."

MEA Faces Threat Of Strike

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Education Association, the bargaining agent for thousands of school teachers, again faces the threat of a strike by its own professional staff members.

The 92,000-member organization, which represents teachers in negotiations with local boards of education across the state, has been unable to reach agreement with its 88 employes.

"We find it incredible that this organization wants to deprive its own staff of the very things we're asked to gain in teacher contracts," Charles Agerstrand, president of the MEA's Professional Staff Association, said Thursday.

Agerstrand said contract negotiations broke down earlier this month and efforts by a mediator to break the deadlock have failed. No new bargaining sessions are scheduled. The current contract expires March 31.

Both sides are far apart on the issues, which include seniority rights, transfer rights, due process when administering discipline or firing employes, paid leaves, salary and fringe benefits.

The professional employes struck the MEA for one week in 1972 and four weeks in 1974.

Ex-Bank President Indicted

DETROIT (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a former Newport, Mich., bank president for embezzling approximately $750,000 over a three year period ending in 1975.

U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam said the six-count indictment was handed down Wednesday against Russell Charles Yoas, 50.

Van Dam said Yoas, while president of the Newport State Bank, used the embezzled money initially for his personal use and later to cover up missing funds.

He embezzled the money by creating loans for dead men and diverting funds held in trust, Van Dam said.

The fictious loans were paid subsequently by additional fraudulent loans in a snowballing effect, said Van Dam.

He said none of the money has been recovered.

If convicted, Yoas faces a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $5,000 fine on each count.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lame duck senators could not travel out of the state at taxpayer expense and pre-election mailings would be restricted under rules adopted by a special Senate committee this week.

IT'S NEWS TODAY IN MICHIGAN

Tenants Ordered Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A mobile home park in Bay County was ordered Wednesday to evacuate its tenants immediately because the sewage system broke down and started pumping the waste onto the ground. The state health department declared a health emergency because children were playing in the sewage, which had formed ponds under and around the mobile homes. Health director Maurice Reizen took the action against Hartz Mobile Home Park in Bangor Township, owned by Richard J. Avery. State officials said there are about 25 mobile homes in the park. Avery was ordered to vacate the tenants at once, arrange for hauling the sewage from the park and disinfect the area.

PBB By The Ton

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Most of the 209,000 pounds of chemical waste illegally dumped in a Grattot County landfill is PBB, state officials said Wednesday. An estimated 60-70 per cent of the wastes dumped by the Michigan Chemical Co. in 1971-73 were hexabromobiphenyls, the major component of PBB, the company told the Department of Natural Resources in a letter this week. The company also admitted in the letter that it dumped the wastes without permission. Rich Powers of the DNR's office of toxic materials control said the DNR and the attorney general are discussing whether to sue the company over the illegal dumping.

Survivor Benefits Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dependents of deceased workers whose employers go broke would be assured of worker compensation benefits under a bill passed by the state House. Current law makes no provision for survivors to get payments from the Self-Insurers' Security Fund, a state fund created to pay out worker compensation benefits when self-insured employers go bankrupt. Sponsored by Rep. Daisy Elliott, D-Detroit, the bill would extend that protection to surviving dependents of such workers. The bill, approved 102-1, now goes to the Senate.

He'd Lower Rates

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to lower electric rates for low and moderate users of electricity while raising rates for larger users has been introduced in the state Senate. Sen. John Otterbacher, D-Grand Rapids, said his bill to restructure utility rate systems also would provide reduced rates for commercial and industrial use outside "peak load" hours. Otterbacher said the current pricing policy "penalizes low and moderate electricity customers by passing on the increased production costs made necessary by the excesses of high-use customers."

Jobless Face Cash Cutoff

DETROIT (AP) — Some 59,425 jobless workers in Michigan who have exhausted their state unemployment benefits and are getting an average of $83 a week from the federal government may find that source cut off April 1. The $83 average payments were granted under the Federal Supplemental Benefits (FSB) program to workers between the 40th and 65th week of unemployment. The FSB program expires March 31 with both the House and Senate working on replacement bills.

Coffee Prices Up Again

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wholesale coffee prices have shot over the $4 barrier, but consumers will have to wait several weeks to find out how much more per pound they'll have to pay in the supermarkets. General Foods Corp., the nation's largest coffee roaster, increased the wholesale price of ground coffee by 50 cents to $4.21 a pound Wednesday. The action followed Monday's 50-cent increase to $4.18 a pound by second-largest Folger Coffee Co. General Foods also raised its prices for Sanka and Brim ground decaffeinated coffee by 40 cents a pound. It left instant prices at $5.45 for a 10-ounce jar, the same price charged by Folger for instant. General Foods and Folger sell more than half the coffee consumed in the United States, and their actions strongly influence the prices of other brands. How these increases will affect the supermarket price isn't yet known, since it takes several weeks for them to reach the retail level.

Saccharin Ban Protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protests by Americans on sugarfree diets are spurring a drive to alter or bypass a law requiring a ban of the artificial sweetener saccharin, found to cause cancer in some laboratory animals. The protests have prompted a flurry of resolutions and bills and raised fears by some that Congress could damage the nation's only early warning system on chemically-caused cancer if it reacts too quickly to the angry dieters. Senators and House members report receiving thousands of letters and phone calls after a decision last week by the Food and Drug Administration to ban saccharin, the only government-approved artificial sweetener left on the market. The FDA invoked a 19-year-old law, the Delaney Clause, to order the ban after studying the results of a Canadian government test finding that a significant number of rats fed large amounts of saccharin developed malignant bladder tumors. The clause states that "no additive shall be deemed safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal."

Women Still In Minority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Carter's promise to appoint more women to high government jobs, fewer than 17 per cent of the administration's top level posts are going to women, White House figures show. The figures also indicate that minority group members, including blacks, Hispanics and Asians, hold about 13 per cent of the jobs. Figures compiled by King's office indicate that women hold 26 of 154 jobs just below the Cabinet level, generally undersecretary, deputy and assistant secretary positions. About 14 of the 154 jobs are being filled by blacks, including three black women; an Asian woman is taking one of the jobs, and five are going to Hispanics, including one Spanish-speaking woman. Information on six of the top 154 jobs was not available.

Fuel Bills Up? You Bet!

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you thought your fuel bills were higher this winter, you were right. The government said Wednesday consumers paid an extra $1.5 billion in higher natural gas prices and shelled out an additional $1 billion for extra gas required to heat their homes against the coldest winter on record. A report by the Federal Power Commission's Office of Policy Analysis estimated the cost for additional gas to all homeowners was $31 monthly, but the bill was an extra $60 a month in New York, Ohio and Illinois, "the hardest-hit states." Residential heating nationwide burned an estimated 191 billion cubic feet of gas, about 5 per cent above what would have been needed in normal temperatures.

'Pot' Suspect Bonds Set

LAPEER, Mich. (AP) — Four rural Lapeer people face marijuana possession charges following a raid that netted 2.7 tons of Mexican marijuana — the biggest pot bust in Michigan history, according to police. Authorities estimated the value of the marijuana at more than $2 million. Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson said an informant indicated the marijuana was meant to be sold to retailers in automotive plants in the Pontiac area, particularly the General Motors Coach and Truck plant. James Norris, 34, and his wife, Andra, 33, both of Lapeer, were charged with possession of marijuana and with possession with intent to deliver. Norris was held under $75,000 bond in Lapeer's 51st district court for a hearing at an unspecified date. His wife was held under $50,000 bond. Also arrested were Ray Durfee, 37, of Lapeer and Scott Stout, 32, of Oxford, each of whom was arraigned in the same court on one count of possession of marijuana. They were held under $5,000 bond with no examination date set.

Campground Told To Close

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Swiss Alpine Campground in Osceola County has been ordered closed, the state Department of Public Health said Wednesday. The health department said Osceola County Circuit Court Judge Lawrence Root issued a permanent injunction against the campground in response to a complaint from the department. The department said the campground had several deficiencies under its state license.

New Warden Named

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Charles Anderson has been named warden at Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, state Department of Corrections officials said Wednesday. Anderson, 45, has been superintendent of the reception and guidance center at Jackson. Anderson replaces former warden Charles Egeler, who died last week. State corrections officials said Anderson has been with the department since 1956 when he became a counselor at Cassidy Lake Technical School. He became an assistant superintendent at Jackson in 1962. Two years later, Anderson was named supervisor at Camp Waterloo, but returned to Jackson in 1966.

Wetlands Bills In Hopper

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State legislators are taking another stab at passing laws to protect Michigan's wetlands, with bills introduced in the Senate and House. Rep. Thomas Anderson, D-Southgate, co-sponsor of the House bill, said his Committee on Conservation, Environment and Recreation will begin action on the measure first. A similar bill passed the House last year, but died in the Senate Conservation Committee. Anderson's bill is co-sponsored by Rep. Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, while Sen. Kerry Kammer, D-Pontiac, is sponsoring it in the Senate. The wetlands bill would require the Department of Natural Resources to conduct a statewide inventory of critical marshes and designate them for protection. Restrictions would be imposed on many new or expanded developments of wetlands in an effort to prevent dredging, filling or draining of such areas.

Court Scraps Obscenity Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has no authority to ban indecent language on radio and television, even if wants to do so to protect children, the U.S. Court of Appeals says. In a 2-1 ruling Wednesday, the court overturned an 1975 FCC decision against New York radio station WBAI.

The FCC's original ruling came on a complaint filed against the station by a motorist driving in New York City. The unidentified man complained that while he was driving with his young son, the radio station broadcast a record by comedian George Carlin that contained obscene language. In its decision against the station, owned by Pacifica Foundation, the FCC said it was influenced by the hour of the broadcast. It said it might have ruled differently if the record had been aired at night, instead of during the day, when children were more likely to be listening.

But in an opinion by Judge Edward Tamm, the court said, "To whatever extent we err, or the commission errs in balancing its duties, it must be in favor of preserving the values of free expression and freedom from government interference in the matters of taste." Judge David Bazelon concurred in the opinion.

In a dissent filed in the case, Judge Harold Leventhal said, "The probable presence of children in the radio audience is relevant to a determination of obscenity." The FCC is considering an appeal in the case, a spokesman said.

Parakeet Squawks On Two Intruders

NEW YORK (AP) — Before a pet parakeet was killed by teenagers ransacking a Bronx apartment, its dying screeches alerted its owner to danger, police say. A 40-year-old woman, was returning from a shopping trip Wednesday when she heard the bird shriek. Afraid to enter her apartment, she called police, who surprised two 15-year-old boys. The green and blue parakeet was found dead in a heap of feathers on the kitchen floor. "They figured it was a big joke," Detective Joseph Gonzalez said of the two youths. "When we asked them whether they strangled the bird, or what, they just laughed," Gonzalez said.

Matthews, 26, who demanded examination in Berrien Fifth District court Tuesday on a charge of breaking and entering, does not live at 537 Columbus avenue, Benton Harbor, according to Verna Ison who said she lives at that address. The Columbus address is listed for Matthews on court records. Verna Isun said Matthews was arrested at 537 Columbus but lives on Clay street.

Petitions Ask For Flasher Light At Deadly Van Buren Crossing

BANGOR — Two sisters have gathered 483 signatures on a petition which seeks to have flashers installed at an unmarked railroad crossing where their brother and three others were killed when a train hit a van last month near here.

Mrs. Lanny (Irma) Fitzgerald, route 2, Bangor, and Mrs. William (Donna) Fitzgerald, route 5, South Haven, presented the petition yesterday to the Van Buren county road commission with the hope it will begin efforts to have some type of safety device installed at the crossing. The two sisters are married to two brothers.

Their brother, Harry Minshall, Jr., 23, and three others were killed and four people were injured when the van they were riding in was struck by a Chessie System freight train on the night of Feb. 9.

The unmarked crossing is located in the small community of McDonald, about two miles southeast of Bangor on CR-376 near 63rd avenue.

The two women began their petition drive because "the unmarked crossing is a real danger," Mrs. Irma Fitzgerald said.

They noted in their petition that some residents near the crossing have reported that some trains do not sound warning whistle blasts when approaching the crossing, making it a double danger.

The women also praised the Bangor township board which earlier this month agreed to contact the state highway department about having a blinker installed.

The women said they hope tneir petition will spur action "before there is another tragedy there."

The four who were killed were students at two Van Buren county facilities for mentally handicapped adults near Bangor and were returning from night classes when the tragedy occurred.

Gobles Mayor Peters Resigns; Gehrke Elected

GOBLES — Gilbert Gehrke was elected mayor of this community by the Gobles city commission last night after the commission accepted the resignation of Timothy Peters from the post. Gehrke, 45, was elected to a four-year term on the commission in November, 1973. He operates a hardware store in Gobles and is married. He was serving as vice mayor prior to last night.

Peters, 41, told the council he will remain for at least the present time as a commissioner. Peters has served on the commission since 1970 and as mayor since December, 1973.

Under the city's form of government, the mayor is elected by the commission from among commission members following citywide commission elections. Commissioner elections will be held in November.

He told the commission he was resigning the from the mayor's post because he has been transferred to Paw Paw where he is to be manager of the First National Bank & Trust company branch bank there.

Peters is presently manager of the Gobles branch of the same banking firm.

The commission also elected Commissioner Steve Krueger as vice mayor.

In other areas, city officials announced that the state's department of natural resources has approved a $5,000 grant, which the city must match with a like amount, for fence around the basketball courts and lighting for the tennis courts. Construction bids are to be let at a later date.

The commission also announced that Robert Holmes of South Haven has been hired as a full-time police officer, joining Chief Alfred Tague in the two-man department.

The commission read a report from the city's compensation commission recommending that city commission wages not be increased.

The mayor presently gets $300 yearly plus $10 for each meeting and commissioners get $10 per meeting.

The commission approved construction of a water main in the south part of the city to take city water services to a new Superior Market building now being erected.

The city will pay for some 530 feet of eight-inch pipe construction along M-40 while the market will pay for some 400 feet of pipeline construction from the main to the store, commissioners said.

Billy's Agent Rejects Parade

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Billy Carter has rejected an invitation to attend the St. Patrick's Day parade here Sunday, but city officials expect upwards of 30,000 others to be on hand just the same.

Officials said they offered the President's famous beer-drinking brother $1,000 to appear in the parade, but were turned down by his agent.

The parade, which officials call "just about the biggest annual event" in this city of nearly 50,000, will feature 200 marching units and will be reviewed by Ronan Murphy, consul general for the Republic of Ireland in Chicago.

Republican Luncheon March 23

A Republican women's luncheon honoring elected Republican women will be held at Win Schuler's restaurant Wednesday, March 23, not Thursday, March 24, as printed in Tuesday's Herald-Palladium. The March 24 date was reported erroneously to The Herald-Palladium by the sponsoring committee.

Car Prices To 'Skyrocket' If Rule Stands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department warned Wednesday new car prices would "skyrocket" if the government forces automakers to offer broader warranties for pollution control devices on new cars.

The rule proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency also could cost independent mechanics substantial amounts of business, department antitrust lawyers said in a written comment to the agency.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri attorney general's office has received approximately 13 complaints from persons who believe their Oldsmobiles are equipped with Chevrolet engines.

Two Hurt When Car Hits Tree

MATTAWAN — Two Portage man men were injured last night when their car slammed into a tree near here.

Terry Knauss, 21, identified by state police at Paw Paw as the driver of the car, was listed in sair condition at Bronson hospital, Kalamazaoo, while a passenger, John Finlay, 20, was taken to Borgess hospital, Kalamazoo, where he was undergoing surgery this morning.

Troopers said witnesses told them the Knauss car had just past another vehicle on eastbound Red Arrow highway near 26th street, when it went out of control.

The 11:40 p.m. accident remains under investigation. No tickets were issued.

Correct Salary

WATERVLIET — A 1977-78 salary figure for Kenneth Bannen, Watervliet high school principal, was incorrectly reported by this newspaper in a story Tuesday. Supt. Samuel Gravitt said the figure contained in a contract offer to Bannen was $22,000. His current salary is $21,670. The information was part of an account of the Watervliet school board meeting of Monday night.

Petitions Ask For Flasher Light At Deadly Van Buren Crossing

BANGOR — Two sisters have gathered 483 signatures on a petition which seeks to have flashers installed at an unmarked railroad crossing where their brother and three others were killed when a train hit a van last month near here.

Mrs. Lanny (Irma) Fitzgerald, route 2, Bangor, and Mrs. William (Donna) Fitzgerald, route 5, South Haven, presented the petition yesterday to the Van Buren county road commission with the hope it will begin efforts to have some type of safety device installed at the crossing. The two sisters are married to two brothers.

Their brother, Harry Minshall, Jr., 23, and three others were killed and four people were injured when the van they were riding in was struck by a Chessie System freight train on the night of Feb. 9.

The unmarked crossing is located in the small community of McDonald, about two miles southeast of Bangor on CR-376 near 63rd avenue.

The two women began their petition drive because "the unmarked crossing is a real danger," Mrs. Irma Fitzgerald said.

They noted in their petition that some residents near the crossing have reported that some trains do not sound warning whistle blasts when approaching the crossing, making it a double danger.

The women also praised the Bangor township board which earlier this month agreed to contact the state highway department about having a blinker installed.

The women said they hope their petition will spur action "before there is another tragedy there."

The four who were killed were students at two Van Buren county facilities for mentally handicapped adults near Bangor and were returning from night classes when the tragedy occurred.

Gobles Mayor Peters Resigns; Gehrke Elected

GOBLES — Gilbert Gehrke was elected mayor of this community by the Gobles city commission last night after the commission accepted the resignation of Timothy Peters from the post. Gehrke, 45, was elected to a four-year term on the commission in November, 1973. He operates a hardware store in Gobles and is married. He was serving as vice mayor prior to last night.

Peters, 41, told the council he will remain for at least the present time as a commissioner. Peters has served on the commission since 1970 and as mayor since December, 1973.

Under the city's form of government, the mayor is elected by the commission from among commission members following citywide commission elections. Commissioner elections will be held in November.

He told the commission he was resigning the from the mayor's post because he has been transferred to Paw Paw where he is to be manager of the First National Bank & Trust company branch bank there.

Peters is presently manager of the Gobles branch of the same banking firm.

The commission also elected Commissioner Steve Krueger as vice mayor.

In other areas, city officials announced that the state's department of natural resources has approved a $5,000 grant, which the city must match with a like amount, for fence around the basketball courts and lighting for the tennis courts. Construction bids are to be let at a later date.

The commission also announced that Robert Holmes of South Haven has been hired as a full-time police officer, joining Chief Alfred Tague in the two-man department.

The commission read a report from the city's compensation commission recommending that city commission wages not be increased.

The mayor presently gets $300 yearly plus $10 for each meeting and commissioners get $10 per meeting.

The commission approved construction of a water main in the south part of the city to take city water services to a new Superior Market building now being erected.

The city will pay for some 530 feet of eight-inch pipe construction along M-40 while the market will pay for some 400 feet of pipeline construction from the main to the store, commissioners said.

Republican Luncheon March 23

A Republican women's luncheon honoring elected Republican women will be held at Win Schuler's restaurant Wednesday, March 23, not Thursday, March 24, as printed in Tuesday's Herald-Palladium. The March 24 date was reported erroneously to The Herald-Palladium by the sponsoring committee.

Two Hurt When Car Hits Tree

MATTAWAN — Two Portage man men were injured last night when their car slammed into a tree near here.

Terry Knauss, 21, identified by state police at Paw Paw as the driver of the car, was listed in sair condition at Bronson hospital, Kalamazoo, while a passenger, John Finlay, 20, was taken to Borgess hospital, Kalamazoo, where he was undergoing surgery this morning.

Troopers said witnesses told them the Knauss car had just past another vehicle on eastbound Red Arrow highway near 26th street, when it went out of control.

The 11:40 p.m. accident remains under investigation. No tickets were issued.

Correct Salary

WATERVLIET — A 1977-78 salary figure for Kenneth Bannen, Watervliet high school principal, was incorrectly reported by this newspaper in a story Tuesday. Supt. Samuel Gravitt said the figure contained in a contract offer to Bannen was $22,000. His current salary is $21,670. The information was part of an account of the Watervliet school board meeting of Monday night.

Car Prices To 'Skyrocket' If Rule Stands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department warned Wednesday new car prices would "skyrocket" if the government forces automakers to offer broader warranties for pollution control devices on new cars.

The rule proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency also could cost independent mechanics substantial amounts of business, department antitrust lawyers said in a written comment to the agency.

OWNERS COMPLAINING

Billy's Agent Rejects Parade

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Billy Carter has rejected an invitation to attend the St. Patrick's Day parade here Sunday, but city officials expect upwards of 30,000 others to be on hand just the same.

Officials said they offered the President's famous beer-drinking brother $1,000 to appear in the parade, but were turned down by his agent.

The parade, which officials call "just about the biggest annual event" in this city of nearly 50,000, will feature 200 marching units and will be reviewed by Ronan Murphy, consul general for the Republic of Ireland in Chicago.

FB Official Rips PBB 'Sensationalism'

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An angry Farm Bureau Services official blasted the press Wednesday, warning several hundred farmers to "expect sensationalism from the media" in its coverage of the PBB crisis.

"PBB has become a political issue that is fueled by an active and sensationalistic press," said Don Armstrong, executive vice president of the Michigan Farm Bureau Services, a farm cooperative partly responsible for the state's four-year-old PBB crisis.

The PBB situation is "intolerable," he said, "because it is no longer an issue being judged on facts, but rather on emotion, politics, a distrust of government, 'big corporations' against individuals, farmers against consumers and lawyers defending clients."

The Michigan Farm Bureau, parent to the cooperative, called the special day-long meeting of Michigan farmers. Armstrong said the session was needed "because there has been misleading and downright false information printed lately."

sHe denied any coverup by the cooperative or the state Department of Agriculture of the problem. The co-op has spent millions of dollars to help solve the problem, including research on PBB-tainted animals, he said.

Farm Bureau Services employes accidentally mixed PBB — polybrominated biphenyl, a toxic fire retardant — with Michigan livestock feed in 1973. The poisoning forced the killing of thousands of tainted animals and has been tentatively linked to health problems in some farm families.

Deputy state agriculture director George Whitehead told farmers at the meeting that Michigan food is nearly free of PBB. In 1976, 94.3 per cent of meat samples were PBB-free, and only .2 per cent exceeded federal PBB limits for sood, he said.

For many monthes no PBB has turned up in eggs, poultry, feed, dairy products or pork tested by the state, he said.

"But this never quite seems to make the record," he said.

Alan Hoeting, director of the federal Food and Drug Administration's Detroit office, blamed Watergate for helping to create public skepticism about the safety of Michigan food, despite FDA's assurances that all is well.

"The general public, and particularly the press, has no confidence in regulatory agencies," Hoeting said.

The FDA says its PBB limit of 300 parts per billion for food is safe. Hoeting said people would have to eat food tainted at that level for hundreds or thousands of years to be harmed.

But Gov. William Milliken and many legislators say it's better to be safe than sorry and are backing a bill cutting the limit to 20 parts per billion.

Hoeting complained that Detroit and Grand Rapids newspapers did not print letters he wrote defending FDA's PBB limits and that one editor "had no comprehension of the difference betweenan exposure of .04 parts per million and 850 parts per million."

He also complained that some newspapers had not run any stories on recent FDA testimony about the safety of Michigan food.

"These are the problems we're encountering in trying to convey this information to the public," he said.

Study Shows Reduced Breast Milk Taint

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A new study shows PBB present in the breast milk of 80 per cent of Michigan mothers tested — but that is down from the percentage turned up in earlier testing.

State health director Maurice Reizen said he was encouraged by the recent tests by a private laboratory that found no detectable PBB in 58 of 281 breast milk samples. A random state survey last October of 92 new mothers showed PBB in 96 per cent of Lower Peninsula women and 41 per cent of Upper Peninsula women. Tests last year on 140 women by the same private laboratory showed about 90 per cent with PBB.

Nineteen of the samples showed levels ranging from 200 parts per billion to 900 parts per billion, the highest amount detected. Reizen said he is not sure if the new breast milk results indicate that PBB levels in Michigan residents are dropping as the chemical is excreted. "There is some evidence which suggests this may be happening but we cannot yet be sure," said Reizen.

An unpublished report by Grand Rapids toxicologist Dr. Walter Meester suggests that PBB is flushed from the human body much faster than originally thought. Meester says he thinks people who have ingested PBB eventually will totally eliminate the chemical from their systems.

Reizen said the new statistics from the private lab suggest that earlier health department estimates of the prevalence of PBB in the general population may have been too high. But he said the new test results cannot be considered conclusive because women tested were volunteers, not a random sample. Of the 229 women tested by the lab who showed some amount of PBB, 162 had levels ranging from 10 to 90 parts per billion, well below the federal limit of 300 parts per billion PBB allowed in commercial cows' milk.

Legislation pending in the state House would lower the allowable amount of PBB in commercial milk and meat to 20 parts per billion, however.

ABOUT POSSIBLE LIVER DAMAGE

Chemical Workers Not Warned

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — Workers who manufactured PBB were not told of possible liver damage dangers until nearly a year after the fire retardant was mixed into livestock feed and sold across Michigan.

Charles Touzeau, manager of the Michigan Chemical Co. plant at St. Louis where PBB was made, testified Wednesday that as far as he knows, the firm first learned of the feed mixup in April, 1974.

And Touzeau said not until after the mixup became public knowledge did he, as plant manager, learn PBB could build up in the liver and cause damage.

He said to his knowledge, plant workers making the chemical were not warned about the potential health hazard any earlier than he was.

Touzeau was the first of two dozen Michigan Chemical employes a defense attoey said will be called to testify in the state's first trial stemming from PBB contamination.

The PBB maker and Michigan Farm Bureau Services are the main defendants in a $250,000 lawsuit filed by Roy Tacoma, a Missaukee County dairy farmer. Tacoma claims loss of more than 100 animals from contamination of Farm Bureau Services feed.

The mixup that put PBB — polybrominated biphenyl — into livestock feed apparently occurred in May, 1973.

Warnings about potential liver damage were part of a Michigan Chemical bulletin on PBB copyrighted in 1974. Touzeau said he believed that material was published in June or July that year.

The same publicatio warned against allowing PBB to contact food or animal feed but Touzeau said he can not say if that warning also was included in an earlier company brochure about epbb.

Touzeau also testified Wednesday that once the feed mixup was discovered, Michigan Chemical required prospective PBB buyers to prove they had at least $5 million worth of insurance coverage on use of the chemical.

The plant nanager said he is unaware of similar insurance requirements for buyers of other Michigan Chemical products.

Peppy's Odyssey Ends Happily

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — It took four months and the help of sheriff's deputies in two states to return Peppy the miniature poodle to his Jasper Township home.

"I didn't think I'd ever see the little fella again," his owner, Rose Smith, said Wednesday following her reunion with Peppy.

"I had given up hope."

According to Midland County Sheriff's Deputy Bernard Fleischmann, the poodle was stolen from the Smiths last October.

They apparently sold the dog for $10 to a St. Louis woman who gave Peppy to her husband.

He took the poodle with him to an Army base at the Kentucky-Tennessee border. There, he gave the dog away.

He told the family the dog had been stolen, and out of his own pocket bought them a new pet.

He got the dog a health certificate, rabbies shots and a kennel and put him on a plane from Nashville to Michigan.

The poodle arrived Tuesday ight, Fleischmann said. The Midland County sheriff's department said it would reimburse Kujawa for the $81 it cost him to send the dog home.

In turn, they expect to be reimbursed if they ever get a conviction on the dognaping.

Senate Vows To Grill All Milliken Appointees

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A dispute over Gov. William Milliken's appointees to a committee that oversees public facilities' accessiblity for the handicapped has ended with a Senate committee vowing to give every gubernatorial appointee the third degree.

Democratic members of the Senate Business Committee made the promise Wednesday as the panel reluctantly let stand the reappointment of three members to the Barrier Free Design board.

At the same time, Democrats blasted Milliken for refusing to postpone the appointments and give the committee more time to investigate the board.

The board rules on builders' requests for exemptions from state law requiring buildings to provide such services to the handicapped as ramps, wide doorways and special restroom facflities.

In two days of hearings, the Business Committee found:

—One board member asked the board to grant an exemption from state regulations for a church for which he was the architect.

—There is confusion over whether the board should be a neutral judge or an advocate for the handicapped.

—The "public member" on the board uses a wheelchair, duplicating the representation of another handicapped person. The board members represent different handicaps and professions, and the committee said the public member should not represent a special interest.

Sen. Thomas Guastello, D-Sterling Heights, asked the committee to hold the hearings. Guastello charged the barrier free board was often too strict in refusing exemptions from the law.

But handicapped persons gave strong support to the three members up for confirmation, Eric Gentile of Okemos, Loton Eastman of Port Huron and Robert Schwartz of Midland. Some argued the board had not been tough enough in requiring state law be followed.

Guastello began his challenge to the members only two days before the appointments would take effect unless the Senate rejected them. Committee Democrats asked Milliken to withdraw the names and resubmit them to give them another 60 days, but Milliken refused.

"I'm so goddamn mad at the governor I can't see straight," said committee Chairman Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit. "I intend to object to all the governor's appointments," he added later, saying the committee will hold hearings on all of them.

Senate Republican Leader Robert Davis of Gaylord reminded his colleagues they had 60 days to examine the board members. "Hearings could have been held weeks ago — we haven't been that busy."

The business committee agreed to ask the attorney general for an opinion on the role the board should play in deciding disputes and on the issue of the public member being a handicapped person. It also indicated it would ask the state ethics commission to rule on the propriety of architect Eastman presenting a request for an exemption to the board on which he sits.

Persons Eligible For SSI Sought

The Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program has begun its 4th year, but Social Security officials believe there may still be some people who might be helped by payments but have not applied.

The SSI program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or older or blind or disabled.

About 5,000 people in the area of Berrien, Cass, and Van Buren counties get SSI payments according to Harry Gelander, Social Security district manager in Benton Harbr. "But we believe there are others who may be eligible but for one reason or another haven't applied, and we would like to get in touch with them," he said.

Michigan adds to federal SSI payments. People here can get as much as $192.10 a month for one person and $288.20 for a couple. People getting SSI payments in Michigan are also automatically eligible for Medicaid.

Although resource limits are the same as when the program began — $1,500 for an individual and $2,250 for a couple — the value of a home has now been eliminated in considering people for SSI eligibility. Originally an applicant could not own a home worth more than $25,000, now there is no limit to the value of a home.

Anyone over 65 or disabled or blind who has very limited resources or income should get in touch with the Benton Harbor office about the possibility of SSI payments. The Social Security office is at Fairplain Plaza, Benton Harbor.

Peppy's Odyssey Ends Happily

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — It took four months and the help of sheriff's deputies in two states to return Peppy the miniature poodle to his Jasper Township home.

"I didn't think I'd ever see the little fella again," his owner, Rose Smith, said Wednesday following her reunion with Peppy.

"I had given up hope."

According to Midland County Sheriff's Deputy Bernard Fleischmann, the poodle was stolen from the Smiths last October.

They apparently sold the dog for $10 to a St. Louis woman who gave Peppy to her husband.

He took the poodle with him to an Army base at the Kentucky-Tennessee border. There, he gave the dog away.

He told the family the dog had been stolen, and out of his own pocket bought them a new pet.

He got the dog a health certificate, rabbies shots and a kennel and put him on a plane from Nashville to Michigan.

The poodle arrived Tuesday ight, Fleischmann said. The Midland County sheriff's department said it would reimburse Kujawa for the $81 it cost him to send the dog home.

In turn, they expect to be reimbursed if they ever get a conviction on the dognaping.

FIRED FOR TALKING: Hank Bryant, 33, talks about his suspension from University of Michigan's Neuropsychiatric Institute (NPI) for talking to a reporter about a deceased nurse who claimed responsibility for the 1975 murders and poisonings in the Ann Arbor VA Hospital. Bryant says he will fight to get his job back. He also says he has no regrets about speaking out. Asked if he would do it again, he replied, "Absolutely". (AP Wirephoto)

U-M Worker Suspended For VA 'Leak'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A psychiatric care worker says he will fight his suspension for telling a reporter bout a dead nurse's "confession" to murders at the Veterans Administration hospital here.

"Come hell or high water, I'm going to stick with it," declared Henry Bryant in an interview Wednesday with the Ann Arbor News. "You have to be willing to call them the way you see them and take your lumps. I'm willing to take my lumps, but I'm willing to fight, too."

University of Michigan authorities suspended Bryant from the school's Neuopsychiatric Institute for "breaching confidentiality" after he told a Detroit Free Press reporter that a former nursing superpisor at the VA hospital confessed to a string of murders and attempted murders at the facility in 1975.

Two Filipina nurses are accused of murdering two men and poisoning seve others at the hospital during July and August of 1975. Jury selection in their U.S. District Court trial is in its third week.

'Come hell or high water, I'm going to stick with it'

The supervisor, Betty Jakim, hae been an institute patient undergoing care for extreme depression, guilt feelings and hallucinations. She also suffered terminal cancer.

Mrs. Jakim, 51, who committed suicide Feb. 3 in Sebring, Fla., was a supervisor of the VA hosital's 4 p.m. to midnight shift — the same shift worked by the two accused nurses.

In July 1976, nearly e year after the FBI began investigating hospital breathing failures and deaths, Mrs. Jakims' deteriorating mental state led her to the institute.

"She was extremely upset," Bryant recalled. "And any patient that's upset sticks in your mind.

"There is only one specific statement that I can testify to," he continued. "She said 'Oh my God. I really did it.'"

"That's a direct quote from her while I was in her presence. At the time she was making these statements, certainly I didn't, and I don't presume any of the ward staff knew that she was a suspect in the case. But, her statements (about the VA murders) were common knowledge in the institute.

"To us, though, it wasn't a confession. At the time we were listening it seemed simple and straight forward that the FBI's investigatory proceedures induced a type of anxiety-oriented guilt reaction which turned into hallucinations and delusions."

"In other words," he said, "we had no context to put these statements into. We thought the confessions were induced by guilt through the type of intimidation the FBI can run on somebody."

Bryant says he agreed with the hospital's policy on confidentially -- but only up to a point.

"There's a moral issue involved here," he said. "Two lives balanced against another person who is no longer living. I can't understand the necessity for the degree of confidentiallity."

"But," he continued, "I do not recognize the absolute necessity for confidentiallity ... They've got their moral standards and I've got my moral standards. I stand by all the statements I made."

Scrap Seafarer, He Says

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. Rep. Phillip Ruppe, R-Houghton, said Tuesday he will ask that the Navy's Project Seafarer be scrapped and will seek a law to give states veto power over nuclear waste disposal sites. At a news conference here, Ruppe said he will ask the research and development subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee today to delete all funds for the underground communications system. A site in Michigan's Upper Peninsula has been given top priority for the project.

Pilot Program Disputed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State officials have denied reports that they entered into an agreement with Detroit landlords to make direct rent payments to them when welfare recipients default on their rent. The payment plan was announced by members of a Detroit landlords' group as a "pilot program" between them and the state Department of Social Services. "There is no 'pilot program'," Lois Lamont, deputy director of the state agency, said Tuesday. "There is no provision for the state to provide back payments to landlords." A department spokeswoman said the state will continue to follow guidelines in effect since 1973 allowing limited direct payments to landlords only in cases where children's wellbeing is endangered.

SANTO TRAFFICANTE
Mum's the word

Reputed Mobster Refuses To Talk

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reputed underworld chief's refusal to say whether he knew in advance that President John F. Kennedy would be assassinated may launch a new congressional investigation into the longdebated Cuban-Mafia connection with the murder.

But the House Assassinations Committee's grilling of Santo Trafficante on Wednesday shed no light on how much evidence the panel has to support that connection.

In a session reminiscent of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver's racketeer hearings in the 1950s, Trafficante refused to answer any questions, even after he was threatened with contempt of Congress.

The 62-year-old former Cuban gambling czar pleaded his rights under the Fifth and other amendments more than a dozen times.

The two key questions put to Trafficante — whether he knew in advance that Kennedy was to be killed and whether he knew Jack Ruby, the man who killed Lee Harvey Oswald — were raised by journalist-author George Crile III in a Washington Post article last year.

Crile, a Harper's Magazine editor, reported that a Cuban exile named Jose Aleman said Trafficante told him in September 1962 that Kennedy would be killed.

Trafficante, of Miami, was one of three underworld figures involved with the CIA in an abortive attempt to slay Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in 1960, according to the old Senate Intelligence Committee.

That committee investigated the Cuban-Mafia angle two years ago as part of its probe of CIA abuses. The committee concluded Castro was unlikely to have had a hand in Kennedy's slaying despite Castro's knowledge of underworld plots against him.

In Crile's article, Aleman, an FBI informer at the time, was quoted as saying that Trafficante charged John and Robert Kennedy, the attorney general, took graft and did not keep a bargain.

"Have you seen how his brother is hitting (Teamster President Jimmy) Hoffa, a man who is a worker, who is not a millionare, a friend of the blue collars?" Aleman quoted Trafficante. "He doesn't know that this kind of encounter is very delicate. Mark my words, this man Kennedy is in trouble and he will get what is coming to him."

Crile reported that when Aleman argued Kennedy would be re-elected in 1964, Trafficante replied, "No, Jose, he is going to be hit."

Crile also quoted a British journalist, John Wilson, as saying that he was in a Havana prison with Trafficante in 1959 and that Jack Ruby visited Trafficante there.

Top Trooper After Time Of His Own

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Choosing a more private life, Col. George Halverson has decided to resign as director of the Michigan State Police to become police chief in a Detroit suburb.

COL. GEORGE HALVERSON
Taking something less

Halverson, 48, became eligible for about $17,800 a year in state retirement benefits in January after completing 25 years of service. Although he could have remained in the job with Gov. William Milliken's blessings, he chose to leave the post he has held since 1974.

"I find at this time some difficulty in maintaining the commitment that position requires over an additional period of time," he said Wednesday in announcing his retirement.

"I've had a very successful career in the state police, from my own vantage point, and I feel that there is reason for me to take something less and to no doubt have additional time for my own personal purposes," he added.

The Marquette native will become chief of police May 2 in Farmington Hills, an affluent suburb with a low crime rate. He will make $30,000 annually, a drop of $8,250 from his current salary.

Halverson will run a police department of 54 officers, compared with the nearly 2,000 troopers he now commands.

City Manager George L. Majoros said Halverson would bring imagination and innovation to the Oakland County city of 55,000. He will replace Ronald Holko, who resigned March 1.

'Miraculous'

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — "It was miraculous that no one was killed," said Fire Chief John Hayden of a furnace explosion that ripped through a church during choir practice but injured no one Wednesday night.

Carter Wows Mill Town

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — President Carter is setting out to woo diverse special interest groups in West Virginia after playing a Massachusetts mill town audience like an Irish harp.

Carter was bound for Charleston, W. Va., today and a marathon discussion of energy issues with a panel that includes coal and oil interests, environmentalists, the president of the United Mine Workers and a woman the White House identified only as "a consumer."

Later today, the President was scheduled to travel to New York where he is to address the United Nations.

The stop in the capital of the Mountaineer state was part of a two-day "meet-the-people" trip that began Wednesday with a nationally televised town hall meeting in hilly Clinton, Mass., a town of 13,500.

The grinning President, sporting a green-tinted carnation in his lapel, stepped before about 800 townfolk and answered questions for 90 minutes. He seemed to wow his St. Patricu's Day eve audience in a town where Irish Catholics make up the largest ethnic group.

Carter even was applauded when he promised, in a state that long cherished strict antibirth control laws, that a welfare revision program to be unveiled Sept. 30 will "provide a permanent nationwide system of family planning" with birth control "opportunities for those who believe in them."

Perhaps surprised a bit himself at the wild audience response, Carter commented, "I think that is the first time I have ever given an answer on abortion and got applauded." As for abortion, he said again he was against it.

He answered questions on local problems, economics and world asfairs. His only major pronouncement appeared to be his statement that an "ultimate requirement for a Middle East peace" is to resolve what he termed "the Palestinian problem."

He said: "There has to be a homeland provided for Palestinian refugees who have suffered for many, many years."

There was no immediate elaboration.

Gunman Dead; Hostages Safe

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A gunman, fleeing a botched robbery attempt and vowing never to be taken alive, shot and killed himself early today after holding a man and woman hostage for 14 hours, police said.

Police Chief Jim Datzman said he had been notified by a local hospital that Michael Guile, 31, died at 4:09 PST, slightly hore than an hour after he shot himself in the chest.

His two hostages were freed unharmed.

Sheriff John McDonald had said the gunman agreed to surrender but asked for a few minutes alone. A short time later, he said, a single shot rang out and the woman hostage, Pauline Gomez, told officers Guile was on the kitchen floor.

Authorities had believed that the male hostage, Tony Jojola, had been wounded in the shoulder during an early exchange of gunfire.

McDonald said later that Jojola was unharmed and that the story of his wound "was a lie made up by the gunman."

Ms. Gomez had not been harmed, police added.

During the siege, Guile had said he would prefer death over a return to prison.

"I'm going to die," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "I don't want to go back to prison for the rest of my life.

"I fully expect to die right here ... not that I want to, but, you know, if it means that's what I have to do."

Guile's parole officer, Lynne Atkinson, said he was released from San Quentin prison in May, 1976, after serving time for a robbery conviction. "He was stable," she said.

Guile had said he was armed with two guns and a large quantity of ammunition. Several hours earlier, he had released unharmed an 18-month-old infant, Jose Jiminez.

In exchange for the infant's release, Police Chief Jim Datzman allowed Guile to talk with his half-brother, Bob Galbraith. Authorities said Galbraith had been arrested earlier when he, Guile, and Larry Jackson fled from a holdup try at a pharmacy in nearby Brisbane.

Sheriff John McDonald said Galbraith tried to persuade Guile to release his hostages and surrender.

The gunman grabbed the hostages and holed up in the stucco, three-story apartment building shortly after noon when police stopped a car containing the three robbery suspects.

SANTO TRAFFICANTE

Reputed Mobster Refuses To Talk

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reputed underworld chief's refusal to say whether he knew in advance that President John F. Kennedy would be assassinated may launch a new congressional investigation into the longdebated Cuban-Mafia connection with the murder.

But the House Assassinations Committee's grilling of Santo Trafficante on Wednesday shed no light on how much evidence the panel has to support that connection.

In a session reminiscent of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver's racketeer hearings in the 1950s, Trafficante refused to answer any questions, even after he was threatened with contempt of Congress.

The 62-year-old former Cuban gambling czar pleaded his rights under the Fifth and other amendments more than a dozen times.

The two key questions put to Trafficante — whether he knew in advance that Kennedy was to be killed and whether he knew Jack Ruby, the man who killed Lee Harvey Oswald — were raised by journalist-author George Crile III in a Washington Post article last year.

Crile, a Harper's Magazine editor, reported that a Cuban exile named Jose Aleman said Trafficante told him in September 1962 that Kennedy would be killed.

Trafficante, of Miami, was one of three underworld figures involved with the CIA in an abortive attempt to slay Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in 1960, according to the old Senate Intelligence Committee.

That committee investigated the Cuban-Mafia angle two years ago as part of its probe of CIA abuses. The committee concluded Castro was unlikely to have had a hand in Kennedy's slaying despite Castro's knowledge of underworld plots against him.

In Crile's article, Aleman, an FBI informer at the time, was quoted as saying that Trafficante charged John and Robert Kennedy, the attorney general, took graft and did not keep a bargain.

"Have you seen how his brother is hitting (Teamster President Jimmy) Hoffa, a man who is a worker, who is not a millionare, a friend of the blue collars?" Aleman quoted Trafficante. "He doesn't know that this kind of encounter is very delicate. Mark my words, this man Kennedy is in trouble and he will get what is coming to him."

Crile reported that when Aleman argued Kennedy would be re-elected in 1964, Trafficante replied, "No, Jose, he is going to be bit."

Crile also quoted a British journalist, John Wilson, as saying that he was in a Havana prison with Trafficante in 1959 and that Jack Ruby visited Trafficante there.

Top Trooper After Time Of His Own

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Choosing a more private life, Col. George Halverson has decided to resign as director of the Michigan State Police to become police chief in a Detroit suburb.

COL. GEORGE HALVERSON
Taking something less

Halverson, 48, became eligible for about $17,800 a year in state retirement benefits in January after completing 25 years of service. Although he could have remained in the job with Gov. William Milliken's blessings, he chose to leave the post he has held since 1974.

"I find at this time some difficulty in maintaining the commitment that position requires over an additional period of time," he said Wednesday in announcing his retirement.

"I've had a very successful career in the state police, from my own vantage point, and I feel that there is reason for me to take something less and to no doubt have additional time for my own personal purposes," he added.

The Marquette native will become chief of police May 2 in Farmington Hills, an affluent suburb with a low crime rate. He will make $30,000 annually, a drop of $8,250 from his current salary.

Halverson will run a police department of 54 officers, compared with the nearly 2,000 troopers he now commands.

City Manager George L. Majoros said Halverson would bring imagination and innovation to the Oakland County city of 55,000. He will replace Ronald Holko, who resigned March 1.

'Miraculous'

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — "It was miraculous that no one was killed," said Fire Chief John Hayden of a furnace explosion that ripped through a church during choir practice but injured no one Wednesday night.

Invasion Force Moves Eastward Into Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The force that invaded southeastern Zaire from Angola last week is advancing eastward from the three towns they occupied when they crossed the border, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

"A preliminary report said the situation is deteriorating slightly," the spokesman said Wednesday. "The activity has moved beyond the three towns held by the invaders, Kapanga, Kiswenge and Dilolo, and is moving eastward from there."

He said 26 wives and children of American construction workers, were evacuated from Kolwezi, east of the invadion forces.

American missionaries still in the invaded area were unharmed and well at last report, the embassy said.

The National Front for Congo Liberation, an exile guerrilla organization which claims the invaders are its forces, said in Brussels that they took the town of Tshikapa, in Kasai province northeast of Kapanga, on Wednesday.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told a congressional committee in Washington on Wednesday that the invaders are headed toward the copper mines, 350 miles east of the Angolan border, which he said were crucial to the survival of the Zaire government.

In answer to appeals from President Mobutu Sese Seko, Washington's chief ally in black Africa, the U.S. government was flying $2 million worth of supplies — but no arms — to Zaire.

Belgium was supplying infantry weapons, ammunition and other military equipment, and U.S. government sources said the shipments may amount to 30 planeloads. The same sources said France may also provide supplies for Mobutu's government.

The invaders, numbered at 5,000 by the Zaire government, crossed the border into Shaba province, known as Katanga before Mobutu Africanized names in the former Belgian Congo. Most of the invaders are believed to be veterans of the former Katanga Army who took refuge in Angola when their secessionist rebellion collapsed in 1965. Vance said U.S. intelligence had no firm information that the Cubans who helped a Marxist movement in Angola win the civil war there last year are involved in the invasion.

The Catholic News Agency in Brussels reported that the invaders brought along their own food supplies and were not interfering with the local people. At missionary posts they confiscated radios after permitting the missionaries to send a final message, the agency said.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Ziems, G.R.I. Century 21

Most experts agree that an offer is not irrevocable. It can be withdrawn any time before it is accepted. If you arrange to have a preliminary offer for a purchase contract, one of its good points is that it usually provides that the seller is to have a certain period of time within which to accept the offer — three, five, seven, or ten days. The prospective buyer is not bound to keep his offer open for the designed period of time. He can withdraw the offer any time, if the seller does not accept.

Whether you are buying or selling property, you can rely on the knowledgeable people at CENTURY 21, ZIEMS RED CARPET REALTORS, 4140 South M-139, 429-1518 to handle all the details for you with expertise. Carter Wows Mill Town

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — President Carter is setting out to woo diverse special interest groups in West Virginia after playing a Massachusetts mill town audience like an Irish harp.

Carter was bound for Charleston, W. Va., today and a marathon discussion of energy issues with a panel that includes coal and oil interests, environmentalists, the president of the United Mine Workers and a woman the White House identified only as "a consumer."

Later today, the President was scheduled to travel to New York where he is to address the United Nations.

The stop in the capital of the Mountaineer state was part of a two-day "meet-the-people" trip that began Wednesday with a nationally televised town hall meeting in hilly Clinton, Mass., a town of 13,500.

The grinning President, sporting a green-tinted carnation in his lapel, stepped before about 800 townfolk and answered questions for 90 minutes. He seemed to wow his St. Patrick's Day eve audience in a town where Irish Catholics make up the largest ethnic group.

Carter even was applauded when he promised, in a state that long cherished strict antibirth control laws, that a welfare revision program to be unveiled Sept. 30 will "provide a permanent nationwide system of family planning" with birth control "opportunities for those who believe in them."

Perhaps surprised a bit himself at the wild audience response, Carter commented, "I think that is the first time I have ever given an answer on abortion and got applauded." As for abortion, he said again he was against it.

He answered questions on local problems, economics and world asfairs. His only major pronouncement appeared to be his statement that an "ultimate requirement for a Middle East peace" is to resolve what he termed "the Palestinian problem."

He said: "There has to be a homeland provided for Palestinian refugees who have suffered for many, many years."

There was no immediate elaboration.

Gunman Dead; Hostages Safe

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A gunman, fleeing a botched robbery attempt and vowing never to be taken alive, shot and killed himself early today after holding a man and woman hostage for 14 hours, police said.

Police Chief Jim Datzman said he had been notified by a local hospital that Michael Guile, 31, died at 4:09 PST, slightly more than an hour after he shot himself in the chest.

His two hostages were freed unharmed.

Sheriff John McDonald had said the gunman agreed to surrender but asked for a few minutes alone. A short time later, he said, a single shot rang out and the woman hostage, Pauline Gomez, told officers Guile was on the kitchen floor.

Authorities had believed that the male hostage, Tony Jojola, had been wounded in the shoulder during an early exchange of gunfire.

McDonald said later that Jojola was unharmed and that the story of his wound "was a lie made up by the gunman."

Ms. Gomez had not been harmed, police added.

During the siege, Guile had said he would prefer death over a return to prison.

"I'm going to die," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "I don't want to go back to prison for the rest of my life.

"I fully expect to die right here ... not that I want to, but, you know, if it means that's what I have to do."

Guile's parole officer, Lynne Atkinson, said he was released from San Quentin prison in May, 1976, after serving time for a robbery conviction. "He was stable," she said.

Guile had said he was armed with two guns and a large quantity of ammunition. Several hours earlier, he had released unharmed an 18-month-old infant, Jose Jiminez.

In exchange for the infant's release, Police Chief Jim Datzman allowed Guile to talk with his half-brother, Bob Galbraith. Authorities said Galbraith had been arrested earlier when he, Guile, and Larry Jackson fled from a holdup try at a pharmacy in nearby Brisbane.

Sheriff John McDonald said Galbraith tried to persuade Guile to release his hostages and surrender.

The gunman grabbed the hostages and holed up in the stucco, three-story apartment building shortly after noon when police stopped a car containing the three robbery suspects.

Invasion Force Moves Eastward Into Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The force that invaded southeastern Zaire from Angola last week is advancing eastward from the three towns they occupied when they crossed the border, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

"A preliminary report said the situation is deteriorating slightly," the spokesman said Wednesday. "The activity has moved beyond the three towns held by the invaders, Kapanga, Kiswenge and Dilolo, and is moving eastward from there."

He said 26 wives and children of American construction workers, were evacuated from Kolwezi, east of the invadion forces.

American missionaries still in the invaded area were unharmed and well at last report, the embassy said.

The National Front for Congo Liberation, an exile guerrilla organization which claims the invaders are its forces, said in Brussels that they took the town of Tshikapa, in Kasai province northeast of Kapanga, on Wednesday.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance told a congressional committee in Washington on Wednesday that the invaders are headed toward the copper mines, 350 miles east of the Angolan border, which he said were crucial to the survival of the Zaire government.

In answer to appeals from President Mobutu Sese Seko, Washington's chief ally in black Africa, the U.S. government was flying $2 million worth of supplies — but no arms — to Zaire.

Belgium was supplying infantry weapons, ammunition and other military equipment, and U.S. government sources said the shipments may amount to 30 planeloads. The same sources said France may also provide supplies for Mobutu's government.

The invaders, numbered at 5,000 by the Zaire government, crossed the border into Shaba province, known as Katanga before Mobutu Africanized names in the former Belgian Congo. Most of the invaders are believed to be veterans of the former Katanga Army who took refuge in Angola when their secessionist rebellion collapsed in 1965. Vance said U.S. intelligence had no firm information that the Cubans who helped a Marxist movement in Angola win the civil war there last year are involved in the invasion.

The Catholic News Agency in Brussels reported that the invaders brought along their own food supplies and were not interfering with the local people. At missionary posts they confiscated radios after permitting the missionaries to send a final message, the agency said.

Gobles-Kendall Red Cross Fund Drive To Start

GOBLES — The Van Buren county Red Cross will conduct a fund drive throughout the Gobles-Kendall area beginning Monday, March 21, according to Mrs. Jack (Mary) Purcell, drive chairman.

There will be a door-to-door canvass, but anyone wishing to donate may call Mrs. Purcell. The area's Community Chest drive for the needy used to donate to the Red Cross, but that drive has been eliminated, Mrs. Purcell said.

Most experts agree that an offer is not irrevocable. It can be withdrawn any time before it is accepted. If you arrange to have a preliminary offer for a purchase contract, one of its good points is that it usually provides that the seller is to have a certain period of time within which to accept the offer — three, five, seven, or ten days. The prospective buyer is not bound to keep his offer open for the designed period of time. He can withdraw the offer any time, if the seller does not accept.

TED LINDSAY

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lindsay was a brash, free-wheeling hockey player who usually got his own way while earning the nickname "Terrible Teddy" during his 17 years in the National Hockey League.

Lindsay, who was named Wednesday to replace Alex Delvecchio as general manager of the Detroit Red Wings, is still getting his way. He was offered the GM post 10 years ago but turned it down.

"(Club owner Bruce) Norris has given me full authority," Lindsay said Wednesday. "That was one of the things that kept us apart in the past. There's only one boss and that's me."

The 51-year-old former Red Wings' great, who still looks like he could play, admitted he has his work cut out for him in the quest to bring Detroit back to NHL respectibility.

"I still believe Detroit is the best franchise in the NHL," Lindsay said. "Its easy to be a hockey fan in Montreal, but Detroit fans have been very loyal."

Lindsay discounted claims the club was losing fans because of Olympia Stadium's location in Detroit's inner-city.

"The location of this building doesn't mean a thing," he told newsmen. "I'll guarantee you the fans would pack this place every game if they had a winning team."

Lindsay said his first job would be to scour the minor and amateur leagues in search of talented hockey players.

He didn't discount the possibility of luring the Howe family back to the Motor City, either, but said nothing was firm.

"Gordie and I roomed together 12 years," Lindsay said. "I would like him to be a part of my organization. It is up to them, though, whether they're going to be here next year."

Lindsay said he was mildly annoyed at published reports that Mark Howe would rather play in Boston, should the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros fold, because he didn't like Detroit as a city.

Lindsay also said he disliked everything about the WHA and blamed the rival league for the sorry state of big league hockey today.

"I've always been against the WHA," he said. "I don't drink much, but I'll get drunk when they fold.

"I'd like to see about six teams in the NHL fold, too," he added, noting that expansion has left the league woefully short of talent.

He admitted he faces an uphill battle with the Red Wings but insisted he was the man for the job.

"I'm a positive, disciplined individual," Lindsay said. "I had to work at it when I was a player. Alex (Delvecchio) could just show up and do it, but I never could."

The Red Wings, who have not qualified for post-season play since the 1969-70 season, are the worst team in the NHL this season. They currently are 16-45-9 in the Norris Division and recently became the first team in the league to be mathematically eliminated from the playoffs this season.

"Some players have been stealing money and not putting out," Lindsay said. "You still can't cheat the public."

'M'-DETROIT COLLIDE TONIGHT

All Eyes Face Lexington

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Both coaches agree the eyes of an entire state will be turned toward Lexington tonight when No. 12 Detroit, relatively new to basketball, takes on the veterans of top-ranked Michigan in the NCAA Mideast Regional semifinals.

Friends have called Detroit Coach Dick Vitale from all over the country with advice on how his Titans should approach the David-and-Goliath matchup with the overwhelming Wolverines.

"They've given me all kinds of suggestions and strategies," Vitale said Wednesday, a day of workouts at Lexington's Rupp Arena.

"But they didn't give me the one thing that's needed — a seven-foot tree to play the center," he said.

Vitale said the 8:15 p.m. EST Michigan-Detroit game, following the 5:37 opener between Syracuse and North Carolina-Charlotte, will be "like Chuck Wepner fighting Mohammad Ali."

"We're the underdog fighting the large national school. They have the million-dollar sports program," he said.

But Vitale, who went to work at Detroit four years ago, said the Titans, too, "have developed a pretty good basketball program."

The game will be telecast over Channel 5 (Chicago) and Channel 8 (Grand Rapids.

And since the two teams never meet during the regular season — and Michigan says it is booked up through 1980 — the post-season meeting "has created quite a storm in the state of Michigan," Vitale said.

"Particularly in Detroit. Basketball fever has run rampant in the city," he said. "We had 500 or 600 fans four years ago and now we're playing for packed houses."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr agreed few Michigan residents are likely to ignore the contest. Orr called it "the greatest game for fan interest in our state's history."

Michigan comes from seven straight wins, including victories over Purdue, Marquette and Holy Cross. Detroit has lost two of its last four games. Each school has a 25-3 record.

Vitale had no intention of going to the Michigan workout. "I'd rather not watch. I'm a nervous wreck already," he said.

It's not the opposing coach who makes him nervous, he said, "I'm not staying awake worrying about Johnny Orr. I'm worrying about the slam dunk of Phil Hubbard and the speed of Ricky Green."

The Wolverines, he admitted, "are very capable of beating us by 20 or 30 points. They know how to win and they know what it is."

Vitale said he's counting heavily on John Long, a good outside scorer who averages 20.5 points, and 6-7 Terry Tyler, "a great jumper," but will need "a solid performance out of all our players."

"We came to give 110 per cent," he said.

The opening game opponents — 6th-ranked Syracuse and North Carolina-Charlotte, ranked 17th — each have 26-3 records.

Syracuse has won seven straight and 18 of its last 19, including victories over Tennessee and Louisville. The Orangemen have a size advantage, mostly because of 6-11 freshman Roosevelt Bouie.

UNCC Coach Lee Rose said that after winning the Sun Belt Conference tourney last week and beating Central Michigan 81-86 in overtime in the first round of the NCAA Mideast regional, his team already deserves an award — "the Purple Heart.

"Syracuse is big and strong and has guards quicker than mosquitoes," Rose said.

He hopes he has an answer in the talents of center Cedric (Cornbread) Maxwell, who averages 22 points and 12 rebounds and is the 16th best rebounder in the nation.

Bulls' Win Over Pistons Improves Playoff Hopes

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Less than four weeks remain in the regular season, and the chances for teams to make up ground and improve their standing for the National Basketball Association playoffs — or make the playoffs at all — are growing fewer and fewer.

"Every game now is a must for us," said Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger, whose team continued its amazing uphill struggle with a 104-97 decision over the Detroit Pistons Wednesday night.

The Bulls, who at one point this season were 2-14, now are within one game of the .500 mark at 34-35. They have won five in a row on the road, 10 of their last 11 and are within three games of idle Kansas City — which has won six in a row — in the race for the final playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Chicago entertains Kansas City Friday night in another of those "must" games.

Detroit, meanwhile, wasted an opportunity to pull within two games of first-place Denver in the Midwest Division. That is important because each division winner receives a bye in the first round of the playoffs.

Herb Brown, the Detroit coach, wasn't making any excuses: "We got off to a terrible start, and that set the tempo for the game." The Pistons managed only 17 points in the first quarter for their poorest start of the season.

"We worked hard to get the tie" at 87-all with 3:42 left in the game, Brown said, "but then we didn't execute well at all."

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Washington Bullets 100-96, the Phoenix Suns beat the New York Knicks 124-91, the Indiana Pacers defeated the Denver Nuggets 109-98, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Atlanta Hawks 109-100 and the Houston Rockets beat the New York Nets 100-86.

Artis Gilmore's three-point play started a nine-point run for the Bulls late in the fourth period that proved decisive after Detroit had erased a 10-point deficit and pulled even 87-87 with 3:42 to go.

After Gilmore's three-pointer, Mickey Johnson scored a basket, then Scott May and Wilbur Holland sank two free throws apiece.

The Bulls got 26 points from Holland, 22 points from May and 13 points and 14 rebounds from Gilmore. Marvin Barnes paced the Pistons with 27 points.

Seattle remained in the thick of the Western Conference playoff scramble by beating the Bullets and climbing to .500 and pulling within 2½ games of Kansas City. Slick Watts scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half and had 11 assists for the Sonics.

Phoenix snapped a 12-game losing streak by jumping ahead 30-20 in the first period and romping past the Knicks. Paul Westphal led the Suns with 23 points.

Indiana outscored Denver 15-3 in a four-minute stretch midway through the second half in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Philadelphia pulled away from a 95-95 tie with Atlanta by scoring 10 straight points late in the fourth quarter, Julius Erving hitting three baskets in the burst.

Rudy Tomjanovich scored 36 points as Houston posted its eighth straight victory, increasing its lead over Washington in the Central Division to three games.

Korab, Hextall Suspended

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Jerry Korab of the Buffalo Sabres was suspended for three games and Detroit Red Wings center Dennis Hextall was suspended for two by National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell as a result of a stick-swinging incident.

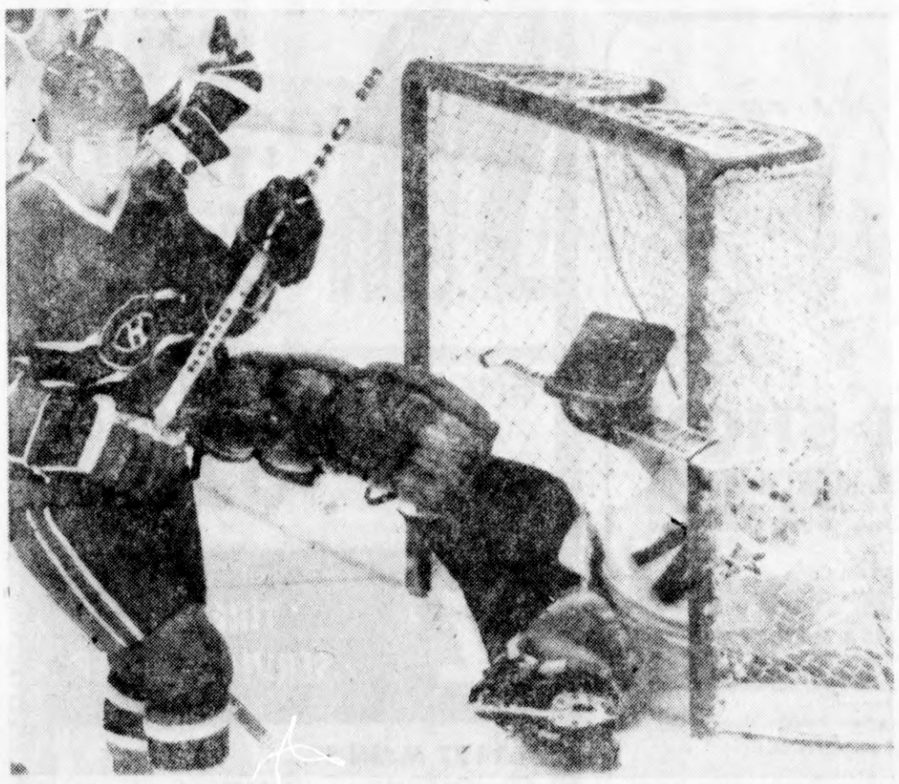
It happened during a March 9 game in Buffalo won 6-3 by the Sabres. Korab hit Hextall on the side of the head with his stick — which first hit linesman Leon Stickle on the shoulder. Hextall retaliated by swinging his stick and hitting Korab on the side of his helmet.

Campbell noted the only injury was Stickle's severely bruised shoulder.

"However, the potential injury to others was substantial ... I am satisfied it was primarily the actions of Korab which precipitated the incident and without his unprovoked intevention, nothing untoward would have happened," Campbell said. "Therefore, this creates the differential in responsibility which is reflected in the penalties."

Each player will be suspended without pay through games of March 20 and must pay the automatic $200 fine which accompanies the match penalty each received at the time.

Imlach insisted: "If there had been a seasoned official instead of a rookie, (referee Alf Lejeune) there would have been no match penalties," then said of Campbell: "If he is incapable of proper decisions, he is getting too old and it's bloody well time he should quit."



AND GOALIE MAKES TWO. Minnesota North Stars goalie Pete LoPresti wound up in the net along with the puck Wednesday night as Montreal Canadiens Steve Shutt, left, scored the first goal in NHL action. Montreal won 5-2. (AP Wirephoto)

A's, Pirates Make Another Big Trade

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and Oakland A's, who last winter made a trade involving a manager, a catcher and $100,000, have made another multi-faceted swap.

The trade, completed 15 minutes before the inter-league trading deadline, was simple enough on paper: six players from the Pirates for three from Oakland. But there were more complex implications.

For example, the 27-year-old Garner, who batted .261 as a second baseman last season, will be moved to third base by Pittsburgh.

That apparently scraps the Pirates' brief spring experiment at third with veteran utility man Bill Robinson, who worked hard all offseason with an eye toward a starting job.

"I'm very down right now," Robinson said Wednesday morning after he and the other Pirates learned of the deal, completed at 2:45 a.m. West Coast time. "I'd have to be a darn fool to have high hopes of playing third base now," Robinson added.

And there's more to the deal made by Oakland owner Charley Finley and new Pirate Vice President Harding Peterson. They're the same two who made the offseason swap that sent Pirate catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000 to the A's for current Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner.

For one thing, Medich was recently graduated from the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. He'd planned to be his residency in surgery in Pittsburgh during the offseason and whether he'll report to Oakland is uncertain. He may retire from baseball.

"If he quits, he quits," Finley said in Oakland. "To be honest, I still think it's one of the best deals we've ever made. I now think we're definitely a contender for the division championship."

It also is uncertain whether Giusti will report to the A's. As a 10-year veteran with five years with the same club, he must give his consent.

If he doesn't, the Pirates will compensate the A's with another player.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Giusti said Wednesday after pitching two scoreless innings against Detroit. "I would like to know a little more about things in Oakland and the American League. If I had my 'druthers, I'd rather pitch in the National League."

The players Pittsburgh sent to the A's also included pitchers Doug Bair and Rick Langford, first baseman Mitchell Page and outfielder Tony Armas. Of the last four, only Armas reportedly had a chance to make the Pirate team this season.

Helms played last season with Pittsburgh.

Detroit's Corcoran Hot

Wins Second Straight Game With Homer

BY LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Today was St. Patrick's Day, the perfect chance for a guy named Timothy Michael Corcoran to celebrate.

Corcoran has good reason — and not just because of his Irish name.

Wednesday, four days before his 24th birthday, the rookie outfielder blasted a home run in the bottom of the 13th inning, giving the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tuesday, Corcoran had smashed a two-run homer in the 11th inning in a 3-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Corcoran had not received much attention from the media. Most of it has gone to rookie Steve Kemp, who is expected to assume the left field job ahead of Willie Horton. But Houk said of Corcoran, "We have been talking about him since the first day he got here."

Does he have a shot at making the team in view of the presence of Kemp plus veterans Horton, Ron LeFlore, Ben Oglivie, Rusty Staub and Mickey Stanley?

Replied Houk, "If he keeps hitting like that, there has got to be a chance."

Last season, Corcoran's third as a pro, he batted .309, drove in 60 runs and clubbed 25 doubles at Montgomery, Ala.

Elsewhere, Sal Bando and Dave Johnson, a couple of veterans, also did some lusty hitting.

Bando, the former Oakland captain, socked two home runs off California's Frank Tanana as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Angels 9-5.

Johnson, the major league record-holder for home runs in a season by a second baseman, is trying to make it with Philadelphia after a couple of years in Japan. He drove in five runs, four with a grand slam homer, in the Phillies' 13-3 rout of the Montreal Expos.

The Boston Red Sox unloaded five homers — two by Carl Yastrzemski — in a 10-inning, 7-4 decision over the New York Yankees.

Dan Driessen's two-run triple highlighted a five-run sixth inning that carried the Cincinnati Reds past the New York Mets 7-4.

Atlanta's Andy Messersmith, in his first spring outing, hurled three perfect innings, then yielded three runs in the fourth, but the Braves held on to defeat the Texas Rangers 5-4. A split squad of Braves, though, bowed to the Houston Astros 3-1 as Cesar Cedeno drove in a pair of runs.

The San Diego Padres shaded the San Francisco Giants 7-5 on Doug Rader's three-run homer. Home runs by Bill Melton and John Grubb helped the Cleveland Indians outslug the Chicago Cubs 14-8. The Toronto Blue Jays blew a 6-0 lead and lost to the Kansas City Royals 7-6 on Clint Hurdle's seventh-inning homer.

Kurt Bevacqua's pinch single in the 10th gave the Seattle Mariners a 5-4 triumph over the Oakland A's, and Mike Tyson's RBI single capped a three-run sixth-inning rally that lifted the St. Louis Cardinals past the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Buffalo Takes Slim Lead With Victory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Buffalo Sabres no longer have a game in hand over the Boston Bruins. Instead, they have two points, which is even better.

Gilbert Perreault scored two goals and added an assist in leading the Sabres to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons Wednesday night, giving Buffalo a two-point edge over idle Boston in the battle for first place in the National Hockey League's Adams Division. Both have nine games remaining.

Buffalo's Rick Martin and Cleveland's Dave Gardner traded first-period goals before the Sabres, winners of 15 of their last 19 games, took command early in the second period as Perreault poked home his 34th goal of the season on a power play and assisted on Jocelyn Guevremont's goal less than two minutes later.

Buffalo put it away in the first 14 minutes of the third period on goals by Bill Hajt, Gary McAdam and Perreault, who has 11 goals and nine assists in his last 12 games.

Elsewhere, the Philadelphia Flyers and New York Rangers skated to a 4-4 tie, the New York Islanders blanked the Chicago Black Hawks 5-0, the Montreal Canadiens whipped the Minnesota North Stars 5-2, the Pittsburgh Penguins trounced the St. Louis Blues 7-3 and the Toronto Maple Leafs and Colorado Rockies tied 4-4.

Philadelphia's Rick MacLeish is just as hot as Perreault. The NHL's highest scoring center continued his torrid pace with two goals and an assist but the Flyers had to settle for a tie on a goal by New York's Phil Esposito's early in the final period.

Garry Howatt scored to trigger a three-goal first period and added two goals in the final period as the Islanders handed Chicago its eighth consecutive defeat and pulled within three points of first-place Philadelphia in the Patrick Division.

Steve Shutt scored his 55th goal of the season and Guy Lafluer added two assists to run his consecutive-game scoring string to 21, just one short of Bronco Horvath's NHL record. Lafleur also boosted his league-leading scoring total to 124 points.

Wayne Bianchin scored two goals and goalie Denis Herron made several big saves to help Pittsburgh move five points ahead of idle Los Angeles in the battle for second place in the Norris Division.

Third-period goals by Errol Thompson and Jim McKenny pulled Toronto into a tie and clinched a playoff berth for the Maple Leafs in the Smythe Division.

Cincinnati squeezed past Calgary on Peter Marsh's 12-foot wrist shot at 15:31 of the third period, just 25 seconds after defenseman Barry Legge scored on a slap shot from the blue line. The victory was the Stingers' 36th, a club record.

James Jackson scored 19 points and Vern Reynolds 17 as Johnnie's Fashions beat Quick Way 93-85 Wednesday night in Benton Harbor Recreation basketball league action. Marvin Hayes swished 20 and Robbie Patton 18 for the losers.

Bargain Center Blanks Sabres

Decatur Man Still In Sled Race

GRAYLING, Alaska (AP) — The leaders in the 1,049-mile Iditarod Trail sled dog race from Anchorage to Nome, still battling winds along the Yukon River, were expected in at Eagle Island late Wednesday.

Mushers began piling in here late Tuesday, but holed up at this 14th checkpoint 574 miles from Anchorage to wait out fierce winds along the icebound river.

"It was like mushing through quicksand," said Don Honea of Ruby of wind speeds he estimated to be between 30 and 40 miles per hour.

Two Decatur, Mich., men started the race. Tom Mathias withdrew early in the running, but Randy DeKuiper remained in the race although he had not checked through Grayling on Wednesday.

The wind began to die down Wednesday, and a National Weather Service spokesman predicted it would even out at about 20 miles per hour. He said the wind was a holdover from the storm center hovering in the area since last weekend. Temperatures in the area were near freezing — warmer than much of the trail and wearing on mushers and dogs.

Race officials reported 19 of the 42 teams still in the race had checked into Grayling by Wednesday afternoon.

Ray "Moses" Jackson of Noorvik became the fifth musher to withdraw from the race late Wednesday. The spry, quiet, rural Alaskan was a veteran of the 1975 and 1976 Iditarod races. His wire-framed glasses, wispy beard and fine furs added color and style to those races. Officials said the senior musher was injured in a fall near McGrath, the ninth checkpoint 348 miles fron Anchorage. He scratched at Anvik, 206 miles further along the grueling trail.

Ten frontrunners left Grayling to begin the 65-mile run to Eagle Island early Wednesday. The leaders were spotted mid-afternoon about 20 miles south of that 15th checkpoint 639 miles from Anchorage.

TED LINDSAY

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lindsay was a brash, freewheeling hockey player who usually got his own way while earning the nickname "Terrible Teddy" during his 17 years in the National Hockey League.

Lindsay, who was named Wednesday to replace Alex Delvecchio as general manager of the Detroit Red Wings, is still getting his way. He was offered the GM post 10 years ago but turned it down.

"(Club owner Bruce) Norris has given me full authority," Lindsay said Wednesday. "That was one of the things that kept us apart in the past. There's only one boss and that's me."

The 51-year-old former Red Wings' great, who still looks like he could play, admitted he has his work cut out for him in the quest to bring Detroit back to NHL respectibility.

"I still believe Detroit is the best franchise in the NHL," Lindsay said. "It's easy to be a hockey fan in Montreal, but Detroit fans have been very loyal."

Lindsay discounted claims the club was losing fans because of Olympia Stadium's location in Detroit's inner-city.

"The location of this building doesn't mean a thing," he told newsmen. "I'll guarantee you the fans would pack this place every game if they had a winning team."

Lindsay said his first job would be to scour the minor and amateur leagues in search of talented hockey players.

He didn't discount the possibility of luring the Howe family back to the Motor City, either, but said nothing was firm.

"Gordie and I roomed together 12 years," Lindsay said. "I would like him to be a part of my organization. It is up to them, though, whether they're going to be here next year."

Lindsay said he was mildly annoyed at published reports that Mark Howe would rather play in Boston, should the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros fold, because he didn't like Detroit as a city.

Lindsay also said he disliked everything about the WHA and blamed the rival league for the sorry state of big league hockey today.

"I've always been against the WHA," he said. "I don't drink much, but I'll get drunk when they fold.

"I'd like to see about six teams in the NHL fold, too," he added, noting that expansion has left the league woefully short of talent.

He admitted he faces an uphill battle with the Red Wings but insisted he was the man for the job.

"I'm a positive, disciplined individual," Lindsay said. "I had to work at it when I was a player. Alex (Delvecchio) could just show up and do it, but I never could."

The Red Wings, who have not qualified for post-season play since the 1969-70 season, are the worst team in the NHL this season. They currently are 16-45-9 in the Norris Division and recently became the first team in the league to be mathematically eliminated from the playoffs this season.

"Some players have been stealing money and not putting out," Lindsay said. "You still can't cheat the public."

'M'-DETROIT COLLIDE TONIGHT

All Eyes Face Lexington

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Both coaches agree the eyes of an entire state will be turned toward Lexington tonight when No. 12 Detroit, relatively new to basketball, takes on the veterans of top-ranked Michigan in the NCAA Mideast Regional semifinals.

Friends have called Detroit Coach Dick Vitale from all over the country with advice on how his Titans should approach the David-and-Goliath matchup with the overwhelming Wolverines.

"They've given me all kinds of suggestions and strategies," Vitale said Wednesday, a day of workouts at Lexington's Rupp Arena.

"But they didn't give me the one thing that's needed — a seven-foot tree to play the center," he said.

Vitale said the 8:15 p.m. EST Michigan-Detroit game, following the 5:37 opener between Syracuse and North Carolina-Charlotte, will be "like Chuck Wepner fighting Muhammad Ali."

"We're the underdog fighting the large national school. They have the million-dollar sports program," he said.

But Vitale, who went to work at Detroit four years ago, said the Titans, too, "have developed a pretty good basketball program."

The game will be telecast over Channel 5 (Chicago) and Channel 8 (Grand Rapids).

And since the two teams never meet during the regular season — and Michigan says it is booked up through 1980 — the post-season meeting "has created quite a storm in the state of Michigan," Vitale said.

"Particularly in Detroit. Basketball fever has run rampant in the city," he said. "We had 500 or 600 fans four years ago and now we're playing for packed houses."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr agreed few Michigan residents are likely to ignore the contest. Orr called it "the greatest game for fan interest in our state's history."

Michigan comes from seven straight wins, including victories over Purdue, Marquette and Holy Cross. Detroit has lost two of its last four games. Each school has a 25-3 record.

Vitale had no intention of going to the Michigan workout. "I'd rather not watch. I'm a nervous wreck already," he said.

It's not the opposing coach who makes him nervous, he said, "I'm not staying awake worrying about Johnny Orr. I'm worrying about the slam dunk of Phil Hubbard and the speed of Ricky Green."

The Wolverines, he admitted, "are very capable of beating us by 20 or 30 points. They know how to win and they know what it is."

Vitale said he's counting heavily on John Long, a good outside scorer who averages 20.5 points, and 6-7 Terry Tyler, "a great jumper," but will need "a solid performance out of all our players."

"We came to give 110 per cent," he said.

The opening game opponents — 6th-ranked Syracuse and North Carolina-Charlotte, ranked 17th — each have 26-3 records.

Syracuse has won seven straight and 18 of its last 19, including victories over Tennessee and Louisville. The Orangemen have a size advantage, mostly because of 6-11 freshman Roosevelt Bouie.

UNCC Coach Lee Rose said that after winning the Sun Belt Conference tourney last week and beating Central Michigan 81-86 in overtime in the first round of the NCAA Mideast regional, his team already deserves an award — "the Purple Heart.

"Syracuse is big and strong and has guards quicker than mosquitoes," Rose said.

He hopes he has an answer in the talents of center Cedric (Cornbread) Maxwell, who averages 22 points and 12 rebounds and is the 16th best rebounder in the nation.

Bulls' Win Over Pistons Improves Playoff Hopes

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Less than four weeks remain in the regular season, and the chances for teams to make up ground and improve their standing for the National Basketball Association playoffs — or make the playoffs at all — are growing fewer and fewer.

"Every game now is a must for us," said Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger, whose team continued its amazing uphill struggle with a 104-97 decision over the Detroit Pistons Wednesday night.

The Bulls, who at one point this season were 2-14, now are within one game of the .500 mark at 34-35. They have won five in a row on the road, 10 of their last 11 and are within three games of idle Kansas City — which has won six in a row — in the race for the final playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Chicago entertains Kansas City Friday night in another of those "must" games.

Detroit, meanwhile, wasted an opportunity to pull within two games of first-place Denver in the Midwest Division. That is important because each division winner receives a bye in the first round of the playoffs.

Herb Brown, the Detroit coach, wasn't making any excuses: "We got off to a terrible start, and that set the tempo for the game." The Pistons managed only 17 points in the first quarter for their poorest start of the season.

"We worked hard to get the tie" at 87-all with 3:42 left in the game, Brown said, "but then we didn't execute well at all."

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Washington Bullets 100-96, the Phoenix Suns beat the New York Knicks 124-91, the Indiana Pacers defeated the Denver Nuggets 109-98, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Atlanta Hawks 109-100 and the Houston Rockets beat the New York Nets 100-86.

Artis Gilmore's three-point play started a nine-point run for the Bulls late in the fourth period that proved decisive after Detroit had erased a 10-point deficit and pulled even 87-87 with 3:42 to go.

After Gilmore's three-pointer, Mickey Johnson scored a basket, then Scott May and Wilbur Holland sank two free throws apiece.

The Bulls got 26 points from Holland, 22 points from May and 13 points and 14 rebounds from Gilmore. Marvin Barnes paced the Pistons with 27 points.

Seattle remained in the thick of the Western Conference playoff scramble by beating the Bullets and climbing to .500 and pulling within 2½ games of Kansas City. Slick Watts scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half and had 11 assists for the Sonics.

Phoenix snapped a 12-game losing streak by jumping ahead 30-20 in the first period and romping past the Knicks. Paul Westphal led the Suns with 23 points.

Indiana outscored Denver 15-3 in a four-minute stretch midway through the second half in snapping a three-game losing streak.

Philadelphia pulled away from a 95-95 tie with Atlanta by scoring 10 straight points late in the fourth quarter. Julius Erving hitting three baskets in the burst.

Rudy Tomjanovich scored 36 points as Houston posted its eighth straight victory, increasing its lead over Washington in the Central Division to three games.

Korab, Hextall Suspended

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Jerry Korab of the Buffalo Sabres was suspended for three games and Detroit Red Wings center Dennis Hextall was suspended for two by National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell as a result of a stick-swinging incident.

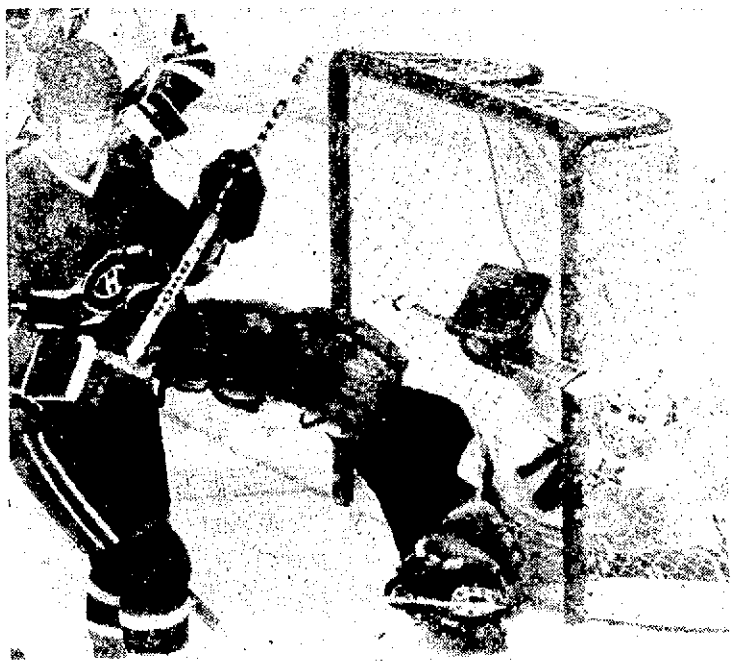
It happened during a March 9 game in Buffalo won 6-3 by the Sabres. Korab hit Hextall on the side of the head with his stick — which first hit linesman Leon Stickle on the shoulder. Hextall retaliated by swinging his stick and hitting Korab on the side of his helmet.

Campbell noted the only injury was Stickle's severely bruised shoulder.

"However, the potential injury to others was substantial ... I am satisfied it was primarily the actions of Korab which precipitated the incident and without his unprovoked intervention, nothing untoward would have happened," Campbell said. "Therefore, this creates the differential in responsibility which is reflected in the penalties."

Each player will be suspended without pay through games of March 20 and must pay the automatic $200 fine which accompanies the match penalty each received at the time.

Imlach insisted: "If there had been a seasoned official instead of a rookie, (referee Alf Lejeune) there would have been no match penalties," then said of Campbell: "If he is incapable of proper decisions, he is getting too old and it's bloody well time he should quit."



AND GOALIE MAKES TWO: Minnesota North Stars goalie Pete LoPresti wound up in the net along with the puck Wednesday night as Montreal Canadiens Steve Shutt, left, scored the first goal in NHL action. Montreal won 5-2. (AP Wirephoto)

A's, Pirates Make Another Big Trade

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and Oakland A's, who last winter made a trade involving a manager, a catcher and $100,000, have made another multi-faceted swap.

The trade, completed 15 minutes before the inter-league trading deadline, was simple enough on paper: six players from the Pirates for three from Oakland. But there were more complex implications.

For example, the 27-year-old Garner, who batted .261 as a second baseman last season, will be moved to third base by Pittsburgh.

That apparently scraps the Pirates' brief spring experiment at third with veteran utility man Bill Robinson, who worked hard all offseason with an eye toward a starting job.

"I'm very down right now," Robinson said Wednesday morning after he and the other Pirates learned of the deal, completed at 2:45 a.m. West Coast time. "I'd have to be a darn fool to have high hopes of playing third base now," Robinson added.

And there's more to the deal made by Oakland owner Charley Finley and new Pirate Vice President Harding Peterson. They're the same two who made the offseason swap that sent Pirate catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000 to the A's for current Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner.

For one thing, Medich was recently graduated from the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. He'd planned to be his residency in surgery in Pittsburgh during the offseason and whether he'll report to Oakland is uncertain. He may retire from baseball.

"If he quits, he quits," Finley said in Oakland. "To be honest, I still think it's one of the best deals we've ever made. I now think we're definitely a contender for the division championship."

It also is uncertain whether Giusti will report to the A's. As a 10-year veteran with five years with the same club, he must give his consent.

If he doesn't, the Pirates will compensate the A's with another player.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Giusti said Wednesday after pitching two scoreless innings against Detroit. "I would like to know a little more about things in Oakland and the American League. If I had my 'druthers, I'd rather pitch in the National League."

The players Pittsburgh sent to the A's also included pitchers Doug Bair and Rick Langford, first baseman Mitchell Page and outfielder Tony Armas. Of the last four, only Armas reportedly had a chance to make the Pirate team this season.

In addition to Garner, the Pirates obtained 22-year-old righthanded pitcher Chris Batton as well as a veteran utility infielder Tommy Helms.

Pete Rose Confused Over Salary Hassle

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "I wish they would just look me straight in the eye and tell me the reason," Pete Rose said. "If I knew the reason, maybe I could deal with it.

"I'd much rather somebody tell me, "Pete, you're getting old, you can't cut it any more.' Or say, 'Your arm's bad, you can't throw any more.' Or 'You've slowed up.'

"But, no, they just say, 'What you're asking, it's too rich. We can't afford it.'"

Pete Rose is confused. He is disheartened. He is disillusioned. Seventeen years of dedication and loyalty to the Cincinnati Reds, the only baseball organization he has ever been with. And now they are treating him like a total stranger.

The wound obviously cuts deep into the litle gut fighter from the other end of town — "Mr. Hustle" himself, "Mr. Cincinnati Red," who more than any other man has symbolized the grit and gristle that has carried the team to four National League pennants and two World Series championships in the last seven years.

One of the shocking developments of the spring has been the Reds' failure to sign the scrappy All-Star veteran to a 1977 contract. They have invoked the option clause, meaning Rose remains under contract at the same $200,000 salary he drew in 1976 or with a 20 per cent cut — the club's prerogative.

If the contract is not renewed, Rose will be a free agent after the 1977 season. Don't be surprised if he becomes a New York Yankee. He is George Steinbrenner's type of player — all baseball.

"I'm not trying to hold anybody up," Rose said. "I just want what I deserve. I don't know what Joe Morgan makes and I don't care. I set my figure a week and a half before Joe signed."

Morgan, the Reds' second baseman and the National League's Most Valuable Player last season, signed for a reported $1.2 million for three years. Shortstop Dave Concepcion signed this week for five years and $1 million. Catcher Johnny Bench is completing a two-year pact calling for $250,000 a year.

Neither Rose nor the Reds management has disclosed what the All-Star third baseman is asking. It is believed in the three-year, $1.2 million range.

Rose is proud of his record of durability and consistency — 490 consecutive games, 11 of 12 seasons with a better than .300 average, eight years with 200 hits or more (bettered only by Ty Cobb's nine) and only 119 away from 3,000 hits.

Yet he is beginning to recognize that baseball can be a cold, impersonal business and appreciation can fade quickly.

"Nobody seems to remember that I have jumped from one position to another — second base to the outfield to third — every time the club needed a boost. In 1975 we were five games below .500 when they moved me to third base. Then we started moving.

"Nobody from management — I am not talking about Sparky (Manager Sparky Anderson) — nobody said so much as a 'thank you.'"

K-Wings Edge Fort Wayne

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two goals in as many minutes from Dennis Desrosiers sparked a five-goal explosion as the International Hockey League's North Division leading Saginaw Gears topped Port Huron, 8-6 Wednesday night.

In other IHL action, Columbus crushed Muskegon, 7-4; Kalamazoo edged Fort Wayne, 3-2, and Dayton downed Flint, 5-1.

Other Gears players scoring twice were Dave Westner and Marcel Comeau. Bud Stefanski and Len Chalmers each had a pair of goals for Port Huron.

The victory kept Saginaw atop the IHL's North Division with a 36-25-10 record. Port Huron, 27-37-7, is last in the North.

Left wing Bill Bennett scored three goals to lead Columbus the victory over Muskegon, which moved the Owls into sole possession of third place in the IHL South division with a 26-31-14 record. Muskegon remains fourth in the North with a 29-33-10 mark.

Bennett had two tallies in the second, part of a five-goal burst from the Owls in that period after trailing 2-1 at the end of the first.

The Mohawks were led by right wing Bob Sunderland with two goals.

Yvon Dupuis, Dwight Schofield and Fred Berry each scored in the second period as Kalamazoo held off a third period surge by Fort Wayne's Robbie Laird and Terry Ewasiuk.

Doug Patey slapped in two goals to lead Dayton to its route over the Flint Generals. The triumph improved the Gems' record to 32-35-5 and Dayton held onto second place in the South Division.

St. Joe Catholic Finishes 15-0

Tim Theisen poured in 28 points Tuesday night to lead St. Joe Catholic to a 90-83 win over the KC Reds in a St. Joe Church League basketball game. St. Joe Catholic finished with a perfect 15-0 record. Bill Frantz tallied 20 for the losers.

Badgers Shutout 'M' Icers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Four Wisconsin players had goals Wednesday night as Wisconsin shutout Michigan 4-0 in the first game of the final round of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

Wisconsin goalie Julian Baretta, credited with 31 saves, was hit by a puck and had to sit out part of the second frame due to numbness in his shoulder. However, he returned to guard the goal in the third period.

Wisconsin and Michigan square off again tonight with the winner of the total-goal series earning a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship March 25 and 26 in Detroit.

Detroit's Corcoran Hot

BY LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Today was St. Patrick's Day, the perfect chance for a guy named Timothy Michael Corcoran to celebrate.

Corcoran has good reason — and not just because of his Irish name.

Wednesday, four days before his 24th birthday, the rookie outfielder blasted a home run in the bottom of the 13th inning, giving the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tuesday, Corcoran had smashed a two-run homer in the 11th inning in a 3-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Corcoran had not received much attention from the media. Most of it has gone to rookie Steve Kemp, who is expected to assume the left field job ahead of Willie Horton. But Houk said of Corcoran, "We have been talking about him since the first day he got here."

Does he have a shot at making the team in view of the presence of Kemp plus veterans Horton, Ron LeFlore, Ben Oglivie, Rusty Staub and Mickey Stanley?

Replied Houk, "If he keeps hitting like that, there has got to be a chance."

Last season, Corcoran's third as a pro, he batted .309, drove in 80 runs and clubbed 23 doubles at Montgomery, Ala.

Elsewhere, Sal Bando and Dave Johnson, a couple of veterans, also did some lusty hitting.

Bando, the former Oakland captain, socked two home runs off California's Frank Tanana as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Angels 9-5.

Johnson, the major league record-holder for home runs in a season by a second baseman, is trying to make it with Philadelphia after a couple of years in Japan. He drove in five runs, four with a grand slam homer, in the Phillies' 12-3 rout of the Montreal Expos.

The Boston Red Sox unloaded five homers — two by Carl Yastrzemski — in a 10-inning, 7-4 decision over the New York Yankees.

Dan Driessen's two-run triple highlighted a five-run sixth inning that carried the Cincinnati Reds past the New York Mets 7-4.

Atlanta's Andy Messersmith, in his first spring outing, hurled three perfect innings, then yielded three runs in the fourth, but the Braves held on to defeat the Texas Rangers 5-4. A split squad of Braves, though, bowed to the Houston Astros 3-1 as Cesar Cedeno drove in a pair of runs.

The San Diego Padres shaded the San Francisco Giants 7-5 on Doug Rader's three-run homer. Home runs by Bill Melton and John Grubb helped the Cleveland Indians outslug the Chicago Cubs 14-8. The Toronto Blue Jays blew a 6-0 lead and lost to the Kansas City Royals 7-6 on Clint Hurdle's seventh-inning homer.

Kurt Bevacqua's pinch single in the 10th gave the Seattle Mariners a 5-4 triumph over the Oakland A's, and Mike Tyson's RBI single capped a three-run sixth-inning rally that lifted the St. Louis Cardinals past the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Buffalo Takes Slim Lead With Victory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Buffalo Sabres no longer have a game in hand over the Boston Bruins. Instead, they have two points, which is even better.

Gilbert Perreault scored two goals and added an assist in leading the Sabres to a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons Wednesday night, giving Buffalo a two-point edge over idle Boston in the battle for first place in the National Hockey League's Adams Division. Both have nine games remaining.

Buffalo's Rick Martin and Cleveland's Dave Gardner traded first-period goals before the Sabres, winners of 15 of their last 19 games, took command early in the second period as Perreault poked home his 34th goal of the season on a power play and assisted on Jocelyn Guevremont's goal less than two minutes later.

Buffalo put it away in the first 14 minutes of the third period on goals by Bill Hajt, Gary McAdam and Perreault, who has 11 goals and nine assists in his last 12 games.

Elsewhere, the Philadelphia Flyers and New York Rangers skated to a 4-4 tie, the New York Islanders blanked the Chicago Black Hawks 5-0, the Montreal Canadiens whipped the Minnesota North Stars 5-2, the Pittsburgh Penguins trounced the St. Louis Blues 7-3 and the Toronto Maple Leafs and Colorado Rockies tied 4-4.

Philadelphia's Rick MacLeish is just as hot as Perreault. The NHL's highest scoring center continued his torrid pace with two goals and an assist but the Flyers had to settle for a tie on a goal by New York's Phil Esposito's early in the final period.

Garry Howatt scored to trigger a three-goal first period and added two goals in the final period as the Islanders handed Chicago its eighth consecutive defeat and pulled within three points of first-place Philadelphia in the Patrick Division.

Steve Shutt scored his 55th goal of the season and Guy Lafleur added two assists to run his consecutive-game scoring string to 21, just one short of Bronco Horvath's NHL record. Lafleur also boosted his league-leading scoring total to 124 points.

Wayne Bianchin scored two goals and goalie Denis Herron made several big saves to help Pittsburgh move five points ahead of idle Los Angeles in the battle for second place in the Norris Division.

Third-period goals by Errol Thompson and Jim McKenny pulled Toronto into a tie and clinched a playoff berth for the Maple Leafs in the Smythe Division.

Cincinnati squeezed past Calgary on Peter Marsh's 12-foot wrist shot at 15:31 of the third period, just 25 seconds after defenseman Barry Legge scored on a slap shot from the blue line. The victory was the Stingers' 36th, a club record.

Jackson Hits 19 For Johnnie's

James Jackson scored 19 points and Vern Reynolds 17 as Johnnie's Fashions beat Quick Way 93-85 Wednesday night in Benton Harbor Recreation basketball league action. Marvin Hayes swished 20 and Robbie Patton 18 for the losers.

Bargain Center Blanks Sabres

Decatur Man Still In Sled Race

GRAYLING, Alaska (AP) — The leaders in the 1,049-mile Iditarod Trail sled dog race from Anchorage to Nome, still battling winds along the Yukon River, were expected in at Eagle Island late Wednesday.

Mushers began piling in here late Tuesday, but holed up at this 14th checkpoint 574 miles from Anchorage to wait out fierce winds along the icebound river.

"It was like mushing through quicksand," said Don Honea of Ruby of wind speeds he estimated to be between 30 and 40 miles per hour.

Two Decatur, Mich., men started the race. Tom Mathias withdrew early in the running, but Randy DeKuiper remained in the race although he had not checked through Grayling on Wednesday.

The wind began to die down Wednesday, and a National Weather Service spokesman predicted it would even out at about 20 miles per hour. He said the wind was a holdover from the storm center hovering in the area since last weekend. Temperatures in the area were near freezing — warmer than much of the trail and wearing on mushers and dogs.

Race officials reported 19 of the 42 teams still in the race had checked into Grayling by Wednesday afternoon.

Ray "Moses" Jackson of Noorvik became the fifth musher to withdraw from the race late Wednesday. The spry, quiet, rural Alaskan was a veteran of the 1975 and 1976 Iditarod races. His wire-framed glasses, wispy beard and fine furs added color and style to those races. Officials said the senior musher was injured in a fall near McGrath, the ninth checkpoint 348 miles from Anchorage. He scratched at Anvik, 206 miles further along the grueling trail.

Ten frontrunners left Grayling to begin the 65-mile run to Eagle Island early Wednesday. The leaders were spotted mid-afternoon about 20 miles south of that 15th checkpoint 639 miles from Anchorage.

SKI REPORT

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rapidly melting north country snow bases leaves skiers only 11 areas to choose from this weekend, with the five northwest Lower and six Upper Peninsula lodges reporting fair to good spring conditions, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Bases in West Michigan still ranged up to 54 inches at midweek, while in the Upper Peninsula, six-to 26-inch bases were reported. All lodges in East Michigan were reported closed for the season or until more snow arrives.

WEST MICHIGAN: Nub's Nob, near Harbor Springs, very good, 36-inch base; Boyne Mt., near Boyne Falls, fair to good, 12-to-48-inch base; Boyne Highlands, near Harbor Springs, good, 12-to-54-inch base; Schuss Mt., near Mancelona, very good, six-to-30-inch base; Crystal Mt., near Thompsonville, good to very good, 25-to-39-inch base.

UPPER PENINSULA: Mont Ripley, near Houghton, fair to good, 16-inch base, open weekends only; Porcupine Mt., near Ontonagon, poor, 10-inch base, open on day-to-day basis; Cliff's Ridge, near Marquette, good, six-to-24-inch base; Big Valley, near Newberry, very good, 24-inch base, open weekends only. Both Indianhead Mt. near Wakefield and Big Powderhorn near Bessemer were open but declined to list bases.

No World Series This Year For NBC

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Year Two of the Great Baseball Compromise is upon us and NBC is faced with an unusual situation.

For the first time in 30 years, NBC will NOT televise the World Series. That honor falls to ABC as the result of a four-year deal baseball signed with both networks last year.

"Not having the World Series is obviously important to us," says Chet Simmons, the NBC veteran recently named vice president for sports. "The guys who have worked on baseball are disappointed. But they're all realists and they understand business arrangements."

Under the agreement, NBC gets Saturday afternoon games, ABC gets Monday nights and the two alternate the World Series, playoffs and All-Star Game. NBC will have the playoffs and the All-Star Game this time around.

With less than one month to go before opening day, NBC has got its plans pretty well set. Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek return as the announcers with Jim Simpson and Maury Wills as the backup team. The package will open April 9 with a rare national doubleheader featuring both World Series teams — the New York Yankees vs. Milwaukee and Cincinnati against San Diego.

In addition, NBC is going to try a late-night game on July 2 which will start at 11:30 p.m. EDT. The teams have not been chosen yet.

The network faces a potential problem with the playoffs. Last season ended on a Sunday but the playoffs didn't start until the following Saturday. That was fine for TV, which wanted a large weekend audience, but Commissioner Bowie Kuhn drew fire for delaying the season at a time when cold weather was setting in. Purists argued that the sport was being hurt to appease TV.

Kuhn says a decision on when the playoffs will start is due soon, perhaps within a week.

Over at ABC, baseball plans are still up in the air. The network's initial Monday Night Baseball presentation was roundly booed in the press last year and officials admit it didn't come off too well. The network scrapped its two regular-season announcing teams — Bob Prince, Bob Uecker and Warner Wolf, and Al Michaels, Norm Cash and Bob Gibson — for the playoffs and tried out combos of Keith Jackson, Howard Cosell and Reggie Jackson, and Michaels, Wolfe and Tom Seaver.

Kuhn was so unhappy with ABC's coverage in general, and the appearance of Cosell on the playoffs in particular, that he met secretly with NBC officials, offering to try and dump ABC and return to a one network situation.

ABC, quick to remind everyone that it took a while for Monday Night Football to gain acceptance, has been shuffling its lineup lately like a last-place manager with a win-or-else edict from the front office.

Prince is out. Cash is out. Gibson and Wolf are in jeopardy. Michaels and Uecker, apparently the only two who survived the first season with reputations intact, are definitely in. Beyond that, ABC isn't saying.

Detroit Police Wait On Suit

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Police Officers Association has decided not to file suit to block a proposed riverfront arena, preferring instead to await resolution of a suit already filed.

Douglas Korney, attorney for the DPOA, said Tuesday the association still opposed the proposed 20,000-seat arena, slated for just west of Cobo Arena, and would continue to fight its construction.

Last week the DPOA termed the arena an "obsession" of Mayor Coleman Young, but said it felt "the people of this city don't want it."

The city plans to break ground for the arena the first week in April unless stopped by the courts. City officials say if construction is not started by April 6, a $5 million federal grant for the arena will be forfeited.

Preliminary hearing on a suit filed in Wayne County circuit court Monday by a Detroit property owner is set for Friday.

Bengals Send Jackson To Broncos

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals traded defensive back Bernard Jackson to the Denver Broncos Wednesday for an undisclosed draft choice.

"I'm elated," Jackson said when told of the deal. Jackson predicted the move at last season's final game, when he dressed but did not appear. "I'm gone," he said then.

He had lost his starting freesafety job to Marvin Cobb five games into the 1976 season. He returned briefly, to the starting lineup later in the National Football League season when safety Tommy Casanova suffered a sprained ankle.

"I knew they wouldn't bring me back to sit on the bench. I complain too much," Jackson said from his Los Angeles home. He often objected to being a "go-between" when the Bengals had injuries in the defensive backfield.

Pete Rose Confused Over Salary Hassle

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "I wish they would just look me straight in the eye and tell me the reason," Pete Rose said. "If I knew the reason, maybe I could deal with it.

"I'd much rather somebody tell me, 'Pete, you're getting old, you can't cut it any more.' Or say, 'Your arm's bad, you can't throw any more.' Or 'You've slowed up.'

"But, no, they just say, 'What you're asking, it's too rich. We can't afford it.'"

Pete Rose is confused. He is disheartened. He is disillusioned. Seventeen years of dedication and loyalty to the Cincinnati Reds, the only baseball organization he has ever been with. And now they are treating him like a total stranger.

The wound obviously cuts deep into the little gut fighter from the other end of town — "Mr. Hustle" himself, "Mr. Cincinnati Red," who more than any other man has symbolized the grit and gristle that has carried the team to four National League pennants and two World Series championships in the last seven years.

One of the shocking developments of the spring has been the Reds' failure to sign the scrappy All-Star veteran to a 1977 contract. They have invoked the option clause, meaning Rose remains under contract at the same $200,000 salary he drew in 1976 or with a 20 per cent cut — the club's prerogative.

If the contract is not renewed, Rose will be a free agent after the 1977 season. Don't be surprised if he becomes a New York Yankee. He is George Steinbrenner's type of player — all baseball.

"I'm not trying to hold anybody up," Rose said. "I just want what I deserve. I don't know what Joe Morgan makes and I don't care. I set my figure a week and a half before Joe signed."

Morgan, the Reds' second baseman and the National League's Most Valuable Player last season, signed for a reported $1.2 million for three years. Shortstop Dave Concepcion signed this week for five years and $1 million. Catcher Johnny Bench is completing a two-year pact calling for $250,000 a year.

"Neither Rose nor the Reds management has disclosed what the All-Star third baseman is asking. It is believed in the three-year, $1.2 million range.

Rose is proud of his record of durability and consistency — 490 consecutive games, 11 of 12 seasons with a better than .300 average, eight years with 200 hits or more (bettered only by Ty Cobb's nine) and only 119 away from 3,000 hits.

Yet he is beginning to recognize that baseball can be a cold, impersonal business and appreciation can fade quickly.

"Nobody seems to remember that I have jumped from one position to another — second base to the outfield to third — every time the club needed a boost. In 1975 we were five games below .500 when they moved me to third base. Then we started moving.

"Nobody from management — I am not talking about Sparky (Manager Sparky Anderson) — nobody said so much as a 'thank you.'"

K-Wings Edge Fort Wayne

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two goals in as many minutes from Dennis Desrosiers sparked a five-goal explosion as the International Hockey League's North Division leading Saginaw Gears topped Port Huron, 8-6 Wednesday night.

In other IHL action, Columbus crushed Muskegon, 7-4; Kalamazoo edged Fort Wayne, 3-2, and Dayton downed Flint, 5-1.

Other Gears players scoring twice were Dave Westner and Marcel Comeau. Bud Stefanski and Len Chalmers each had a pair of goals for Port Huron.

The victory kept Saginaw atop the IHL's North Division with a 36-25-10 record. Port Huron, 27-37-7, is last in the North.

Left wing Bill Bennett scored three goals to lead Columbus the victory over Muskegon, which moved the Owls into sole possession of third place in the IHL South division with a 26-31-14 record. Muskegon remains fourth in the North with a 29-33-10 mark.

Bennett had two tallies in the second, part of a five-goal burst from the Owls in that period after trailing 2-1 at the end of the first.

The Mohawks were led by right wing Bob Sunderland with two goals.

Yvon Dupuis, Dwight Schofield and Fred Berry each scored in the second period as Kalamazoo held off a third period surge by Fort Wayne's Robbie Laird and Terry Ewastuk.

Doug Patey slapped in two goals to lead Dayton to its route over the Flint Generals. The triumph improved the Gems' record to 32-35-5 and Dayton held onto second place in the South Division.

St. Joe Catholic Finishes 15-0

Tim Theisen poured in 28 points Tuesday night to lead St. Joe Catholic to a 90-83 win over the KC Reds in a St. Joe Church League basketball game. St. Joe Catholic finished with a perfect 15-0 record. Bill Frantz tallied 20 for the losers.

The KC Blues nipped the KC Golds 47-45 in Tuesday's other game. Mark Weir scored 18 points for the Blues and Steve Habel tallied 12 for the Golds.

Badgers Shutout 'M' Icers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Four Wisconsin players had goals Wednesday night as Wisconsin shutout Michigan 4-0 in the first game of the final round of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

Wisconsin goalie Julian Baretta, credited with 31 saves, was hit by a puck and had to sit out part of the second frame due to numbness in his shoulder. However, he returned to guard the goal in the third period.

Wisconsin and Michigan square off again tonight with the winner of the total-goal series earning a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship March 25 and 26 in Detroit.

Lasorda Gives New Spirit To Baseball

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Want a little spiritual uplift in this calloused age of selfishness, cynicism, negativism and greed? Then catch Tom Lasorda's lockerroom act around baseball's spring training circuit.

It's enough to make you rush up to the attic and pull out all those old Horatio Alger books and reread "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." It restores your faith in old forgotten values.

Lasorda is a glib, tobacco-chewing young castoff who worked untiringly in the Dodgers organization for 28 years as a second rate pitcher, scout, coach and minor league manager. Then last Sept. 29, he learned he was the new field boss of the Los Angeles team, succeeding Walter Alston.

"Loyalty," he said,"is a two-way street. I never had a guarantee from Peter or Mr. (Walter) O'Malley. I just prayed that my contributions to the organization, my dedication and loyalty would be rewarded.

"It was like waking up and somebody telling you, 'You just inherited the Hope Diamond.'"

Peter O'Malley is president of the Dodgers and son of Walter O'Malley, chairman of the board, godfather of one of baseball's most successful franchises.

"When you are a Dodger, you are part of the family," Lasorda said. "O'Malley's door is always open. You know if you have allegiance and work hard you will be rewarded. I coached third base last year for $20,000 less than I could have made some place else.

"But I never regretted a day of it. I had peace of mind. I never wanted to be anything but a Dodger. There are four things I love: God, Country, family and the Dodgers."

Lasorda's lockerroom dissertation on loyalty and dedication is a mixture of a Billy Graham revival, a Fourth of July speech and a Don Rickles' act in Las Vegas. The graying, 50-year-old medicine man of the diamond deftly mixes humor and allegory with his serious sermons.

"If you cut my wrist, Dodger blue blood would flow out," he says. "Once I went to Mayo Clinic for a complete physical. I had more wires hitched to me than a telephone pole. Then the doctors hung up all these X rays and started examining them. They looked concerned.

"I was afraid they had found something terrible. But it wasn't serious. It was a small Dodger logo on my heart."

Becoming the Dodgers manager, Lasorda said, was like the ending of rags-to-riches novel.

"I was the son of an immigrant," he said. "I was just a third-string pitcher on my high school team in Norristown, Pa. When I finally got to the Dodgers — around all those great players like Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese — I worked hard to be one of the three men they took north to cut when the season started."

Lasorda was asked if he didn't feel pressure, taking over for a man who had managed the Dodgers for 23 years.

"Pressure? No," he replied. "It was like scratching around Superstition Mountain for 30 years and suddenly striking the Mother Lode. It was like going to heaven and finding a big steak."

SKI REPORT

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rapidly melting north country snow boses leaves skiers only 11 areas to choose from this weekend, with the five northwest Lower and six Upper Peninsula lodges reporting fair to good spring conditions, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Bases in West Michigan still ranged up to 54 inches at midweek, while in the Upper Peninsula, six-to 26-inch boses were reported. All lodges in East Michigan were reported closed for the season or until more snow arrives.

WEST MICHIGAN: Nub's Nob, near Harbor Springs, very good, 36-inch base; Boyne Mt., near Boyne Falls, fair to good, 12-to-48-inch base; Boyne Highlands, near Harbor Springs, good, 12-to-54-inch base; Schuss Mt., near Mancelona, very good, six-to-36-inch base; Crystal Mt., near Thumbsonville, good to very good, 25-to-39-inch base.

UPPER PENINSULA: Mont Ripley, near Houghton, fair to good, 16-inch base, open weekends only; Porcupine Mt., near Ontonagon, poor, 10-inch base, open on day-to-day basis; Cliff's Ridge, near Marquette, good, six-to-24-inch base; Big Vutley, near Newberry, very good, 24-inch base, open weekends only. Both Indianhead Mt. near Wakefield and Big Powderhorn near Bessemer were open but declined to list bases.

No World Series This Year For NBC

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Year Two of the Great Baseball Compromise is upon us and NBC is faced with an unusual situation.

For the first time in 30 years, NBC will NOT televise the World Series. That honor falls to ABC as the result of a four-year deal baseball signed with both networks last year.

"Not having the World Series is obviously important to us," says Chet Simmons, the NBC veteran recently named vice president for sports. "The guys who have worked on baseball are disappointed. But they're all realists and they understand business arrangements."

Under the agreement, NBC gets Saturday afternoon games, ABC gets Monday nights and the two alternate the World Series, playoffs and All-Star Game. NBC will have the playoffs and the All-Star Game this time around.

With less than one month to go before opening day, NBC has got its plans pretty well set. Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek return as the announcers with Jim Simpson and Maury Wills as the backup team. The package will open April 9 with a rare national doubleheader featuring both World Series teams — the New York Yankees vs. Milwaukee and Cincinnati against San Diego.

In addition, NBC is going to try a late-night game on July 2 which will start at 11:30 p.m. EDT. The teams have not been chosen yet.

The network faces a potential problem with the playoffs. Last season ended on a Sunday but the playoffs didn't start until the following Saturday. That was fine for TV, which wanted a large weekend audience, but Commissioner Bowie Kuhn drew fire for delaying the season at a time when cold weather was setting in. Purists argued that the sport was being hurt to appease TV.

Kuhn says a decision on when the playoffs will start is due soon, perhaps within a week.

Over at ABC, baseball plans are still up in the air. The network's initial Monday Night Baseball presentation was roundly booed in the press last year and officials admit it didn't come off too well. The network scrapped its two regular-season announcing teams — Bob Prince, Bob Uecker and Warner Wolf, and Al Michaels, Norm Cash and Bob Gibson — for the playoffs and tried out combos of Keith Jackson, Howard Cosell and Reggie Jackson, and Michaels, Wolfe and Tom Seaver.

Kuhn was so unhappy with ABC's coverage in general, and the appearance of Cosell on the playoffs in particular, that he met secretly with NBC officials, offering to try and dump ABC and return to a one network situation.

ABC, quick to remind everyone that it took a while for Monday Night Football to gain acceptance, has been shuffling its lineup lately like a last-place manager with a win-or-else edict from the front office.

Prince is out. Cash is out. Gibson and Wolf are in jeopardy. Michaels and Uecker, apparently the only two who survived the first season with reputations intact, are definitely in. Beyond that, ABC isn't saying.

Detroit Police Wait On Suit

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Police Officers Association has decided not to file suit to block a proposed riverfront arena, preferring instead to await resolution of a suit already filed.

Douglas Korney, attorney for the DPOA, said Tuesday the association still opposed the proposed 20,000-seat arena, slated for just west of Cobo Arena, and would continue to fight its construction.

Last week the DPOA termed the arena an "obsession" of Mayor Coleman Young, but said it felt "the people of this city don't want it."

The city plans to break ground for the arena the first week in April unless stopped by the courts. City officials say if construction is not started by April 6, a $5 million federal grant for the arena will be forfeited.

Preliminary hearing on a suit filed in Wayne County circuit court Monday by a Detroit property owner is set for Friday.

Bengals Send Jackson To Broncos

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals traded defensive back Bernard Jackson to the Denver Broncos Wednesday for an undisclosed draft choice.

"I'm elated," Jackson said when told of the deal. Jackson predicted the move at last season's final game, when he dressed but did not appear. "I'm gone," he said then.

He had lost his starting freesafety job to Marvin Cobb five games into the 1976 season.

He returned briefly to the starting lineup later in the National Football League season when safety Tommy Casanova suffered a sprained ankle.

"I knew they wouldn't bring me back to sit on the bench. I complain too much," Jackson said from his Los Angeles home. He often objected to being a "go-between" when the Bengals had injuries in the defensive backfield.

Fairplain Sets Registration

The Fairplain Youth Baseball Association will sign up players ages eight through 15 on Tuesday, March 22, and Wednesday, March 23, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Fairplain 7th and 8th grade center.

The front entrance should be used. A fee of $15 is payable at registration. Players new to the association must present a birth certificate. If you have any questions, or can't register at this time, contact Mrs. Aber at 927-3027 no later than April 1 if you want to play ball this summer.

Associated Press Writer

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The sprawling red Kellogg Co. cereal plant features a Tony the Tiger statue on its front lawn. It draws a wry smile from Ann Shafer as she heads to work on the midnight shift.

The fact that the famous tiger is a Tony, rather than a Toni, holds special significance to a woman who considers herself "one of the mothers" of the women's movement.

"There's an awful lot of us who are working behind the scenes," says Mrs. Shafer. "I don't have that killer instinct. My forte seems to be supportive. But I could be a 'workaholic' where women's rights are concerned."

Like many of her peers, Mrs. Shafer went to work for a motor products plant right after she graduated from Detroit Southeastern High School in 1939. Three months later, she was on a picket line, helping to organize the plant.

"We were in snow up to our hips," she recalled. "But we won. We got better safety regulations, separate bathrooms and work gloves."

Mrs. Shafer said she came by her firm faith in trade unionism naturally. Her father was a union marine engineer.

"To me, there is no alternative for the working person — not just the blue collar — other than unionism," Mrs. Shafer said. "Without it, you're just nothing."

Mrs. Shafer landed a job at Kellogg more than 30 years ago, after a tour in the Women's Army Corps during World War II. For almost 15 of those years, she has been recording secretary of Local 3 of the American Federation of Grain Millers. She is the only woman ever to hold office in the union.

"I ran for president once, and really got my ears pinned back," she said. "I'm not everyone's cup of tea. I can't even get elected recording secretary in my local anymore."

These days, her sphere of influence has spread far beyond the packing line where she works stuffing boxes of cereal into large cardboard boxes for shipping.

Off the job, Mrs. Shafer serves as a regional vice president in the national Coalition of Labor Union Women and a state central Democratic party delegate. She is president of the Battle Creek chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) and helped found the Kalamazoo NOW chapter.

And the 54-year-old has been appointed to the Michigan Women's Commission by Gov. William Milliken, a Republican.

Mrs. Shafer acknowledges that Kellogg has been one of the best companies in the U.S. in affording equal opportunity for women.

Still, in 1968, she filed a civil suit against the cerealmaker demanding, among other things, that the firm post every job opening on the bulletin boards to give women a chance to apply.

"I have yet to see a job labeled 'male' or 'female,'" she said. "Jobs are for people."

Women at Kellogg's plant in Memphis, Tenn., currently have pending a suit similar to Mrs. Shafer's — only the Memphis suit points a finger at the union as well as the company.

Her busy extracurricular schedule keeps Mrs. Shafer on the road virtually every weekend and ties up many of her weekdays. She averages about four hours of sleep a day.

"The drive I posses is probably not my own making. It's probably as much a part of me as my blue eyes and the fact that I'm 5-feet-4," she said. "It's part of my genes and where it came from, God only knows."

Mrs. Shafer said that her husband, Earl, and son, John — both of whom work at Kellogg — support her efforts, but worry about the effects of her non-stop schedule..

Mrs. Shafer says her greatest fear now is that the labor movement — and working women — will grow soft. Young workers, she said, seemed to lose a stong catalyst after the Vietnam war.

What might be the new catalyst?

"I wonder," Mrs. Shafer says. "Young workers have no understanding of the 1920s at all. I don't know."

The movement of many large companies to the largely non-union Sunbelt states also has Mrs. Shafer worried.

"It's going to be rough," she says.

Mrs. Shafer has no regrets, but said that if she had it to do over she would probaby pursue a college degree in social work and enter the political arena "because when the chips are down, that's where the cards are going to be played."

Despite her concerns for upcoming young workers, Mrs. Shafer says she is confident they are the hope of America.

"And that's why I've hung on to the bottom rung of this kind of a job. That's why I keep fighting," she said. "If I can hang on to that lower rung, if I can keep the door cracked, the sharp young gals coming up are going to take it over and really turn this around.

WORKING FOR RIGHTS: Ann Shafer stands by Tony the Tiger statue in front of sprawling W.K. Kellogg cereal plant in Battle Creek, where she has worked for more than 30 years. She considers herself "one of the mothers" of the women's movement. (AP Wirephoto)

'Roots' Author Sues Publisher

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Haley, author of the best-seller "Roots," has sued Doubleday & Co., accusing the publisher of failing to promote the book and underselling paperback rights.

Haley filed the $5 million damage suit Wednesday in Superior Court and claimed Doubleday violated its 1974 contract by not promoting the book through advertising and speaking engagements.

He said he had to promote "Roots" and negotiate the successful serialized television program based on the book.

Lasorda Gives New Spirit To Baseball

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Want a little spiritual uplift in this calloused age of selfishness, cynicism, negativism and greed? Then catch Tom Lasorda's lockerroom act around baseball's spring training circuit.

It's enough to make you rush up to the attic and pull out all those old Horatio Alger books and reread "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." It restores your faith in old forgotten values.

Lasorda is a glib, tobacchewing young eastoff who worked untiringly in the Dodgers organization for 28 years as a second rate pitcher, scout, coach and minor league manager. Then last Sept. 29, he learned he was the new field boss of the Los Angeles team, succeeding Walter Alston.

"Loyalty," he said, "is a two-way street. I never had a guarantee from Peter or Mr. (Walter) O'Malley. I just prayed that my contributions to the organization, my dedication and loyalty would be rewarded.

"It was like waking up and somebody telling you, 'You just inherited the Hope Diamond.'"

Peter O'Malley is president of the Dodgers and son of Walter O'Malley, chairman of the board, godfather of one of baseball's most successful franchises.

"When you are a Dodger, you are part of the family," Lasorda said. "O'Malley's door is always open. You know if you have allegiance and work hard you will be rewarded. I coached third base last year for $20,000 less than I could have made some place else.

"But I never regretted a day of it. I had peace of mind. I never wanted to be anything but a Dodger. There are four things I love: God, Country, family and the Dodgers."

Lasorda's lockerroom dissertation on loyalty and dedication is a mixture of a Billy Graham revival, a Fourth of July speech and a Don Rickles' act in Las Vegas. The graying, 50-year-old medicine man of the diamond deftly mixes humor and allegory with his serious sermons.

"If you cut my wrist, Dodger blue blood would flow out," he says. "Once I went to Mayo Clinic for a complete physical. I had more wires hitched to me than a telephone pole. Then the doctors hung up all these X rays and started examining them. They looked concerned.

"I was afraid they had found something terrible. But it wasn't serious. It was a small Dodger logo on my heart."

Becoming the Dodgers manager, Lasorda said, was like the ending of rags-to-riches novel.

"I was the son of an immigrant," he said. "I was just a third-string pitcher on my high school team in Norristown, Pa. When I finally got to the Dodgers — around all those great players like Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese — I worked hard to be one of the three men they took north to cut when the season started."

Lasorda was asked if he didn't feel pressure, taking over for a man who had managed the Dodgers for 23 years.

"Pressure? No," he replied. "It was like scratching around Superstition Mountain for 30 years and suddenly striking the Mother Lode. It was like going to heaven and finding a big steak."

Rex Harrison's Fourth 'Ex' Has Story

MME. CHIANG: Ill and bitter

Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, March 17, the 76th day of 1977. There are 289 days left in the year. This is St. Patrick's Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, British troops evacuated Boston by ship during the Revolutionary War. They had been under American siege since the Battle of Bunker Hill seven months earlier.

On this date:

In 1836, the Republic of Texas adopted a constitution.

In 1926, Brazil and Spain blocked Germany's admission to the League of Nations.

In 1966, A U.S. midget submarine located a hydrogen bomb which had fallen from an American bomber into the Mediterranean off Spain.

In 1970, charges were made against 22 American army officers and enlisted men in connection with the killing of civilians at My Lai in South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson pigeon-holed his proposal to create a new Department of Economic Affairs by merging the Labor and Commerce departments.

Five years ago: The Nixon Administration directed the U.S. Air Force to gradually withdraw a substantial number of its planes from Taiwan over the next two years.

One year ago: President Gerald R. Ford told protesting American Jewish organizations that he was determined to go ahead with plans to sell military transport planes to Egypt.

Thought for today: Don't go around saying the world owes you a living. The world owes you nothing; it was here first. — Mark Twain, American writer, 1835-1910.

Files Charges

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Sarah Dylan, wife of singer-songwriter Bob Dylan, says her husband struck and injured her, brought another woman into their house and ordered her to leave.

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

Q: I know Liz Ashley is married, but are the rumors true about her romance with Rex Harrison, now that they have appeared in "Caesar and Cleopatra"? — L.L., New York.

A: The real story these days comes from Rachel Roberts, Rex's fourth ex-wife, who is now his confidante after having patched up their old animosities. Rachel's been telling all listeners that Rex's passion for Ashley appears real but that nothing worth mentioning has happened yet. Liz thinks it is all great fun, and is convinced she'll be able to claim success sooner or later.

FINAL FLOURISH: In his last moments in government, Henry Kissinger's beloved State Department came to his aid in a personal crisis. Henry's Labrador retriever, Tyler, had stepped on a light bulb and got a piece of glass stuck deep in his paw. Henry summoned Dr. William M. Watson, the top Department physician (with the rank of Deputy Assistant Secretary of State), who came to the rescue and performed emergency surgery to remove the glass.

A: Bitter and disillusioned over her own ill health, the 79-year-old widow of the late Generalissimo has been spending more and more time in the U.S., receiving frequent treatment for cancer. She has become a recluse, her dreams long gone of sustaining her power as a great political influence. Occasionally, a New Yorker catches a glimpse of Mme. Chiang, riding in an old limousine, shades pulled down and four bodyguards from the Taiwan army surrounding her frail person.

REALLY INSIDE STUFF: The Russians have just agreed to cut the level of high intensity micro-radiation they've been beaming at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. American officials think it's a spying device, but the Russians claim the radiation is used to jam Embassy intelligence-sending equipment. Why have the Russians cut the amount of radiation? We've been protesting the practice for years. Several Embassy staffers were recently returned to the U.S. with unusually high white blood cell counts. Some think this prompted the Russians to cut the radiation. Others believe the Russians made the move as a gesture that Moscow is still interested in improving relations with the U.S.

Q: Though I've always heard Robert Redford doesn't give interviews, is it true his wife now encourages them for herself? — M.C., Fort Collins, Colo.

A: Mrs. Lola Redford hates interviews as much as her husband, but has been seeking them to get publicity for Consumer Action Now (CAN), a public interest group she founded. But she disappoints interviewers who try to get her to discuss anything but her interest in CAN.

Q: Is Elvis Presley still the lavish gift-giver he once was? I remember he used to buy houses and cars for his buddies. — S.P., Chicago

A: He still is and you don't even have to be a close friend. Recently, he gave away seven Cadillacs in one day, including one to a motorcycle policeman who said he sure would like a car, and another to a D.J. who told about the cop getting a Cadillac on the air.

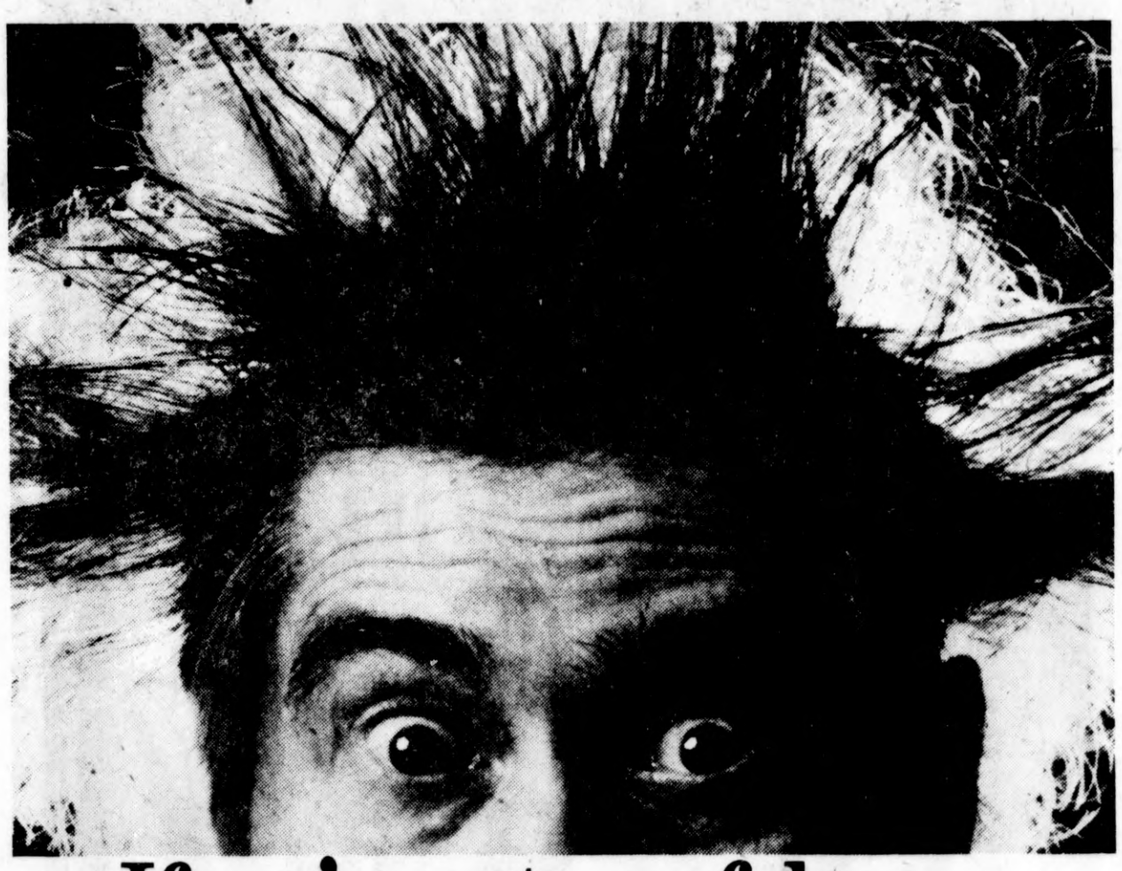
ASHLEY: Rachel has the story

REDFORD: Lola hates them, too



If you're not careful your CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Unfortunately, your CB base station antenna will not only help you reach more people, it could also put you in touch with our power lines.

And the slightest contact between you, your antenna and our lines could be fatal.

So, before you put up your antenna, here are a few suggestions you should follow.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Okay, if you're determined to do it yourself, look out for power lines. The ones attached to poles. And the ones attached to your house.

If you can't tell a power line from a phone line, don't experiment. Steer clear.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

That way, if it falls during construction, or gets blown down during a storm, it won't hit any lines and endanger you or your neighbors.

Trying to carry an antenna, climb a ladder and keep your balance all at the same time is risky business, too.

Wait for a calm day, assemble the antenna where you intend to put it up, be sure to ground the antenna properly and get somebody to help you.

Battle Creek Mother Active Women's Rights Worker

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The sprawling red Kellogg Co. cereal plant features a Tony the Tiger statue on its front lawn. It draws a wry smile from Ann Shafer as she heads to work on the midnight shift.

The fact that the famous tiger is a Tony, rather than a Toni, holds special significance to a woman who considers herself "one of the mothers" of the women's movement.

"There's an awful lot of us who are working behind the scenes," says Mrs. Shafer. "I don't have that killer instinct. My forte seems to be supportive. But I could be a 'workaholic' where women's rights are concerned."

Like many of her peers, Mrs. Shafer went to work for a motor products plant right after she graduated from Detroit Southeastern High School in 1939. Three months later, she was on a picket line, helping to organize the plant.

"We were in snow up to our hips," she recalled. "But we won. We got better safety regulations, separate bathrooms and work gloves."

Mrs. Shafer said she came by her firm faith in trade unionism naturally. Her father was a union marine engineer.

"To me, there is no alternative for the working person — not just the blue collar — other than unionism," Mrs. Shafer said. "Without it, you're just nothing."

Mrs. Shafer landed a job at Kellogg more than 30 years ago, after a tour in the Women's Army Corps during World War II. For almost 15 of those years, she has been recording secretary of Local 3 of the American Federation of Grain Millers. She is the only woman ever to hold office in the union.

"I ran for president once, and really got my ears pinned back," she said. "I'm not everyone's cup of tea. I can't even get elected recording secretary in my local anymore."

These days, her sphere of influence has spread far beyond the packing line where she works stuffing boxes of cereal into large cardboard boxes for shipping.

Off the job, Mrs. Shafer serves as a regional vice president in the national Coalition of Labor Union Women and a state central Democratic party delegate. She is president of the Battle Creek chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) and helped found the Kalamazoo NOW chapter.

And the 54-year-old has been appointed to the Michigan Women's Commission by Gov. William Milliken, a Republican.

Mrs. Shafer acknowledges that Kellogg has been one of the best companies in the U.S. in affording equal opportunity for women.

Still, in 1968, she filed a civil suit against the cerealmaker demanding, among other things, that the firm post every job opening on the bulletin boards to give women a chance to apply.

"I have yet to see a job labeled 'male' or 'female,'" she said. "Jobs are for people."

Women at Kellogg's plant in Memphis, Tenn., currently have pending a suit similar to Mrs. Shafer's — only the Memphis suit points a finger at the union as well as the company.

Her busy extracurricular schedule keeps Mrs. Shafer on the road virtually every weekend and ties up many of her weekdays. She averages about four hours of sleep a day.

"The drive I posses is probably not my own making. It's probably as much a part of me as my blue eyes and the fact that I'm 5-feet-1," she said. "It's part of my genes and where it came from, God only knows."

Mrs. Shafer said that her husband, Earl, and son, John — both of whom work at Kellogg — support her efforts, but worry about the effects of her non-stop schedule.

Mrs. Shafer says her greatest fear now is that the labor movement — and working women — will grow soft. Young workers, she said, seemed to lose a stong catalyst after the Vietnam war.

What might be the new catalyst?

"I wonder," Mrs. Shafer says. "Young workers have no understanding of the 1920s at all. I don't know."

The movement of many large companies to the largely non-union Sunbelt states also has Mrs. Shafer worried.

"It's going to be rough," she says.

Mrs. Shafer has no regrets, but said that if she had it to do over she would probaby pursue a college degree in social work and enter the political arena "because when the chips are down, that's where the cards are going to be played."

Despite her concerns for upcoming young workers, Mrs. Shafer says she is confident they are the hope of America.

"And that's why I've hung on to the bottom rung of this kind of a job. That's why I keep fighting," she said. "If I can hang on to that lower rung, if I can keep the door cracked, the sharp young gals coming up are going to take it over and really turn this around.

WORKING FOR RIGHTS: Ann Shafer stands by Tony the Tiger statue in front of sprawling W.K. Kellogg cereal plant in Battle Creek, where she has worked for more than 30 years. She considers herself "one of the mothers" of the women's movement. (AP Wirephoto)

'Roots' Author Sues Publisher

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Haley, author of the best-seller "Roots," has sued Doubleday & Co., accusing the publisher of failing to promote the book and underselling paperback rights.

Haley filed the $5 million damage suit Wednesday in Superior Court and claimed Doubleday violated its 1974 contract by not promoting the book through advertising and speaking engagements.

He said he had to promote "Roots" and negotiate the successful serialized television program based on the book.

Dear Mr. President:

"I am writing to ask you to give us freedom to eat what we wish. I am sick to death of the United States government taking products such as cyclamates and now saccharin off of the market because if we ate a ton a day it might kill us. Why doesn't the government let us decide if we want to kill ourselves or not.

People who smoke cigarettes haven't had them taken off the market and it is a proven fact that they kill people.

My husband is a diabetic and enjoys something sweet from time to time. Do we have to beg the government to let him eat what he wishes? It should be his choice, not the government's.

If this is a free country then let's make it such."

HEADLINE WRITER SLIPS UP

Editor,

Thank you for publicizing the meeting of the Berrien County Council of Churches last Thursday night at First Baptist church. You have always been most cooperative in giving column space to our activities, and many of our members have expressed appreciation for it.

May I call your attention to a misunderstanding of our membership, however, evidenced by your headline writer in the article published Wednesday, March 9, (Tolbert To Address Berrien Clergymen). We are not a clergy association. We are a council of churches, and lay persons far outnumber clergymen at all of our gatherings. Incidentally, the article itself was correct in every detail.

All of us, the religious community, greatly appreciate your generous news coverage of church services and special events. The quality of effort of those in your religous news department is to be highly commended.

HE OPPOSES SACCHARIN BAN

Editor,

I enclose a letter recently mailed to the FDA. I would appreciate it if you would print the following footnote:

Almost everyone will be affected if the FDA is successful in banning the sale or use of saccharin. Please write to your Senators and Congressman protesting this action. Addresses of your men in government are printed each week in The Herald-Palladium. The address of the FDA is below.

Gentlemen:

The impact of a ban on saccharin will be widespread, disruptive and a blow to the economy. The soft drink industry and other manufacturers and processors using artificial sweeteners will be hard hit financially but the worst aspect of the ban is its effect on the diabetic.

There are twenty million diabetics in the United States. Saccharin is currently the only artificial sweetener on the market. This action means that a 9% segment of U.S. citizens will have no acceptable method of sweetening beverages, cereals, fruit, desserts or any other food which requires sweetening to improve palatability. By this regulation you are restricting the rights of a tremendous number of people, all of whom already have enough trouble.

Dr. DeLoach, of the Pepsi-Cola Co., has reported that a human would have to consume 800 bottles of artifically sweetened soft drinks per day for a lifetime to obtain the equivalent amount of saccharin which was fed or forced into laboratory animals. This apt comparison makes the FDA look ridiculous, as it should.

Since a majority of diabetics take good care of themselves a they must if they want to live, and consequently use artificial sweeteners rather than sugar, I would like to suggest another approach to the saccharin problem.

Obviously, records of deaths caused by cancer are available. Undoubtedly these records will incidate if the deceased was a diabetic. If the incident of cancer in diabetics is above the national average for non-diabetics, perhaps you have a case for the banning of saccharin.

A brief study that I have made with professional help indicates that deaths of diabetics with cancer as the cause of death are few and far between. Remember, now, that these people use saccharin as a way of life. To digress, I would say that the 800 per day soft drink consumer is also in the few and far between category.

I work in the health care field and am involved with feeding patients with all types of disease. I am not a diabetic but I know how rough it is and I know how much rougher it will be without a palatable sweetener.

I urge you to reconsider this unjustifiable intrusion into the lives of millions of Americans; in fact, of all Americans.

Lawyer Ads Bring Lawsuit

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A weekly newspaper publisher has filed suit seeking to block distribution of General Telephone directories in Shiawassee County because the books contain advertisements for attorneys. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court here by William Morris, publisher of the Shiawasse Enterprise, a weekly newspaper based in Corunna.

Morris charges in his suit that the phone book ads discriminate against newspapers, which are forbidden to carry advertisements for attorneys under a 1976 state supreme court ruling. Morris said the court has given phone companies "an absolute monopoly" on the advertising, in conflict with the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. That amendment bars states from impeding freedoms contained in the federal constitution.

The publishe said he is considering expanding his suit to challenge distribution of all General Telephone directories in Michigan, as well as Michigan Bell directories. The initial action includes only Shiawassee County because the new General Telephone directories will be distributed there first, Morris said. No hearing has been set in the case.

NOW THAT SPRING IS AT HAND

Editor,

Summer coming soon; Spring almost here; I thought this would be one of the good safety mottos to publish:

O God, our Father: Keep my hands steady, my eyes clear and my mind alert at all times.

Forbid that my carelessness should harm another.

Watch over me and any who may accompany me. Protect me from danger and from harm and guide me safely to my journey's end. Amen.

SECURITY RULES HURT YOUNG JOBSEEKERS

Editor,

Bruce Mull asked how a young person can get work experience in order to get a job. Bruce addressed the employers, but union and government officials should also give answers to this fundamental question. What young person is there who hasn't run into the dilemma of needing work experience in order to get work?

Young people in early post World War II days had a sort of golden age of job opportunity, it now seems in retrospect, but

MME. CHIANG: Ill and bitter

Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, March 17, the 76th day of 1977. There are 289 days left in the year. This is St. Patrick's Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, British troops evacuated Boston by ship during the Revolutionary War. They had been under American siege since the Battle of Bunker Hill seven months earlier.

On this date:

In 1836, the Republic of Texas adopted a constitution.

In 1926, Brazil and Spain blocked Germany's admission to the League of Nations.

In 1966, A U.S. midget submarine located a hydrogen bomb which had fallen from an American bomber into the Mediterranean off Spain.

In 1970, charges were made against 22 American army officers and enlisted men in connection with the killing of civilians at My Lai in South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson pigeon-holed his proposal to create a new Department of Economic Affairs by merging the Labor and Commerce departments.

Five years ago: The Nixon Administration directed the U.S. Air Force to gradually withdraw a substantial number of its planes from Taiwan over the next two years.

One year ago: President Gerald R. Ford told protesting American Jewish organizations that he was determined to go ahead with plans to sell military transport planes to Egypt.

Thought for today: Don't go around saying the world owes you a living. The world owes you nothing; it was here first. — Mark Twain, American writer, 1835-1910.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Sarah Dylan, wife of singer-songwriter Bob Dylan, says her husband struck and injured her, brought another woman into their house and ordered her to leave.

Rex Harrison's Fourth 'Ex' Has Story

Q: I know Liz Ashley is married, but are the rumors true about her romance with Rex Harrison, now that they have appeared in "Caesar and Cleopatra"? — L.L., New York.

A: The real story these days comes from Rachel Roberts, Rex's fourth ex-wife, who is now his confidante after having patched up their old animosities. Rachel's been telling all listeners that Rex's passion for Ashley appears real but that nothing worth mentioning has happened yet. Liz thinks it is all great fun, and is convinced she'll be able to claim success sooner or later.

FINAL FLOURISH: In his last moments in government, Henry Kissinger's beloved State Department came to his aid in a personal crisis. Henry's Labrador retriever, Tyler, had stepped on a light bulb and got a piece of glass stuck deep in his paw. Henry summoned Dr. William M. Watson, the top Department physician (with the rank of Deputy Assistant Secretary of State), who came to the rescue and performed emergency surgery to remove the glass.

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

Q: Is Henry Wynberg's financial situation OK since the very rich Elizabeth Taylor left him? — M. O'C., Muncie, Ind.

A: Not as bad as you might think, thanks to the generous Liz. The star's goodbye present was giving him the rights to an "Elizabeth Taylor" line of cosmetics. She turned over the rights for a token payment of $100 and Wynberg promptly sold them to a big manufacturer for a fat fee plus royalties.

A: Bitter and disillusioned over her own ill health, the 79-year-old widow of the late Generalissimo has been spending more and more time in the U.S., receiving frequent treatment for cancer. She has become a recluse, her dreams long gone of sustaining her power as a great political influence. Occasionally, a New Yorker catches a glimpse of Mme. Chiang, riding in an old limousine, shades pulled down and four bodyguards from the Taiwan army surrounding her frail person.

REALLY INSIDE STUFF: The Russians have just agreed to cut the level of high intensity micro-radiation they've been beaming at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. American officials think it's a spying device, but the Russians claim the radiation is used to jam Embassy intelligence-sending equipment. Why have the Russians cut the amount of radiation? We've been protesting the practice for years. Several Embassy staffers were recently returned to the U.S. with unusually high white blood cell counts. Some think this prompted the Russians to cut the radiation. Others believe the Russians made the move as a gesture that Moscow is still interested in improving relations with the U.S.

Q: Though I've always heard Robert Redford doesn't give interviews, is it true his wife now encourages them for herself? — M.C., Fort Collins, Colo.

A: Mrs. Lola Redford hates interviews as much as her husband, but has been seeking them to get publicity for Consumer Action Now (CAN), a public interest group she founded. But she disappoints interviewers who try to get her to discuss anything but her interest in CAN.

Q: Is Elvis Presley still the lavish gift-giver he once was? I remember he used to buy houses and cars for his buddies. — S.P., Chicago

A: He still is and you don't even have to be a close friend. Recently, he gave away seven Cadillacs in one day, including one to a motorcycle policeman who said he sure would like a car, and another to a D.J. who told about the cop getting a Cadillac on the air.

If you're not careful your CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Unfortunately, your CB base station antenna will not only help you reach more people, it could also put you in touch with our power lines.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

Trying to carry an antenna, climb a ladder and keep your balance all at the same time is risky business, too.

Husband Bound Over On Rolling Pin Attack Charge

David H. Lincoln, 31, of 1717 South State street, St. Joseph, was bound over to Berrien Circuit court yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Lincoln was ordered bound over after he waived a preliminary examination in Berrien District court. He was returned to jail in lieu of $25,000 bond set by Judge John Hammond.

Also bound over yesterday were:

Joyce Vance, 39, of 2482 Kurt street, Benton township, on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder on Betty Jo Davis in Benton Harbor March 6.

Bobbie D. Rogers, 30, of 794 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering the housing commission office in Benton Harbor March 5.

Michael H. Shearman, 25, of 1330 Fairfield drive, Niles, on two charges of obtaining money under false pretenses over $100. He was accused of obtaining money last July from Inter-City bank, Nickerson avenue, Benton township, by falsely claiming to have $115 and $120 in two separate savings accounts.

Mary Ann Johnson (also known as Ernestine Carter), 22, of 176 Church street, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a store in Benton Harbor Feb. 15.

Sentenced were:

James Chambers, 23, of 373 Felton avenue, Benton township, concurrent sentences of 90 and 45 days jail for contempt — failing to pay $100 fine and costs overdue Dec. 17 for a conviction of fleeing and eluding a police officer and failing to pay $35 overdue Dec. 27 for a conviction of reckless driving.

Howard A. Daisy, 26, of Biastock road, Bainbridge township, 45 days for attempted larceny under $100 — a .22-caliber rifle from Rafter's hardware store, Coloma, Oct. 26.

Howard M. Fairbanks, 20, of 1987 Nash street, St. Joseph township, 10 days, $260 fine and costs, and one year of probation for attempted unlawful use of an auto — a 1973 Ford van belonging to Clarence Mott — in Benton township March 2.

Hard For Young To Locate Jobs

even we had problems at times. One time in Alaska, money was running out much faster than I anticipated, and that was a mighty long ways from home for a young person. I stopped at a little lumber company along the Alaska Railroad and asked for a job.

The boss said "Sure," and signed me up. The camp bull cook showed me living quarters in the bunkhouse and told me to get a meal at the mess hall before going to work. So, within minutes, the world changed from dark and gloomy to bright and adventurous again for that young person. I wasn't interested in long term employee benefits or job security any more than the company was; I needed a job just then, and the company needed help just then. It was that simple. After a couple weeks of mutually beneficial work for the company, I went on to another job with the railroad itself, to see more of Alaska.

What is the trend now? Employers are so tied up in government and union restrictions that they can afford to hire new and inexperienced help only as a last resort. Just lately a steelworkers union has been asking for a guarantee of lifetime jobs for members. That's like zombies asking for chains. The gruesome thing about it is that, when the union pushes for such a provision, the steelworkers forge chains for all of us as well as for themselves.

I don't know if you can do it, Bruce, but somehow you young people have got to get the trend turned toward free enterprise and away from government restricted enterprise, if there's to be a happy answer to your question. As a starter, try to get hold of a copy of Ludwig von Mises' book, "Human Action." It's safe to say the world would be a happier place for jobseekig young people if, instead of socialist principles, the economic principles explained by Mises had been acted upon, over the past 40 years.

WARNS AGAINST THE 'MOONIES'

Editor,

In a time when many of America's teenagers are looking for a direction or a reality in life and at the same time parents seemingly care less and less about these teenagers, I felt impelled to write this letter of warning to inform the teenagers and educate the parents about a new religious cult headed by Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

The Unification church which is headed by this 56-year-old Korean boasts of having over 30 thousand American members nicknamed "moonies" who live full time in communes scattered throughout the United States. Posing as a place where a teenager can find "happiness" and be "loved" they lure unsuspecting teenagers like yours in this web-like organization. After the removal of the teenager from his family, they use brainwashing techniques such as lack of sleep, poor food, ceaseless noise and commotion, isolation, and chanting prayers and songs to weaken the mental resistance and to make the teenager afraid to break free.

Take note that by appearance the girls are modestly dressed in skirts and the boys are neat and clean. They will approach you on the street or in a place of business and say that they are selling flowers or candy for a rehabilitation program or a Christian youth project. There are many local church activities that we as a community can rally behind and support. Insist that they tell you where your donation is going and what the name of the organization is that they represent.

The Buchanan and Niles areas have already been visited by these "moonies". When they approach you — for they have a circuit that they travel — be aware that these are children who have been taken from their families and brainwashed. Do not, under any circumstances, donate to their cause or allow them to use your place of business as a springboard for this conspiracy.

THIS READER 'WAS THERE'

Editor,

Regarding your article, "At That Moment", Memorial Day, 1937, South Chicago, Ill., Republic Steel Mill.

You, The Herald-Palladium, took liberty to write about that day. The article is full of inaccuracies, "I know, I was there."

To begin with, there was not a crowd of 1,500 ragged people there, there were about 200 citizen workers on their way to the main plant gate, to mass picket in an orderly fashion.

The very thought that a group of citizen workers, strikers, had a thought of seizing the plant is, was, preposterous. To begin with, they were outnumbered by the Chicago police and company guards. "I know, I was there."

The object of the workers was to get union negotiation. The mill had been in operation for six months with non-union or scab labor.

As your article says, big steel had already settled and recognized the C.I.O., giving a 10 per cent increase, plus a 40-hour week. The idea that the Republic Steel Mill was under seige is, was ludicrous. The brutality of the Chicago police and company guards is true.

A well organized police plan was brought into order. Of the 200 citizens in the parade across a field, the police allowed them to penetrate their lines. Then piecemeal they murdered men and women. Those that the police missed, the high powered rifles of the company guards got from the roofs of the plant. "I know, I was there." I was lucky, young and fast, but some of my friends did not fare as well.

Your article says the strikers lost the battle and won the war. It took four years for the government to enforce the Wagner Labor Act against Little Steel.

I think of the shame of our government not enforcing the law against large companies.

The profit motive is a beautiful thing, but when it hurts the workers of this nation, I have second thoughts.

That day, 40 years ago, seems like only a few months ago. The hurt, the agony, the grief, it's still there.

I well remember the day of the funeral of the massacred seven. Three others died within a few days. Their bodies lay in state at the C.I.O. Union headquarters. There was a notable absence of police. There were thousands of people. It was a time of sorrow, "I know, I was there."

The police were wary, they kept out of sight. The 10 dead are 40-years dead, but not forgotten. There are still many of us today that still remembers.

Vincent Barnes, 15, of 996 Monroe street, said a man driving a white station wagon tried to run him and two friends down as they were walking in the 1000 block of Monroe street Wednesday afternoon, Benton Harbor police reported.

Police said Larry Reese, 15, of 419 Clay street, Benton Harbor, and Richard Buels, 16, of 2025 Territorial road, Benton township, were walking with Barnes when the auto allegedly went over the curb and almost hit them as they were walking on the sidewalk.

Benton Harbor Patrolman Galen Anderson said the youths reported the car chased them several times Wednesday afternoon before leaving the area.

The police report quoted the youths as saying they did not know the driver of the station wagon.

Bands receiving first division ratings in district competition were as follows, according to Wentworth:

Class A — St. Joseph and South Haven.

Class B — Brandywine, Buchanan and River Valley.

Class D — Gobles and Galien.

Auto Hits Truck; Trio Injured

Three Chicagoans sustained cuts and bruises Wednesday morning when their car skidded 280 feet and flipped over after colliding with a truck on I-94, Berrien sheriff's officers said. Treated and released at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, were Harry W. McCann, 21, Jesse Miller, 17, and Rudolph Rech, 15, hospital officials reported. Sheriff's officers said a car driven by McCann collided with a truck driven by Alan L. Bassett, 28, of Wyoming, Mich., while both vehicles were eastbound about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday on I-94, Lincoln township. McCann was ticketed on a charge of reckless driving, sheriff's deputies said.

In another accident, St. Joseph city police said Lois M. Smith, 39, of 610 Court street, St. Joseph, and Marie T. Weak, 44, of Eau Claire, were treated and released for apparently minor injuries at Memorial hospital, after a two-car collision Wednesday afternoon. Both women were driving on Cleveland avenue about 3:30 p.m. when their autos collided head-on, police said. No tickets were issued, police reported.

Wrong Car Had Siren, Police Say

NILES, — A Niles man was arrested by police here last night in connection with the use of an emergency siren on a private car.

Police said Barry Miltenberger, 17, was arrested on a charge of impersonating an emergency vehicle about 10 p.m. They said the arrest came after the car was driven past a police car.

Officers said the siren was seized.

Men Face Gun Charges

PAW PAW — Two Decatur men demanded preliminary examination on charges of carrying a concealed weapon when arraigned Wednesday in Seventh district court.

Paul J. Chamness, 27, route 1, 46th street, was ordered held on $5,000 bond and Gilbert C. Koehne, 36, 108 Pine street, on $3,500 bond pending a hearing March 22.

State police at Paw Paw said the two were arrested yesterday after officers stopped a car for speeding on M-51 near Eagle lake. Police said a .38-caliber revolver and a .22-caliber revolver were found during a search of the vehicle.

Mother Bars Suitor; He Sends Her Scorpion

LONDON (AP) — A London gangster who mailed a scorpion to his girl friend's mother when she banned him from seeing her daughter was sent to prison today.

Prosecuting attorney Colin Hart-Leverton said it was "very poisonous and possibly deadly." It was part of a vendetta pursued against Kate O'Driscoll by 26-year-old James Eustace when she refused to let him meet her 18-year-old daughter Anne.

Hart-Leverton said a mailman delivered a parcel containing the scorpion at Mrs. O'Driscoll's London home.

Mrs. O'Driscoll, to whom Eustace already had sent wreaths bearing "deepest sympathy" messages, suspected a bomb and called the police.

An officer who opened the parcel found what he thought was a toy spider but then it started moving. It was a fourinch long African yellow scorpion, the most dangerous species, that Eustace had bought from a London animal dealer for $3.40, Hart-Leverton said. They managed to trap it without being stung.

Mason jailed him for a year for mailing the scorpion and 10 years for the robberies and ordered that the two sentences should run concurrently.

Mrs. O'Driscoll told reporters outside the court, "the scorpion paralyzed our famiy with fear. It ran around our front room and if it had stung anyone of us we could have died."

ter to President Carter, Senator Riegel, Senator Griffin and Congressman David Stockman. I believe it is pertinent at this time.

Dear Mr. President:

"I am writing to ask you to give us freedom to eat what we wish. I am sick to death of the United States government taking products such as cyclamates and now saccharin off of the market because if we ate a ton a day it might kill us. Why doesn't the government let us decide if we want to kill ourselves or not.

People who smoke cigarettes haven't had them taken off the market and it is a proven fact that they kill people.

My husband is a diabetic and enjoys something sweet from time to time. Do we have to beg the government to let him eat what he wishes? It should be his choice, not the government's.

If this is a free country then let's make it such."

HEADLINE WRITER SLIPS UP

Editor,

Thank you for publicizing the meeting of the Berrien County Council of Churches last Thursday night at First Baptist church. You have always been most cooperative in giving column space to our activities, and many of our members have expressed appreciation for it.

May I call your attention to a misunderstanding of our membership, however, evidenced by your headline writer in the article published Wednesday, March 9, (Tolbert To Address Berrien Clergymen). We are not a clergy association. We are a council of churches, and lay persons far outnumber clergymen at all of our gatherings. Incidentally, the article itself was correct in every detail.

All of us, the religious community, greatly appreciate your generous news coverage of church services and special events. The quality of effort of those in your religious news department is to be highly commended.

HE OPPOSES SACCHARIN BAN

Editor,

I enclose a letter recently mailed to the FDA. I would appreciate it if you would print the following footnote:

Almost everyone will be affected if the FDA is successful in banning the sale or use of saccharin. Please write to your Senators and Congressman protesting this action. Addresses of your men in government are printed each week in The Herald-Palladium. The address of the FDA is below.

Gentlemen:

The impact of a ban on saccharin will be widespread, disruptive and a blow to the economy. The soft drink industry and other manufacturers and processors using artificial sweeteners will be hard hit financially but the worst aspect of the ban is its effect on the diabetic.

There are twenty million diabetics in the United States. Saccharin is currently the only artificial sweetener on the market. This action means that a 9% segment of U.S. citizens will have no acceptable method of sweetening beverages, cereals, fruit, desserts or any other food which requires sweetening to improve palatability. By this regulation you are restricting the rights of a tremendous number of people, all of whom already have enough trouble.

Dr. DeLuach, of the Pepsi-Cola Co., has reported that a human would have to consume 800 bottles of artifically sweetened soft drinks per day for a lifetime to obtain the equivalent amount of saccharin which was fed or forced into laboratory animals. This apt comparison makes the FDA look ridiculous, as it should.

Since a majority of diabetics take good care of themselves a they must if they want to live, and consequently use artificial sweeteners rather than sugar, I would like to suggest another approach to the saccharin problem.

Obviously, records of deaths caused by cancer are available. Undoubtedly these records will incidate if the deceased was a diabetic. If the incident of cancer in diabetics is above the national average for non-diabetics, perhaps you have a case for the banning of saccharin.

A brief study that I have made with professional help indicates that deaths of diabetics with cancer as the cause of death are few and far between. Remember, now, that these people use saccharin as a way of life. To digress, I would say that the 800 per day soft drink consumer is also in the few and far between category.

I work in the health care field and am involved with feeding patients with all types of disease. I am not a diabetic but I know how much rougher it will be without a palatable sweetener.

I urge you to reconsider this unjustifiable intrusion into the lives of millions of Americans: in fact, of all Americans.

Lawyer Ads Bring Lawsuit

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A weekly newspaper publisher has filed suit seeking to block distribution of General Telephone directories in Shiawassee County because the books contain advertisements for attorneys. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court here by William Morris, publisher of the Shiawasse Enterprise, a weekly newspaper based in Corunna.

Morris charges in his suit that the phone book ads discriminate against newspapers, which are forbidden to carry advertisements for attorneys under a 1976 state supreme court ruling. Morris said the court has given phone companies "an absolute monopoly" on the advertising, in conflict with the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. That amendment bars states from impeding freedoms contained in the federal constitution.

The publishe said he is considering expanding his suit to challenge distribution of all General Telephone directories in Michigan, as well as Michigan Bell directories. The initial action includes only Shiawassee County because the new General Telephone directories will be distributed there first, Morris said. No hearing has been set in the case.

SECURITY RULES HURT YOUNG JOBSEEKERS

Editor,

Bruce Mull asked how a young person can get work experience in order to get a job. Bruce addressed the employers, but union and government officials should also give answers to this fundamental question. What young person is there who hasn't run into the dilemma of needing work experience in order to get work?

Young people in early post World War II days had a sort of golden age of job opportunity, it now seems in retrospect, but

Husband Bound Over On Rolling Pin Attack Charge

David H. Lincoln, 31, of 1717 South State street, St. Joseph, was bound over to Berrien Circuit court yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Lincoln was ordered bound over after he waived a preliminary examination in Berrien District court. He was returned to jail in lieu of $25,000 bond set by Judge John Hammond.

Lincoln is charged with assaulting his wife, Linda, with a pastry rolling pin at their residence Feb. 27, according to St. Joseph police. Mrs. Lincoln required emergency treatment at Memorial hospital, officers said.

Also bound over yesterday were:

Joyce Vance, 39, of 2482 Kurt street, Benton township, on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder on Betty Jo Davis in Benton Harbor March 5.

Bobbie D. Rogers, 30, of 794 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering the housing commission office in Benton Harbor March 5.

Demanding preliminary examinations were:

Michael H. Shearman, 25, of 1330 Fairfield drive, Niles, on two charges of obtaining money under false pretenses over $100. He was accused of obtaining money last July from Inter-City bank, Nickerson avenue, Benton township, by falsely claiming to have $115 and $120 in two separate savings accounts.

Mary Ann Johnson (also known as Ernestine Carter), 22, of 175 Church street, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering a store in Benton Harbor Feb. 15.

Sentenced were:

James Chambers, 23, of 373 Felton avenue, Benton township, concurrent sentences of 90 and 45 days jail for contempt — failing to pay $100 fine and costs overdue Dec. 17 for a conviction of fleeing and eluding a police officer and failing to pay $35 overdue Dec. 27 for a conviction of reckless driving.

Howard A. Dusy, 26, of Blastock road, Bainbridge township, 45 days for attempted larceny under $100 — a .22-caliber rifle from Ralter's hardware store, Coloma, Oct. 26.

Howard M. Fairbanks, 20, of 1987 Nash street, St. Joseph township, 10 days, $260 fine and costs, and one year of probation for attempted unlawful use of an auto — a 1973 Ford van belonging to Clarence Mott — in Benton township March 2.

Shelby J. Watson, 20, of 875 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, 30 days for contempt, failing to pay $55 fine and costs overdue Jan. 19 for a conviction of tampering with a motor vehicle.

Alexander B. Zandarski, 24, of Box 253D Linco road, Berrien Springs, two days, $200 and two years probation for possession of a firearm (a shotgun) while under the influence of intoxicants in Oronoko township March 4. A charge of assault with a deadly weapon was dismissed.

James Bethea, 25, of 319 Riford street, Benton Harbor, three days and $82 for driving while his license was revoked in Benton township March 15.

Sentenced for driving while impaired were Marion J. Treat, 51, of Mishawaka, and Anthony J. Phita, 22, of Chesterton, Ind., each $152 or 30 days.

Hard For Young To Locate Jobs

even we had problems at times. One time in Alaska, money was running out much faster than I anticipated, and that was a mighty long ways from home for a young person. I stopped at a little lumber company along the Alaska Railroad and asked for a job.

The boss said "Sure," and signed me up. The camp bull cook showed me living quarters in the bunkhouse and told me to get a meal at the mess hall before going to work. So, within minutes, the world changed from dark and gloomy to bright and adventurous again for that young person. I wasn't interested in long term employee benefits or job security any more than the company was; I needed a job just then, and the company needed help just then. It was that simple. After a couple weeks of mutually beneficial work for the company, I went on to another job with the railroad itself, to see more of Alaska.

What is the trend now? Employers are so tied up in government and union restrictions that they can afford to hire new and inexperienced help only as a last resort. Just lately a steelworkers union has been asking for a guarantee of lifetime jobs for members. That's like zombies asking for chains. The gruesome thing about it is that, when the union pushes for such a provision, the steelworkers forge chains for all of us as well as for themselves.

I don't know if you can do it, Bruce, but somehow you young people have got to get the trend turned toward free enterprise and away from government restricted enterprise, if there's to be a happy answer to your question. As a starter, try to get hold of a copy of Ludwig von Mises' book, "Human Action." It's safe to say the world would be a happier place for job-seekig young people if, instead of socialist principles, the economic principles explained by Mises had been acted upon, over the past 40 years.

WARNS AGAINST THE 'MOONIES'

Editor,

In a time when many of America's teenagers are looking for a direction or a reality in life and at the same time parents seemingly care less and less about these teenagers, I felt impelled to write this letter of warning to inform the teenagers and educate the parents about a new religious cult headed by Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

The Unification church which is headed by this 56-year-old Korean boasts of having over 30 thousand American members nicknamed "moonies" who live full time in communes scattered throughout the United States. Posing as a place where a teenager can find "happiness" and be "loved" they lure unsuspecting teenagers like yours in this web-like organization. After the removal of the teenager from his family, they use brainwashing techniques such as lack of sleep, poor food, ceaseless noise and commotion, isolation, and chanting prayers and songs to weaken the mental resistance and to make the teenager afraid to break free.

Take note that by appearance the girls are modestly dressed in skirts and the boys are neat and clean. They will approach you on the street or in a place of business and say that they are selling flowers or candy for a rehabilitation program or a Christian youth project. There are many local church activities that we as a community can rally behind and support. Insist that they tell you where your donation is going and what the name of the organization is that they represent.

The Buchanan and Niles areas have already been visited by these "moonies". When they approach you — for they have a circuit that they travel — be aware that these are children who have been taken from their families and brainwashed. Do not, under any circumstances, donate to their cause or allow them to use your place of business as a springboard for this conspiracy.

THIS READER 'WAS THERE'

Editor,

Regarding your article, "At That Moment", Memorial Day, 1937, South Chicago, Ill., Republic Steel Mill.

You, The Herald-Palladium, took liberty to write about that day. The article is full of inaccuracies. "I know, I was there."

To begin with, there was not a crowd of 1,500 ragged people there, there were about 200 citizen workers on their way to the main plant gate, to mass picket in an orderly fashion.

The very thought that a group of citizen workers, strikers, had a thought of seizing the plant is, was, preposterous. To begin with, they were outnumbered by the Chicago police and company guards. "I know, I was there."

The object of the workers was to get union negotiation. The mill had been in operation for six months with non-union or scab labor.

As your article says, big steel had already settled and recognized the C.I.O., giving a 10 per cent increase, plus a 40-hour week. The idea that the Republic Steel Mill was under seige is, was ludicrous. The brutality of the Chicago police and company guards is true.

A well organized police plan was brought into order. Of the 200 citizens in the parade across a field, the police allowed them to penetrate their lines. Then piecemeal they murdered men and women. Those that the police missed, the high powered rifles of the company guards got from the roofs of the plant. "I know, I was there." I was lucky, young and fast, but some of my friends did not fare as well.

Your article says the strikers lost the battle and won the war. It took four years for the government to enforce the Wagner Labor Act against Little Steel.

I think of the shame of our government not enforcing the law against large companies.

The profit motive is a beautiful thing, but when it hurts the workers of this nation, I have second thoughts.

That day, 40 years ago, seems like only a few months ago. The hurt, the agony, the grief, it's still there.

I will remember the day of the funeral of the massacred seven. Three others died within a few days. Their bodies lay in state at the C.I.O. Union headquarters. There was a notable absence of police. There were thousands of people. It was a time of sorrow. "I know, I was there."

The police were wary, they kept out of sight. The 10 dead are 40-years dead, but not forgotten. There are still many of us today that still remember.

Mother Bars Suitor; He Sends Her Scorpion

LONDON (AP) — A London gangster who mailed a scorpion to his girl friend's mother when she banned him from seeing her daughter was sent to prison today.

Police produced the live scorpion in a jar at the Old Bailey central criminal court for Judge Peter Mason to examine.

Prosecuting attorney Colin Hart-Leverton said it was "very poisonous and possibly deadly." It was part of a vendetta pursued against Kate O'Driscoll by 26-year-old James Eustace when she refused to let him meet her 18-year-old daughter Anne.

Hart-Leverton said a mailman delivered a parcel containing the scorpion at Mrs. O'Driscoll's London home.

Mrs. O'Driscoll, to whom Eustace already had sent wreaths bearing "deepest sympathy" messages, suspected a bomb and called the police.

An officer who opened the parcel found what he thought was a toy spider but then it started moving. It was a fourinch long African yellow scorpion, the most dangerous species, that Eustace had bought from a London animal dealer for $9.40, Hart-Leverton said. They managed to trap it without being stung.

Eustace, who pleaded guilty to mailing "a noxious living creature" in a postal packet, also admitted taking part in a series of armed robberies.

Mason jailed him for a year for mailing the scorpion and 10 years for the robberies and ordered that the two sentences should run concurrently.

Mrs. O'Driscoll told reporters outside the court, "the scorpion paralyzed our family with fear. It ran around our front room and if it had stung anyone of us we could have died."

Hospital Reports Surplus

Berrien General hospital today reported an operating surplus of $18,217 on receipts in excess of $5 million in fiscal year 1976. This compares to a $2,893 deficit reported for fiscal 1975.

The financial report was presented to the Berrien county board of commissioners this morning by V.E. Garber, a member of the hospital's board of trustees and vice president of financial administration, Andrews university.

The hospital's gross revenue for fiscal year 1976 was $5,085,737 while operating expenses were $5,067,220. The surplus was attributed to an increase in revenue and the hospital's efforts to hold down expenses, said Garber.

The 1976 audit report for the hospital showed an increase in revenue of 15.3 percent while expenses increased by 14.8 percent.

"Our auditors were very complimentary on this point," said Garber. "Generally expenses are tending to rise more rapidly than revenue for hospitals these days. The fact that we were able to increase revenue with less than aproportionate increase in expenses is a credit to our cost containment efforts."

He also noted that although the hospital reported a surplus of revenue over expenses for this period, it amounted to only four-tenths of one per cent of the hospital's revenue from patient services.

Garber said the growth in working capital for Berrien General has not kept pace with the inflationary spiral experienced by all hospitals.

"The hospital is not generating any significant increase in working capital from operations," he said. "Instead, we must use depreciation funds to make up for the effect of inflation on our working capital. This is money that should be set aside to renovate and replace facilities and equipment," said Garber.

The hospital showed increases in both accounts receivable and accounts payable for fiscal year 1976. The hospital's accounts receivable had increased by $173,802 to $989,259 at the end of the accounting period. An additional $241,069 was due from Medicare, Medicaid, and Michigan Hospital Service for patient services in both 1975 and 1976.

At the same time, the hospital's accounts payable increased by $210,591 to $287,055 by the end of fiscal year 1976.

Berrien General hospital at Berrien Center makes an annual financial report to the Berrien county board of commissioners after the completion of the hospital's annual audit. The hospital's fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

OVER 1,450 WARRANTS OUTSTANDING

Warning Issued By Berrien Sheriff

The Brien county sheriff's department plans to begin serving more than 1,450 outstanding warrants in its files, according to Don Jewell, chief deputy of the sheriff's department. Jewell said the sheriff's department will begin executing the warrants Monday and is giving those who have warrants against them an opportunity to clear the matter up before they are served.

The majority of the outstanding warrants are for alleged offenses during the past year, according to Jewell, although several warrants for felonies go back to 1968 and 1969. The 1,450 outstanding warrants are a collection from the Berrien sheriff's department and the St. Joseph, Benton Harbor and Benton township police departments, Jewell said.

Jewell said he couldn't pinpoint a reason for the large amount of outstanding warrants. "We haven't had the manpower," he said. "We're going to have to drop a lot of other things because this is getting out of hand." The majority of the warrants are civil bench warrants, such as non-support, and criminal bench warrants, such as failure to appear for sentencing and failure to comply with a court order, according to Jewell. There are also some warrants for traffic violations, simple misdemeanors and some felonies, he said.

Jewell said he is issuing a warning before beginning to process the warrants to allow those who have oustanding warrants against them to clear up the matter before the warrant is executed. He said the sheriff's department will begin executing the warrants beginning Monday. Those who have violated court orders or who have been issued traffic citations should report to the respective courts of jurisdiction, Jewell said, while all others should report to the sheriff's department.

The only insurance company headquartered in southwestern Michigan, Wolverine has grown to a nearly $4 million premium writing company in 1976, according to its president D. Bruce Laing. The company has 27,000 policyholders.

Laing said employes and friends will celebrate the occasion with a birthday cake cutting at the Wolverine offices on M-62, one mile east of here.

The company was founded March 17, 1917, in Dowagiac, by E. Bruce Laing, W.E. Sweet, Charles Heddon, Clare F. Pugsley, all of Dowagiac, and Dr. Fred N. Bonine of Niles. The company was formed to serve the growing needs of the then young automobile industry, much of which was centered in Michigan and northern Indiana.

State Asked To Pay For Tainted Milk

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state was awaiting a court order this morning that could force it to pay for disposal of milk from Michigan dairy herds quarantined for contamination by a poisonous wood preservative.

Dairy farmers Robert Curtis of Nashville and Dale Hackenberg of Marcellus filed a court complaint Tuesday asking that the state be ordered to haul away milk that has been accumulating in storage tanks since their herds were quarantined last Friday.

The quarantines were imposed on eight central Michigan herds by the state Department of Agriculture because it feared that the milk might contain highly toxic dioxins. The animals show levels of pentachlorophenol, a wood preservative that may contain the poisonous dioxin byproducts.

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Jack Warren set an emergency hearing on the question for 8:30 this morning. Warren said he expected his decision to apply to other farmers in similar straits.

The farmers fear if they dump the milk on their own land and it later is found to contain dioxins, their water supplies could be contaminated.

"I can't say that I blame them," agriculture director B. Dale Ball said Wednesday. His department is named in the complaint. Also named are the Department of Natural Resources and the Water Resources Commission.

Besides Curtis and Hackenberg, six other farmers have had their herds quarantined for the same reason. The quarantine means they cannot sell meat or milk, although test results are not yet in to show if dioxins are present in the milk.

But, said Webb Smith, a Lansing attorney representing Curtis and Hackenberg, "If the agriculture department feels there's sufficient basis to issue a quarantine, it's likely there's sufficient basis for us not to dump it (the milk) on our land."

The agriculture department advised Smith's clients to hire an industrial waste hauler to get rid of the milk, Smith said, but that would be too expensive. It would cost one of his clients $1,400 a week, he said.

One farmer, George LeMunyon of Cedar Springs, has been dumping his possibly poisoned milk on his land since his herd was quarantined in mid-January. It's not known how other farmers are getting rid of theirs.

Department of Natural Resources officials are advising farmers who can't afford to have milk hauled away to bury the milk in shallow holes dug in clay soil in a wooded or unplanted area of their land

But one DNR official said because the ground has been softened by melting snow, farmers' tractors bog down and some can't haul the milk to secluded spots to be dumped

Prince Charles Touring Kenya

NAKURU, Kenya (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, paid a courtesy visit to President Jomo Kenyatta after a private camping safari in this African country.

Tuesday's visit to Kenyatta was Charles' first public appearance since he flew into Nairobi March 6.

Charles, a bachelor, had been camping in Kenya's Aberdare Mountains. British reporters tried to locate him before Tuesday after unconfirmed rumors circulated that he was accompanied on the trip by a blonde woman.

Hospital Reports Surplus

Berrien General hospital today reported an operating surplus of $18,217 on receipts in excess of $5 million in fiscal year 1976. This compares to a $2,893 deficit reported for fiscal 1975.

The financial report was presented to the Berrien county board of commissioners this morning by V.E. Garber, a member of the hospital's board of trustees and vice president of financial administration, Andrews university.

The hospital's gross revenue for fiscal year 1976 was $5,085,737 while operating expenses were $5,067,220. The surplus was attributed to an increase in revenue and the hospital's efforts to hold down expenses, said Garber.

The 1976 audit report for the hospital showed an increase in revenue of 15.3 percent while expenses increased by 14.8 percent.

"Our auditors were very complimentary on this point," said Garber. "Generally expenses are tending to rise more rapidly than revenue for hospitals these days. The fact that we were able to increase revenue with less than aproportionate increase in expenses is a credit to our cost containment efforts."

He also noted that although the hospital reported a surplus of revenue over expenses for this period, it amounted to only four-tenths of one per cent of the hospital's revenue from patient services.

Garber said the growth in working capital for Berrien General has not kept pace with the inflationary spiral experienced by all hospitals.

"The hospital is not generating any significant increase in working capital from operations," he said. "Instead, we must use depreciation funds to make up for the effect of inflation on our working capital. This is money that should be set aside to renovate and replace facilities and equipment," said Garber.

The hospital showed increases in both accounts receivable and accounts payable for fiscal year 1976. The hospital's accounts receivable had increased by $173,802 to $989,259 at the end of the accounting period. An additional $241,069 was due from Medicare, Medicaid, and Michigan Hospital Service for patient services in both 1975 and 1976.

At the same time, the hospital's accounts payable increased by $210,591 to $287,055 by the end of fiscal year 1976.

Berrien General hospital at Berrien Center makes an annual financial report to the Berrien county board of commissioners after the completion of the hospital's annual audit. The hospital's fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

Niles Teen Accused Of Break-In

NILES — City police here said today they apprehended a Niles man earlier today inside the United Tire and Auto Parts store, 301 South 11th street (US-31).

Arrested on a charge of breaking and entering was Gregory Radka, 17, Niles.

Police said they went to the store and found a man inside after they were alerted by an alarm at 1:16 a.m. that the closed store had been entered. They said they spotted a man inside the building when they arrived.

Plywood covering a broken store window had been pushed back to gain entry, police said.

Warning Issued By Berrien Sheriff

The Brien county sheriff's department plans to begin serving more than 1,450 outstanding warrants in its files, according to Don Jewell, chief deputy of the sheriff's department. Jewell said the sheriff's department will begin executing the warrants Monday and is giving those who have warrants against them an opportunity to clear the matter up before they are served.

The majority of the outstanding warrants are for alleged offenses during the past year, according to Jewell, although several warrants for felonies go back to 1968 and 1969. The 1,450 outstanding warrants are a collection from the Berrien sheriff's department and the St. Joseph, Benton Harbor and Benton township police departments, Jewell said.

Jewell said he couldn't pinpoint a reason for the large amount of outstanding warrants. "We haven't had the manpower," he said. "We're going to have to drop a lot of other things because this is getting out of hand." The majority of the warrants are civil bench warrants, such as non-support, and criminal bench warrants, such as failure to appear for sentencing and failure to comply with a court order, according to Jewell. There are also some warrants for traffic violations, simple misdemeanors and some felonies, he said.

Jewell said he is issuing a warning before beginning to process the warrants to allow those who have outstanding warrants against them to clear up the matter before the warrant is executed. He said the sheriff's department will begin executing the warrants beginning Monday. Those who have violated court orders or who have been issued traffic citations should report to the respective courts of jurisdiction, Jewell said, while all others should report to the sheriff's department.

State Asked To Pay For Tainted Milk

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state was awaiting a court order this morning that could force it to pay for disposal of milk from Michigan dairy herds quarantined for contamination by a poisonous wood preservative.

Dairy farmers Robert Curtis of Nashville and Dale Hackenberg of Marcellus filed a court complaint Tuesday asking that the state be ordered to haul away milk that has been accumulating in storage tanks since their herds were quarantined last Friday.

The quarantines were imposed on eight central Michigan herds by the state Department of Agriculture because it feared that the milk might contain highly toxic dioxins. The animals show levels of pentachlorophenol, a wood preservative that may contain the poisonous dioxin byproducts.

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Jack Warren set an emergency hearing on the question for 8:30 this morning. Warren said he expected his decision to apply to other farmers in similar straits.

The farmers fear if they dump the milk on their own land and it later is found to contain dioxins, their water supplies could be contaminated.

"I can't say that I blame them," agriculture director B. Dale Ball said Wednesday. His department is named in the complaint. Also named are the Department of Natural Resources and the Water Resources Commission.

Besides Curtis and Hackenberg, six other farmers have had their herds quarantined for the same reason. The quarantine means they cannot sell meat or milk, although test results are not yet in to show if dioxins are present in the milk.

But, said Webb Smith, a Lansing attorney representing Curtis and Hackenberg, "If the agriculture department feels there's sufficient basis to issue a quarantine, it's likely there's sufficient basis for us not to dump it (the milk) on our land."

The agriculture department advised Smith's clients to hire an industrial waste hauler to get rid of the milk, Smith said, but that would be too expensive. It would cost one of his clients $1,400 a week, he said.

Storage tanks of both farmers are nearly full, Smith said.

One farmer, George LeMunyon of Cedar Springs, has been dumping his possibly poisoned milk on his land since his herd was quarantined in mid-January. It's not known how other farmers are getting rid of theirs.

Department of Natural Resources officials are advising farmers who can't afford to have milk hauled away to bury the milk in shallow holes dug in clay soil in a wooded or unplanted area of their land.

But one DNR official said because the ground has been softened by melting snow, farmers' tractors bog down and some can't haul the milk to secluded spots to be dumped

Silver Creek Approves Bids For Tax Rebates

DOWAGIAC — The Silver Creek township board last night approved requests from three township farm owners seeking what amounts to a tax rebate on farm property taxes.

Requests came from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hassle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sprague and Harold Grabmeyer. With township approval the requests will now be forwarded to the state land use office.

Under the act, farmland owners in areas assessed higher than normal because of nearby land uses may apply for an adjustment. If approved, the owners will receive the difference between what they paid in taxes at the higher assessment and the adjusted farmland figure.

With state approval, the farm owners are eligible for the rebates for 10 years, but if the land is sold for any use other than agriculture during that time, the farmer owners must pay back a percentage of the total amount rebated.

In other areas, the board set a special meeting for March 23 to choose a successor to Richard Grabemeyer, township building inspector, who is leaving the post April 1. Supervisor Anthony Krukowski said eight applications for the position have been received. Grabemeyer also served as township assessor, a job being taken over by the supervisor.

The board voted to hire Michigan Surveyers company at a cost of $300 to survey Forest Beach road at Indian Lake. The Cass county road commission, in a letter, said the road must be surveyed before any paving work can be done.

The board announced that the township landfill will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Saturday beginning March 26.

Krukowski announced that the annual township meeting will be held at the township hall, April 2 at 1 p.m.

Thousands Of Wells Drying Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of wells are drying up throughout the Midwest as a prolonged drought reduces underground water supplies to record low levels, the government says.

The U.S. Geological Survey said Wednesday an estimated 1,900 wells in Minnsota, another 1,400 in Michigan and 500 more in Wisconsin are dry.

In California and the Nortwest, the agency said, water-users are digging deeper into the earth to find what moisture there is.

Richard Johnson, a hydrologist with the USGS, said, "Three distinct areas of ground-water problems have developed and in parts of all these areas there has been a marked upsurge in well drilling and the reactivation of some abandoned wells."

In addition to the problem of dry wells, Johnston said parts of the Great Plains states are experiencing a drop in ground water levels, prompting drilling activity for irrigation water.

He also said that in parts of California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, well drilling is increasing to supplement insufficient surface water.

In the agriculturally-rich San Joaquin Valley of California, the pumping of ground water levels is expected to increase, as well.

Tenneco's Merger Is Seen Legal

NEW YORK (AP) — Tenneco Inc. said Wednesday its $167 million plan to acquire Monroe Auto Equipment Co. would not violate federal antitrust law as the government has maintained.

The Federal Trade Commission on Tuesday moved to block the acquisition, saying it would cut competition in the auto parts industry.

Tenneco, a diversified industrial conglomerate, owns the Walker Manufacturing Co. which makes auto exhaust systems and has about 36 per cent of the U.S. repacement field.

The FTC said while the two fields are highly concentrated and difficult to enter, each company has the potential to enter the other's business.

The FTC also proposed a 10-year ban against any Tenneco acquisitions in shock absorber manufacturing and against any Monroe acquisitions of exhaust system parts makers.

Under the acquisition plan, disclosed last December, Tenneco would acquire at least 80 per cent of the 13 million shares that Monroe has outstanding.

Credit Union 'Check' Plan Ruled Legal

LANSING (AP) — It is legal for state-chartered credit unions to offer members "share draft" accounts similar to bank checking accounts, the chief of Michigan's financial regulatory agency said Wednesday.

Richard J. Francis, commissioner of the Financial Institutions Bureau, made the ruling on a request from the Michigan Bankers Association.

The association claimed that the ability to offer checking accounts is the exclusive right of banks and that credit unions do not have legal power to allow their members to use the check-like share drafts.

Francis said his ruling involved technical issues in the laws giving credit unions operating powers.

"Putting it as simply as possible, there was a question as to whether the law governing credit unions permitted them to allow their members to utilize share drafts. I have found that they can legally do so," he said.

Since a credit union does not have direct access to the check-clearing system used by banks, it must contract with a bank to have share drafts processed.

"This difference in form is not significant to consumers," Francis said. "Under the Uniform Commercial Code, share drafts have the same standing in law as do checks and should be equally acceptable as payment."

Credit unions pay at least some interest or dividend on share draft accounts. Banks are specifically prohibited by federal regulation from paying interest on checking accounts.

"The bureau will continue to watch over development of share draft programs by credit unions, with an eye toward rules or legislation that will set reserve requirements, provide consumer safeguards in processing and consider the competitive equality factors between the two types of financial institutions," Francis said.

Share draft accounts, first offered in Michigan in late 1974, are available at 146 of the 1,021 state and federal credit unions in Michigan. In November 1976, some 450,000 drafts were processed totaling $823 million, Francis said.

School Tax Increase Is Beaten

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — A proposed 7.19 mill tax increase was defeated by Roseville voters this week 4,401 to 3,773.

School officials said defeat of the millage would mean further cutbacks this year and indicated some elementary students might have to go on half-days.

Several programs, including elementary music, art, counseling and sports already have been trimmed, officials said.

Kresge May Be K-Mart

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Directors of the S.S Kresge Co. are proposing to change the name of the giant retailer to K Mart Corp.

The directors today announced that the name change would be more in line with the corporation's present business.

K Mart stores accounted for 94.5 per cent of the corporation's domestic consolidated sales in 1976 and 96 per cent of the pretax income, the company said in a statement.

In 1976, K mart expanded to 1,095 stores and cut back Kresge outlets to 291.

With sales of $8.38 billion in the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, Kresge passed J.C. Penney Co. to become the second-largest nonfood retailing chain in the country.

Shareholders will vote on the name change at the firm's annual meeting May 17.

AT&T Again Tops $1 Billion

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has recorded a profit of more than $1 billion for the quarter ending Feb. 28, the third consecutive quarter that profits have topped the $1 billion mark.

That amounts to $1.55 for each of 599.67 million shares of stock, compared with $831.2 million, or $1.33 for each of the 571.69 million shares a year ago.

However, Chairman John deButts said, "Our current earnings fall short of the level that our most conscientious studies tell us we must achieve to maintain our service capability for the long run."

He said rigorous management won't be enough to meet AT&T's financial objectives.

"That means that we must continue to seek rate increases in jurisdictions where earnings performance falls below the level share owners have a right to expect from their investment," he said.

KALAMAZOO — First of Michigan corporation has formed a Financial Control Systems division and has named Ned A. Joachimi, vice president for sale, as director of the new division.

David H. Callaway, board chairman of First of Michigan, said that Joachimi will also continue as vice president of sales. Financial Control Systems will provide a full range of services to profit-sharing and pension plans, college endowment funds, and other pools of money. The services will include monitoring their portfolio; evaluating the performance of their portfolio managers; selecting new portfolo managers; auditing to monitor available cash investment and dividend and stock-split collection; and counseling on rate of return objectives and communication programs aimed at fund participants.

The new division has already acquired several corporate and privately endowed institutional clients throughout the country. The new division is at 126 East Michigan Ave., Kalamazoo, adjacent to the firm's present Kalamazoo branch location. First of Michigan is the largest Michigan-based underwriter of common stocks and municipal and corporate bonds, with 20 offices covering seven states.

Prince Charles Touring Kenya

NAKURU, Kenya (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, paid a courtesy visit to President Jomo Kenyatta after a private camping safari in this African country.

Tuesday's visit to Kenyatta was Charles' first public appearance since he flew into Nairobi March 6.

Charles, a bachelor, had been camping in Kenya's Aberdare Mountains. British reporters tried to locate him before Tuesday after unconfirmed rumors circulated that he was accompanied on the trip by a blonde woman.

Thousands Of Wells Drying Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of wells are drying up throughout the Midwest as a prolonged drought reduces underground water supplies to record low levels, the government says.

The U.S. Geological Survey said Wednesday an estimated 1,900 wells in Minnsota, another 1,400 in Michigan and 500 more in Wisconsin are dry.

In California and the Nortwest, the agency said, water-users are digging deeper into the earth to find what moisture there is.

Richard Johnson, a hydrologist with the USGS, said, "Three distinct areas of ground-water problems have developed and in parts of all these areas there has been a marked upsurge in well drilling and the reactivation of some abandoned wells."

In addition to the problem of dry wells, Johnston said parts of the Great Plains states are experiencing a drop in ground water levels, prompting drilling activity for irrigation water.

He also said that in parts of California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, well drilling is increasing to supplement insufficient surface water.

In the agriculturally-rich San Joaquin Valley of California, the pumping of ground water levels is expected to increase, as well.

KALAMAZOO — First of Michigan corporation has formed a Financial Control Systems division and has named Ned A. Joachimi, vice president for sale, as director of the new division.

David H. Callaway, board chairman of First of Michigan, said that Joachimi will also continue as vice president of sales. Financial Control Systems will provide a full range of services to profit-sharing and pension plans, college endowment funds, and other pools of money. The services will include monitoring their portfolio; evaluating the performance of their portfolio managers; selecting new portfolo managers; auditing to monitor available cash investment and dividend and stock-split collection; and counseling on rate of return objectives and communication programs aimed at fund participants.

Tenneco's Merger Is Seen Legal

NEW YORK (AP) — Tenneco Inc. said Wednesday its $167 million plan to acquire Monroe Auto Equipment Co. would not violate federal antitrust law as the government has maintained.

The Federal Trade Commission on Tuesday moved to block the acquisition, saying it would cut competition in the auto parts industry.

Tenneco, a diversified industrial conglomerate, owns the Walker Manufacturing Co. which makes auto exhaust systems and has about 36 per cent of the U.S. repacement field.

The FTC said while the two fields are highly concentrated and difficult to enter, each company has the potential to enter the other's business.

The FTC also proposed a 10-year ban against any Tenneco acquisitions in shock absorber manufacturing and against any Monroe acquisitions of exhaust system parts makers.

Tenneco said it and Monroe intend to oppose the FTC's request for a federal court injunction barring completion of the purchase.

Under the acquisition plan, disclosed last December, Tenneco would acquire at least 80 per cent of the 13 million shares that Monroe has outstanding.

Credit Union 'Check' Plan Ruled Legal

LANSING (AP) — It is legal for state-chartered credit unions to offer members "share draft" accounts similar to bank checking accounts, the chief of Michigan's financial regulatory agency said Wednesday.

Richard J. Francis, commissioner of the Financial Institutions Bureau, made the ruling on a request from the Michigan Bankers Association.

The association claimed that the ability to offer checking accounts is the exclusive right of banks and that credit unions do not have legal power to allow their members to use the check-like share drafts.

Francis said his ruling involved technical issues in the laws giving credit unions operating powers.

"Putting it as simply as possible, there was a question as to whether the law governing credit unions permitted them to allow their members to utilize share drafts. I have found that they can legally do so," he said.

Since a credit union does not have direct access to the check-clearing system used by banks, it must contract with a bank to have share drafts processed.

"This difference in form is not significant to consumers," Francis said. "Under the Uniform Commercial Code, share drafts have the same standing in law as do checks and should be equally acceptable as payment."

Credit unions pay at least some interest or dividend on share draft accounts. Banks are specifically prohibited by federal regulation from paying interest on checking accounts.

"The bureau will continue to watch over development of share draft programs by credit unions, with an eye toward rules or legislation that will set reserve requirements, provide consumer safeguards in processing and consider the competitive equality factors between the two types of financial institutions," Francis said.

Share draft accounts, first offered in Michigan in late 1974, are available at 146 of the 1,021 state and federal credit unions in Michigan. In November 1976, some 450,000 drafts were processed totaling $823 million, Francis said.

School Tax Increase Is Beaten

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — A proposed 7.19 mill tax increase was defeated by Roseville voters this week 4,401 to 3,771.

School officials said defeat of the millage would mean further cutbacks this year and indicated some elementary students might have to go on half-days.

Several programs, including elementary music, art, counseling and sports already have been trimmed, officials said.

Kresge May Be K-Mart

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Directors of the S.S Kresge Co. are proposing to change the name of the giant retailer to K Mart Corp.

The directors today announced that the name change would be more in line with the corporation's present business.

K Mart stores accounted for 94.5 per cent of the corporation's domestic consolidated sales in 1976 and 96 per cent of the pre-tax income, the company said in a statement.

In 1976, K mart expanded to 1,095 stores and cut back Kresge outlets to 291.

With sales of $8.38 billion in the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, Kresge passed J.C. Penney Co. to become the second-largest nonfood retailing chain in the country.

Shareholders will vote on the name change at the firm's annual meeting May 17.

Silver Creek Approves Bids For Tax Rebates

DOWAGIAC — The Silver Creek township board last night approved requests from three township farm owners seeking what amounts to a tax rebate on farm property taxes.

Requests came from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hassle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sprague and Harold Grabmeyer. With township approval the requests will now be forwarded to the state land use office.

Under the act, farmland owners in areas assessed higher than normal because of nearby land uses may apply for an adjustment. If approved, the owners will receive the difference between what they paid in taxes at the higher assessment and the adjusted farmland figure.

With state approval, the farm owners are eligible for the rebates for 10 years, but if the land is sold for any use other than agriculture during that time, the farmer owners must pay back a percentage of the total amount rebated.

In other areas, the board set a special meeting for March 23 to choose a successor to Richard Grabemeyer, township building inspector, who is leaving the post April 1. Supervisor Anthony Krukowski said eight applications for the position have been received. Grabemeyer also served as township assessor, a job being taken over by the supervisor.

The board voted to hire Michigan Surveyers company at a cost of $300 to survey Forest Beach road at Indian Lake. The Cass county road commission, in a letter, said the road must be surveyed before any paving work can be done.

The board announced that the township landfill will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Saturday beginning March 26.

Krukowski announced that the annual township meeting will be held at the township hall, April 2 at 1 p.m.

AT&T Again Tops $1 Billion

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has recorded a profit of more than $1 billion for the quarter ending Feb. 28, the third consecutive quarter that profits have topped the $1 billion mark.

That amounts to $1.55 for each of 599.67 million shares of stock, compared with $831.2 million, or $1.33 for each of the 571.69 million shares a year ago.

However, Chairman John deButts said, "Our current earnings fall short of the level that our most conscientious studies tell us we must achieve to maintain our service capability for the long run."

He said rigorous management won't be enough to meet AT&T's financial objectives.

"That means that we must continue to seek rate increases in jurisdictions where earnings performance falls below the level share owners have a right to expect from their investment," he said.
